Resigned Texas Commissioner Of Lands Arrested

AUSTIN, March 5 —UP— Bascom Giles was arrested Saturday on a charge he conspired to steal $83,500 of state money while he was Texas land commissioner.

His bond was set at $100,000.

Giles, smiling affably, posed readily for pictures but would say virtually nothing to newsmen. He was arrested as a result of a secret indictment returned Friday by a Travis county (Austin) grand jury.

He was unaccompanied by any attorney. He was asked if he was prepared to make bond. He answered:

"I don't know."

Giles was brought into the sheriff's office by N. K. Dixon, chief of the internal security division of the Department of Public Safety, and Chesley Auten and Powell Charlton, two special investigators working under Dixon.

The indictment charged that Giles and B. R. Sheffield "on or about the 16th day of December, 1953...did conspire and agree together and between themselves to unlawfully and fraudulently take $83,500 in lawful money of the United States, the same being the corporeal personal property of the state of Texas, from the possession of the said state of Texas; without the consent of the said state of Texas..."

Giles posed readily for photographers and jokingly inquired, "do you want to help me on my $100,000 bond?"

Giles resigned as commissioner of the General Land Office Jan. 1, the day he was to have started his ninth consecutive term.

His resignation apparently caught other state officials by surprise, even though the Veterans Land Board—the $100 million agency which administers the veterans land program—already was under investigation by the five-member Senate general investigating committee of the 54th Legislature.

The land commissioner, under the law, is chairman of the veterans land board. The governor and attorney general are members.

Hawaii Fears New Eruptions; Quakes Severe

Town Of Over 1000 Residents May Be Left Abandoned

PAHOA, Hawaii, March 5 (AP)—A volcano expert today recommended the evacuation of this city, one of the largest on the island of Hawaii, as spectacular lava rivers inched toward the ocean from prolonged eruptions.

Dr. Gordon A. MacDonald made the recommendation after constantly threatening earth tremors on a rift line 10 miles upslope from this Puna district town of about 1,000 inhabitants.

"Our seismograph has started recording severe quakes," he said. "Their center appears to be halfway between Kilaue Crater and Pahoa."

MacDonald earlier has said the only danger to Pahoa was from new fissures which might occur from the volcano, in eruption for the fifth day.

The crackling, molten lava already has consumed at least nine homes and caused an estimated two million dollars damage in five days of violent volcanic eruptions in the sparsely settled Puna district on the easternmost tip of this largest island in the Hawaii group.

The main lava flow, which veered south of the abandoned village of Kapoho Friday, was expected to reach the sea sometime today.

Dr. Gordon A. MacDonald, Hawaii volcanologist, said this was the "most active volcanic flow I have ever seen" and estimated last night it would reach the sea before dawn. But the huge boiling mass, after crossing Kapoho Road, began spreading out and piling up.

The lava stream was like a huge octupus. It would shoot out steaming tentacles and these eventually would join, blanketing the area with lava.

One tentacle kept moving southeast in the direction of Pohoiki, a settlement of about six houses on the ocean. It is about three miles from Kapoho. It was in no immediate danger but police were sent to the village, previously evacuated, to make certain no one had returned.

Deserted Kapoho was nearly surrounded by lava. MacDonald held out hope that no outbursts would occur inside the village itself which lies on the rift which has been erupting westward of the city.

The scientist said that so long as the lava fountain at Puu Kil—source of Wednesday's fresh outbreak—remains active, there was little danger that the rift line would reach Kapoho.

He said the Puu Kil fountain, spouting as high as 1,000 feet, relieves the underground pressure and lessens the chance of a fountain erupting east along the rift line.

Israel And Arab States Clash Again

GAZA, Egyptian-Israeli Frontier, March 5—UP—Arab-Israeli tension which has threatened the peace of the Middle East, erupted Saturday in new violence on the Israeli-Jordanian frontier.

Jordan charged before the Mixed Armistice Commission in Jerusalem, that five Jordanian Beduins were murdered by Israeli troops Friday night.

Israel charged Syria with a less serious frontier violation near the Hagovrim settlement where, it said, shots were fired from Syrian positions wounding one of two workmen on waterworks project in upper Galilee. Israeli reinforcements returned and silenced the Syrian fire, the Israeli complaint said.

The commission already is considering Egypt's charges that an Israeli army unit on last Monday night staged a sneak attack on an Egyptian military post in this Egyptian frontier area, killing 42 Egyptians and wounding 29.

The situation here was so danger-packed Saturday that families of the United Nations truce team—including one American woman—were evacuated from the Gaza area.

Egypt charged that Israeli artillery opened fire during the night

Cold Wave Moves Over U. S.; Rivers On New Rampage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A March cold wave shattered springlike weather in the midcontinent Saturday and freezing drizzle sheathed a large area in the Northeast with treacherous ice.

An overnight glaze of ice coated much of New York, New Jersey and New England. There were scores of auto accidents in New York and New Jersey and at least two persons died in accidents attributed to the ice. Airline schedules were disrupted.

Rain pelted wide areas of the East where recent storms have swollen streams and rivers.

Flood fears abated in Pittsburgh, however, after the U. S. Weather Bureau there forecast that the Ohio River would crest from one foot above the 25-foot flood stage.

This level would result in only minor damage.

Part of the River Downs race track in Cincinnati was under water from the Ohio River flood.

Temperatures plunged 30 degrees as late winter's arctic blasts hit the Northern Plains and surged south and eastward.

Cold wave warnings were issued for as far east as the Illinois-Indiana border and southward to the Texas Panhandle. The cold was expected to push eastward to the Atlantic, moderating on the way.

The mercury sank to 40 degrees below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont., early Saturday. Williston, N. D., had a low of -20.

Snow whipped across Colorado and Wyoming and the temperature dipped to -19 at Sheridan, Wyo.

Overnight readings were expected to reach zero to 5 below in western Illinois. Chicago, which basked in balmy 64-degree warmth Thursday, bundled up for an overnight low of 10 above.

Thunderstorms crackled across the midsouth area.

Fuller Crossed Up In Testimony At Murder Trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 5 (AP) —Albert Fuller climaxed his murder defense today with a firm denial that he killed A. L. Patterson, but he got crossed up three times on major points in his testimony.

The defense rested its case after the former chief deputy sheriff at Phenix City ended a stay of 4½ hours on the stand, but announced it would call the state's star witness for further cross-examination Monday.

Chief Prosecutor Cecil Deason then began presentation of rebuttal testimony aimed at conteracting the stories of Fuller and six other witnesses who said the defendant was in the county jail at the time the anti vice crusading Patterson was slain last June 18.

The first four rebuttal witnesses for the state were a Birmingham Baptist minister who formerly was pastor of a church in Phenix City and three Phenix city residents who all testified Fuller's reputation is "bad." They said they wouldn't believe him on oath.

Two of the witnesses also told the jury the same thing about former sheriff Ralph Mathews, who was Fuller's boss at Phenix City and who testified in his behalf today.

Court recessed until Monday after the four witnesses testified.

Fuller's testimony included these seeming contradictions: that he worked for Patterson in the vice foe's successful campaign for attorney general of Alabama last spring but didn't vote for him.

That he suffered from a severe leg injury and couldn't run from the murder scene as prosecution witnesses said he did, but that he ran out of the jail when he heard about the shooting and ran across the street when he arrived at the murder scene.

That he didn't remember being sentenced to seven years in prison for bribery several weeks ago but did remember parts of the trial, especially that he didn't have a lawyer until just after he was called into court.

Fuller was one of the defendants convicted in the vice cleanup trials which followed Patterson's death. He was charged with taking payoff

Louisiana Food And Drug Head Jailed In Connection With Doping Race Horse

NEW ORLEANS, March 5—UP—A prominent Louisville, Ky., veterinarian and the director of the state food and drug division Saturday were arrested along with a trainer at the Fair Grounds and charged with drugging a horse and attempted public bribery.

Cassius Clay, director of the food and drug division of the Louisiana State Department of Health, was charged with attempting to bribe laboratory technicians to have them destroy samples from horses taken at the track.

Dr. Alexander Harthill of Louisville, who already was suspended in Illinois, was charged with the drugging along with trainer Harvey Vanier of Hopkins, Mo.

Harthill also was charged with public bribery, according to Spencer Drayton, executive secretary of the Thoroughbred Racing Association and head of the Thoroughbred Racing Protection Bureau.

The arrests followed the drugging of Mrs. L. E. Vanier's Smasher in a race at the Fair Grounds Feb. 26. Harvey Vanier, a relative, reported the drugging. The trainer, Vanier, also was believed related to the others of that name.

Smasher won the eighth race Feb. 26 and won a purse of $1,235.

Drayton said a trap was carefully planted for the three, especially Harthill, who he said he had been checking on for several months.

Drayton said he had been after Harthill since a drugging of an Elmer Kalensky horse named Tonight at Keenland.

He said Harthill also was an important figure in the Mister Black drugging at Arlington Park. Harthill has been suspended by the Illinois Racing Commission over that drugging. However, he obtained an injunction and continued his profession.

Eisenhower Lays Down New Rules In Security Cases

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— President Eisenhower Saturday laid down seven new rules to govern the federal security program uniformly and to "protect both the national security and the rights" of federal employes.

Two were aimed at avoiding in the future the furor and intergovernmental dispute which occurred in the recent Wolf Ladejinsky security case.

One might be interpreted as directed at Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, who dismissed Ladejinsky on security grounds although he had been cleared for the State Department. The Russian-born land reform expert then was hired by another government agency.

One rule concerning an accused's right to face his accusers represented no change in the Justice Department's position.

The new rule says "every effort" should be made to produce persons at security board hearings so that employes could face their accusers, but only "so long as the production of such witnesses would not jeopardize the national security.

This means no change from the position taken by the Justice department in a brief filed with the Supreme Court Thursday which stated that mandatory production of all accusers would endanger national security.

The seven rules were outlined by Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. in a letter to Mr. Eisenhower made public Saturday. The President said he approved the rules and directed that they be sent to all agency heads.

Until Saturday, each agency head could interpret the security program as he saw fit.

Here are the seven new rules:

Educators And Solons Scoff At U. S. School Aid

BATON ROUGE, March 5 (AP) — A Louisiana legislative committee and educators designing a 250-million-dollar school construction program today scoffed at proposed federal aid as "too little, too late" and likely to put strings on segregation.

Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, said legislators and educators attending a closed conference unanimously agreed on that score.

His group favors the state dipping deep into rich offshore oil revenues to support the 250 million cash constructure venture over a 10-year period.

If successful, the proposal would be a sharp change of pace in Louisiana whore public school construction is a local matter. The state carries the burden of most other education expense.

Gov. Robert Kennon twice has expressed a view that state funds for building schools would strain other spending on educational needs.

Rainach's segregation group has joined forces with state Supt. Shelby Jackson and public school leaders urging state funds as the only solution to school construction problems.

Dulles, Carney En Route To U. S. To Report Plans

TAIPEI, Sunday, March 6 —UP— Adm. Robert B. Carney, U. S. chief of naval operations, disclosed Saturday that a joint Chinese-American command probably may be set up here to organize the defense of Formosa against possible Communist attack.

Carney said planning for the joint command is not complete, but added that the recent Chinese-American defense pact made it extremely likely one will be formed.

"A joint command is always necessary when forces of two nations get together," he said.

Carney expressed his views at a press conference shortly before boarding a plane for Honolulu and eventually to the United States.

Heavy weather Saturday brought fighting along the embattled China coast to a standstill. Nationalist Chinese military quarters said not a shot was fired along the 150-mile "front."

The Communists made no attempt to follow up their attack on the northern outport island of Kaoteng, which was beaten off by Chinese artillery Friday night.

The official military information service issued no communique on the day's operations because "there is nothing to report."

Carney emphasized that the situation still is crucial despite the Saturday lull. He said he will do everything the can to speed up military aid shipments to Formosa when he gets back to Washington next week.

WASHINGTON, March 5—UP— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returns from the Far East Sunday to report on American-led strategy to pound Red China on three fronts, perhaps with atomic weapons, if the Communists commit outright aggression in Asia.

Dulles also will report on the chances of war or peace in the Formosa crisis. He conferred on Formosa with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek at the end of his seven-nation swing.

Dulles' reports to President Eisenhower, congressional committees, and the American people will vary, depending on his audience.

In his nationwide television and radio address Tuesday night, he is expected to appeal to both Nationalist and Red China to renounce the use of force in the Formosa-off shore island area. He will match this appeal to reason with a warning to Red China against risking American retaliation against mainland target areas if Formosa and

According to last night's government weather bureau forecast, Louisiana will be mostly cloudy and colder today with accompanying scattered thundershowers in the south portion of the state. Monday is expected to be partly cloudy and cool.

Arkansas, it was predicted, will be cloudy and cold today. Monday is expected to be partly cloudy and warmer in the afternoon.

CAA officials at the Selman Field station last night reported that the high in Monroe yesterday was 84 degrees. The low for the day was 67 degrees.

Stock Market Investigators Probe Effect Of U. S. Procurement Policy

WASHINGTON, Mar 5 —UP— Senate investigators asked the Defense Department Saturday for a list of its 100 top defense contractors to determine whether its procurement policies have contributed to the stock market boom.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) said his Senate Banking Committee wants to find out what effect defense business has had on the stocks of companies concerned. Financial data of the contractors will be analyzed.

The committee is making a "friendly" investigation of the surging market.

The request was sent to the Pentagon after Fulbright disclosed the committee is checking about 20 instances in which "tips and rumors" produced market fluctuations. The activity could have resulted in market killings for a few insiders.

Testimony Friday highlighted two instances of frenzied market activity occasioned by tips from radio-TV commentator Walter Winchell. Winchell quickly issued a statement asserting that he owns no stocks personally.

The committee staff is already studying a list of persons who bought Pantepec Oil— one of the stocks involved in Winchell tips—during the week before the commentator plugged it on his Sunday night TV show, and then sold when the price jumped.

Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange, has promised to supply a list of other holders who profited.

The study of the financial dealings of defense contractors was proposed during the hearings by Sens. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.). Fulbright joined in commenting on high earnings of some companies who sell almost exclusively to the government.

Fulbright and Monroney observed that the Renegotiation Act, which formerly permitted the government to recapture some profits on defense contracts, expired last Dec. 31. President Eisenhower recommended to congress on Thursday that it should be extended.

Israel And Arab States Clash Again

GAZA, Egyptian-Israeli Frontier, March 5—UP—Arab-Israeli tension which has threatened the peace of the Middle East, erupted Saturday in new violence on the Israeli-Jordanian frontier.

Cold Wave Moves Over U. S.; Rivers On New Rampage

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A March cold wave shattered springlike weather in the midcontinent Saturday and freezing drizzle sheathed a large area in the Northeast with treacherous ice.

An overnight glaze of ice coated much of New York, New Jersey and New England. There were scores of auto accidents in New York and New Jersey and at least two persons died in accidents attributed to the ice. Airline schedules were disrupted.

Rain pelted wide areas of the East where recent storms have swollen streams and rivers.

Flood fears abated in Pittsburgh, however, after the U. S. Weather Bureau there forecast that the Ohio River would crest from one foot above the 25-foot flood stage.

This level would result in only minor damage.

Part of the River Downs race track in Cincinnati was under water from the Ohio River flood.

Temperatures plunged 30 degrees as late winter's arctic blasts hit the Northern Plains and surged south and eastward.

Cold wave warnings were issued for as far east as the Illinois-Indiana border and southward to the Texas Panhandle. The cold was expected to push eastward to the Atlantic, moderating on the way.

The mercury sank to 40 degrees below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont., early Saturday. Williston, N. D., had a low of -20.

Snow whipped across Colorado and Wyoming and the temperature dipped to -19 at Sheridan, Wyo.

Overnight readings were expected to reach zero to 5 below in western Illinois. Chicago, which basked in balmy 64-degree warmth Thursday, bundled up for an overnight low of 10 above.

Thunderstorms crackled across the midsouth area.

Louisiana Food And Drug Head Jailed In Connection With Doping Race Horse

NEW ORLEANS, March 5—UP—A prominent Louisville, Ky., veterinarian and the director of the state food and drug division Saturday were arrested along with a trainer at the Fair Grounds and charged with drugging a horse and attempted public bribery.

Cassius Clay, director of the food and drug division of the Louisiana State Department of Health, was charged with attempting to bribe laboratory technicians to have them destroy samples from horses taken at the track.

Dr. Alexander Harthill of Louisville, who already was suspended in Illinois, was charged with the drugging along with trainer Harvey Vanier of Hopkins, Mo.

Harthill also was charged with public bribery, according to Spencer Drayton, executive secretary of the Thoroughbred Racing Association and head of the Thoroughbred Racing Protection Bureau.

The arrests followed the drugging of Mrs. L. E. Vanier's Smasher in a race at the Fair Grounds Feb. 26. Harvey Vanier, a relative, reported the drugging. The trainer, Vanier, also was believed related to the others of that name.

Smasher won the eighth race Feb. 26 and won a purse of $1,235.

Drayton said a trap was carefully planted for the three, especially Harthill, who he said he had been checking on for several months.

Drayton said he had been after Harthill since a drugging of an Elmer Kalensky horse named Tonight at Keenland.

He said Harthill also was an important figure in the Mister Black drugging at Arlington Park. Harthill has been suspended by the Illinois Racing Commission over that drugging. However, he obtained an injunction and continued his profession.

Lovers of Greek philosophy will welcome the fact that the year 1955 is approximately the twenty-fifth hundredth anniversary of the founding by Pythagoras of his school and confraternity on the Isle of Samos. It marks the birth of Greek philosophy and of higher education for laymen and laywomen.

A world Congress of Pythagorean organizations is planned for Athens the third week of August of this year. The purpose of the Pythagorean Congress is to bring to common notice and into affiliation Pythagorean societies and lovers of this philosophy throughout the world.

Membership in the revived Pythagorean order will be open to men and women equally. The initial international and national officers of the revived order will be invested and installed ceremonially at some point on the pilgrimage, probably on Samos. The ancient

Windstorm Rips Compress Apart

MAGNOLIA, Miss., March 5 (AP) —A freak windstorm ripped apart a two-acre cotton compress in Magnolia today.

The frame and sheet tin building was lifted from its foundation and dropped again, city officials said.

All employees had left for the day and no one was injured.

Weather bureau officials in Jackson declined to call the storm a tornado, classing it as a freak whirlwind.

Eisenhower Lays Down New Rules In Security Cases

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— President Eisenhower Saturday laid down seven new rules to govern the federal security program uniformly and to "protect both the national security and the rights" of federal employes.

Two were aimed at avoiding in the future the furor and intergovernmental dispute which occurred in the recent Wolf Ladejinsky security case.

One might be interpreted as directed at Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, who dismissed Ladejinsky on security grounds although he had been cleared for the State Department. The Russian-born land reform expert then was hired by another government agency.

One rule concerning an accused's right to face his accusers represented no change in the Justice Department's position.

The new rule says "every effort" should be made to produce persons at security board hearings so that employes could face their accusers, but only "so long as the production of such witnesses would not jeopardize the national security.

This means no change from the position taken by the Justice department in a brief filed with the Supreme Court Thursday which stated that mandatory production of all accusers would endanger national security.

The seven rules were outlined by Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. in a letter to Mr. Eisenhower made public Saturday. The President said he approved the rules and directed that they be sent to all agency heads.

Until Saturday, each agency head could interpret the security program as he saw fit.

Here are the seven new rules:

Educators And Solons Scoff At U. S. School Aid

BATON ROUGE, March 5 (AP) — A Louisiana legislative committee and educators designing a 250-million-dollar school construction program today scoffed at proposed federal aid as "too little, too late" and likely to put strings on segregation.

Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, said legislators and educators attending a closed conference unanimously agreed on that score.

His group favors the state dipping deep into rich offshore oil revenues to support the 250 million cash constructure venture over a 10-year period.

If successful, the proposal would be a sharp change of pace in Louisiana where public school construction is a local matter. The state carries the burden of most other education expense.

Gov. Robert Kennon twice has expressed a view that state funds for building schools would strain other spending on educational needs.

Rainach's segregation group has joined forces with state Supt. Shelby Jackson and public school leaders urging state funds as the only solution to school construction problems.

Dulles, Carney En Route To U. S. To Report Plans

TAIPEI, Sunday, March 6 —UP— Adm. Robert B. Carney, U. S. chief of naval operations, disclosed Saturday that a joint Chinese-American command probably may be set up here to organize the defense of Formosa against possible Communist attack.

Carney said planning for the joint command is not complete, but added that the recent Chinese-American defense pact made it extremely likely one will be formed.

"A joint command is always necessary when forces of two nations get together," he said.

Carney expressed his views at a press conference shortly before boarding a plane for Honolulu and eventually to the United States.

Heavy weather Saturday brought fighting along the embattled China coast to a standstill. Nationalist Chinese military quarters said not a shot was fired along the 150-mile "front."

The Communists made no attempt to follow up their attack on the northern outport island of Kaoteng, which was beaten off by Chinese artillery Friday night.

The official military information service issued no communique on the day's operations because "there is nothing to report."

Carney emphasized that the situation still is crucial despite the Saturday lull. He said he will do everything the can to speed up military aid shipments to Formosa when he gets back to Washington next week.

WASHINGTON, March 5—UP— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returns from the Far East Sunday to report on American-led strategy to pound Red China on three fronts, perhaps with atomic weapons, if the Communists commit outright aggression in Asia.

Dulles also will report on the chances of war or peace in the Formosa crisis. He conferred on Formosa with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek at the end of his seven-nation swing.

Dulles' reports to President Eisenhower, congressional committees, and the American people will vary, depending on his audience.

In his nationwide television and radio address Tuesday night, he is expected to appeal to both Nationalist and Red China to renounce the use of force in the Formosa-off shore island area. He will match this appeal to reason with a warning to Red China against risking American retaliation against mainland target areas if Formosa and

Stock Market Investigators Probe Effect Of U. S. Procurement Policy

WASHINGTON, Mar 5 —UP— Senate investigators asked the Defense Department Saturday for a list of its 100 top defense contractors to determine whether its procurement policies have contributed to the stock market boom.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) said his Senate Banking Committee wants to find out what effect defense business has had on the stocks of companies concerned. Financial data of the contractors will be analyzed.

The committee is making a "friendly" investigation of the surging market.

The request was sent to the Pentagon after Fulbright disclosed the committee is checking about 20 instances in which "tips and rumors" produced market fluctuations. The activity could have resulted in market killings for a few insiders.

Testimony Friday highlighted two instances of frenzied market activity occasioned by tips from radio-TV commentator Walter Winchell. Winchell quickly issued a statement asserting that he owns no stocks personally.

The committee staff is already studying a list of persons who bought Pantepec Oil— one of the stocks involved in Winchell tips—during the week before the commenttor plugged it on his Sunday night TV show, and then sold when the price jumped.

Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange, has promised to supply a list of other holders who profited.

The study of the financial dealings of defense contractors was proposed during the hearings by Sens. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.). Fulbright joined in commenting on high earnings of some companies who sell almost exclusively to the government.

Fulbright and Monroney observed that the Renegotiation Act, which formerly permitted the government to recapture some profits on defense contracts, expired last Dec. 31. President Eisenhower recommended to congress on Thursday that it should be extended.

Fifth Opera Season To Open At NE

Northeast State will open on March 11 the fifth season of opera produced by the Fine Arts Department. "Hansel and Gretel" the forthcoming opera, represents the seventh such work at the local college.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be sung in English by an outstanding cast of student singers in the principal roles, according to Dr. Harry M. Lemert, head of the department. The cast, together with the chorus and orchestra, is being directed by Joe Barry Mullins, assistant professor of music.

Two performances are scheduled for the procuction, a matinee at 1:15 p.m. and an evening performance at 8:15. Tickets for the afternoon will sell at 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults. The cost for the evening opera will be the same for students and 75 cents for adults. Tickets are on sale at Hewitt's Music Company and Dew Music Company. They also may be purchased by writing or calling Dr. Lemert at the college.

The current production is a two-act fairy opera by Humperdinck, who drew heavily on German fairy lore and folk music in creating the work which continues to be universally popular. "Hansel and Gretel" has enjoyed remarkable success since its initial performance in 1893 under the direction of the composer. It was first heard in the United States two years later and has remained in the standard repertoire of American opera companies.

Opera production by Northeast State was started in 1949 with the late Kurt Weill's "Down in the Valley," which now is considered famous. Continued interest in the presentation of operas here has been responsible for their becoming a campus tradition.

Tennessee Educator NE Speaker

Dr. H. C. Brearley of Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., will be guest lecturer at the Northeast March 14 on the local campus.

Northeast is joining other state colleges in planning the institute as an annual event, according to Dr. W. R. Hammond, head of the college's Liberal Arts Department.

Dr. Brearley is considered a distinguished sociologist, author and speaker. He has been invited to serve as guest lecturer at Marriage and Family Life Institutes at Northwestern in Natchitoches and Centenary College inn Shreveport, announced Miss Ora V. Watson, of Northwestern, who is acting president of the Louisiana Council on Family Relations. This group is promoting the family life institutes on Louisiana's state campuses.

Three meetings are planned during Dr. Brearley's stay on the Northeast campus. He will speak to a student - faculty assembly at 9:50 a.m., conduct a seminar, which is open to the public, at 3 p.m., and address a public group in the college auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

This will be Dr. Brearley's second visit to Northeast. In the spring of 1953 he spent two days here as principal speaker for a sociology conference on community problems.

The guest lecturer was chief consultant last year for the Institute on Family Living, which was held in Nashville by the Southern Baptist Convention. He is widely - traveled and a popular institute leader, Dr. Hammond said.

Hitchhikers Called 'Menace' By Grevemberg

BATON ROUGE, March 5 (AP) — Hitchhikers are a highway menace and police records show why, state police Supt. Francis Grevemberg said today.

"Warm weather is arriving and hitchhikers will be swarming on the open road," he said.

"In many instances, they turn out to be escapees from mental or correctional institutions and a number are deserters or AWOLs from military bases."

State police are under orders to question hitchhikers, determine who they are, file vagrancy charges if they cannot show means of support.

It is a normal police procedure to safeguard motorists.

There is no state law against hitchhiking, but the danger is evident, the superintendent said.

"State police records show nearly 95 per cent of hitchhikers are on the open road because they don't have the money for transportation," he explained. "And a man who has no money has to get it some way.

"That is why it is often dangerous for drivers to pick up hitchhikers."

Last year, Grevemberg said, "troopers picked up 44 runaways, many of them escapees from mental and correctional institutions. Thirty-four others picked up were charged with vagrancy.

"Some college students thumb rides home on weekends, but they often run risks and may become innocent victims of circumstances by being involved in car thefts or robberies.

"Parents should discourage children from seeking highway rides. There is a connection between the practice and juvenile delinquency."

Cotton Futures Decline Sharply During Last Week

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Cotton futures prices declined sharply this week. Active futures contracts traded on the New York Cotton Exchange took net losses which ranged from $3.00 to $4.05 a bale.

The list was under heavy selling pressure from the start. Weakness was attributed to a combination of factors—notably liquidation in the distant delivery months and selling by foreign intersets.

Heavy liquidation by foreign traders was said to reflect growing belief overseas that the United States might adopt a two-price system (one price for cotton bought in the domestic market and a lower price for cotton shipped abroad), or set up a system of export subsidies.

Agriculture Secretary Benson has said no export subsidies are planned for the current crop year, it was pointed out, but he has not ruled out that possibility for the 1955-56 season.

Weakness of futures contracts was also ascribed to slow business in textiles, and reports of increased production of raw cotton in Mexico and Pakistan.

About the only favorable development was announcement of a 15½-million-dollar U. S. grant to Italy for the purchase of an estimated 780,000 bales of cotton.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 83,000 bales. This compared with 122,000 bales in the previous week and 87,000 bales in the corresponding week of 1954.

Exports for the season through last Tuesday were placed at 2,465,000 bales vs. 1,923,000 at approximately the same time last year.

He has been invited to serve as guest lecturer at Marriage and Family Life Institutes at Northwestern in Natchitoches and Centenary College inn Shreveport, announced Miss Ora V. Watson, of Northwestern, who is acting president of the Louisiana Council on Family Relations. This group is promoting the family life institutes on Louisiana's state campuses.

Three meetings are planned during Dr. Brearley's stay on the Northeast campus. He will speak to a student - faculty assembly at 9:50 a.m., conduct a seminar, which is open to the public, at 3 p.m., and address a public group in the college auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

This will be Dr. Brearley's second visit to Northeast. In the spring of 1953 he spent two days here as principal speaker for a sociology conference on community problems.

The guest lecturer was chief consultant last year for the Institute on Family Living, which was held in Nashville by the Southern Baptist Convention. He is widely - traveled and a popular institute leader, Dr. Hammond said.

Hitchhikers Called 'Menace' By Grevemberg

BATON ROUGE, March 5 (AP) — Hitchhikers are a highway menace and police records show why, state police Supt. Francis Grevemberg said today.

"Warm weather is arriving and hitchhikers will be swarming on the open road," he said.

"In many instances, they turn out to be escapees from mental or correctional institutions and a number are deserters or AWOLs from military bases."

State police are under orders to question hitchhikers, determine who they are, file vagrancy charges if they cannot show means of support.

It is a normal police procedure to safeguard motorists.

There is no state law against hitchhiking, but the danger is evident, the superintendent said.

"State police records show nearly 95 per cent of hitchhikers are on the open road because they don't have the money for transportation," he explained. "And a man who has no money has to get it some way.

"That is why it is often dangerous for drivers to pick up hitchhikers."

Last year, Grevemberg said, "troopers picked up 44 runaways, many of them escapees from mental and correctional institutions. Thirty-four others picked up were charged with vagrancy.

"Some college students thumb rides home on weekends, but they often run risks and may become innocent victims of circumstances by being involved in car thefts or robberies.

"Parents should discourage children from seeking highway rides. There is a connection between the practice and juvenile delinquency."

Cotton Futures Decline Sharply During Last Week

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Cotton futures prices declined sharply this week. Active futures contracts traded on the New York Cotton Exchange took net losses which ranged from $3.00 to $4.05 a bale.

The list was under heavy selling pressure from the start. Weakness was attributed to a combination of factors—notably liquidation in the distant delivery months and selling by foreign intersets.

Heavy liquidation by foreign traders was said to reflect growing belief overseas that the United States might adopt a two-price system (one price for cotton bought in the domestic market and a lower price for cotton shipped abroad), or set up a system of export subsidies.

Agriculture Secretary Benson has said no export subsidies are planned for the current crop year, it was pointed out, but he has not ruled out that possibility for the 1955-56 season.

Weakness of futures contracts was also ascribed to slow business in textiles, and reports of increased production of raw cotton in Mexico and Pakistan.

About the only favorable development was announcement of a 15½-million-dollar U. S. grant to Italy for the purchase of an estimated 780,000 bales of cotton.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 83,000 bales. This compared with 122,000 bales in the previous week and 87,000 bales in the corresponding week of 1954.

Exports for the season through last Tuesday were placed at 2,465,000 bales vs. 1,923,000 at approximately the same time last year.

Investors' Conference Nets Latin Nations Over $100 Million In New Funds

AWARD — Miss Iram Lee Adams, above, of Start High School, will vie with contestants from throughout the state for the Betty Crocker Homemaker award. Miss Adams won the award at her high school.

NEW ORLEANS, March 5 (AP)—New business, expansion of existing industries and investments in government bonds will add an estimated 100 million dollars to private U. S. investments in Latin America within the next two to three years.

Four hundred U. S. investors got a close look at Latin American investment opportunities this week during the first Inter-American Investment Conference. Many of them liked what they saw.

The majority declined to commit themselves on investment plans. However those who would, reported plans to invest upwards of $60,650,000.

Investment bankers and industrial leaders said the estimated 100 million could easily double with a good investment climate. This would mean Latin America can expect the biggest influx of new dollar investments in its history.

A survey of investors showed the $60,650,000 would go to Brazil, Peru, Venezuela, Argentina, Bolivia and Paraguay. One project envisages investments upwards of 15 million in small projects.

The bulk of the money, businessmen said, would go to those countries with the most favorable tax, exchange and investment control laws.

During the conference U. S. businessmen told Latin Americans frankly that government meddling in private business, was not the way to attract new money. Latin Americans, on the other hand, agreed to join in an effort to ease restrictions where they exist and to create a favorable investment climate.

The biggest single investment plan disclosed was by the W. R. Grace and Company, a 350 million industrial and transportation company organization.

Andrew B. Shea, first vice-president of W. R. Grace disclosed investments totaling 42 million dollars more than half of which will go into effect this year. Another 20 to 25 million will be invested within the next two to three years.

Shea disclosed plans for a six million dollar plant at Sao Paulo, Brazil, to manufacture DDT insecticide, solvents and detergents. He said by manufacturing these products there, Brazil will save between six and seven million a year in foreign exchange now used to import these products.

In addition the company will open a new two million dollar chemical plant, expanding present operations in Peru. Another 14 million dollars will go for expansion of Panagra airline with the purchase of five DC-7 airliners which will cut 2½ hours flying time on the Buenos Aires-Miami route.

Shea said other projects in the chemical field call for 20 to 25 million expenditure in the next two to three years.

Henry V. Bready, legal counsel for the Texas International Fund, Inc., said about $300,000 would be invested in Venezuela. He said about 60 per cent of the funds would go into grade "A" government bonds and 40 per cent into new business and industries with growth possibilities.

Also on tap, he said, was a one million dollar plan for fabricating garbage truck bodies, another for manufacturing welding rods, and a $100,000 project for manufacturing small gasoline motors all in Brazil.

Broady said another $100,000 project was being negotiated for processing brazil nuts in Bolivia.

Lawrence J. Tidrick, director of the international division of Southwest Research Institute of San Antonio, Texas, said several contracts had been negotiated during the conference for research into Latin American businesses dealing in food, cattle, cement, minerals, chemicals and oil. The institute, a non-profit organization, he said had been asked by U. S. investors at the conference to do research work on a number of projects.

Juan Carlos Goldin Pages of Buenos Aires, disclosed that the Food Chemical Co. Inc., of Chicago would invest one million in machinery for processing oxides, magnesium carbonate and soda solvay. The machinery will go to Guasapampa, S. A., in Cordoba province, Argentina.

Paraguayan businessmen made the only formal investment announcements during the conference here. They called for investment of $150,000 and plans for another two milion, both coffee investments.

Private Sale Of U. S. Mortgages Sought In South

ATLANTA, March 5 (AP)—The federal government is offering about a half billion dollars in residential mortgages for sale to private investors in eight southeastern states.

The mortgages are held by the Federal National Mortgage Association. They are part of a two billion dollars residential mortgage offering being made nationally by FNMA.

The offering is a liquidating program designed to get the residential mortgage business back into the hands of private capital.

FNMA supplied the money for a large portion of the mortgages insured by the Federal Housing and Veterans Administrations. It put up funds in cases where banks, building and loan associations and insurance companies would not risk capital.

The mortgages now are five years old or more and have become seasoned" — or good risks. The individual home owners have a record of prompt payment and the government says, offer investors an opportunity to employ funds on a sound, attractive and immediate income producing basis.

Frank H. Greer, FNMA Atlanta agency manager, said in many instances the mortgages are concentrated in large blocks and yield 4 to 4½ per cent interest.

The government hopes to attract buyers among agencies that formerly were hesitant about investing in residential mortgages on a large scale.

In the southeast the offerings include:

Georgia—over 90 million dollars in mortgages covering 14,000 homes.

Alabama—60 million dollars worth covering 10,000 homes.

Florida—135 million dollars covering 20,000 homes.

Mississippi—12 million dollars, covering 2,000 homes.

Tennessee—56 million dollars, covering 10,000 homes.

TONIC FOR THOUGHT

BUFFALO, N. Y. — The pharmacists of ancient Egypt sold a tonic brewed from figs, plums, grapes, wine, beer, yeast and goose grease. Except for the goose grease it would still make a potent tonic today. But the Egyptians didn't drink it, according to a local pharmaceutical manufacturer (the Arner Co.). They rubbed it on their foreheads.

Editorials

A Sunday Editorial

The struggle of man against nature sometimes eclipses and dwarfs the struggle of man against man. The elemental forces of nature have been tamed and harnessed in an almost infinitesimal way by man; yet a summer thunderstorm, according to our scientists, may generate far more energy than any H-bomb releases; and the summer sun pours more kilowatts of energy upon the earth in one day than man uses in a century.

On the eastern tip of the beautiful semi-tropical island of Hawaii, molten lava is spouting in jeweled fountains, and the earth shakes, and the natives flee for their lives, as fiery cascades invade the peaceful fields of sugar cane.

There is nothing that man can do, except to beat a retreat—to evacuate a district where nature has become temperamental and angry.

In our pride and conceit as human beings, perhaps we should pause once in a while to reflect upon the feebleness of our control over physical environment.

We cannot stop a blizzard, or a tornado, or a hurricane, or a typhoon, or an earthquake, or a disastrous flood, or a great drouth cycle, or a mighty storm at sea—or a volcano spouting lava from the fluid or superheated solid core of the earth.

We heat our buildings and automobiles against blizzards, give radar warnings of tornadoes and hurricanes and typhoons, construct homes and skyscrapers especially designed to resist earthquake damage, build great dams and diversion channels to mitigate floods, "seed" the clouds to get a little more rainfall in times of drouth, seek by better design and construction to build ships that will ride out the storms at sea—and evacuate zones of violent volcanic action.

All of these tactics on the part of man are defensive and evasive, fundamentally, although here and there is a little of the counter-offensive spirit, in a weak and feeble way.

We dwell upon the surface of a spinning planet, where, for the most part, nature is benign and friendly. Our planet is a pin-prick in the vast star-studded reaches of space—and every telescope we build, of greater magnitude, reveals to our eyes new giant pin-wheels of cosmic matter, in suns that dwarf our own to insignificance; peopled with their planetary systems and satellites.

The mocking-birds sing in the springtide, and dormant life awakes, and the soft spring rains fall, and the sunrise is a promise and a glory, and the sunset is beautiful, and green buds open; and life is glorious and good, from nature's standpoint.

Yet a relatively few miles above us are radiations from the cosmos, possibly fatal to all life on earth if unscreened. A blanket of atmosphere and a mysterious thin barrier protect us mercifully from these. And a relatively few miles beneath us is superheated matter, the magma of the earth's interior, ladled out white-hot in the immemorial past, aeons and aeons before man's advent, millions of years ago, miraculously cooling by minute degrees, to minimize the effects of earthquakes and volcanoes, and the rise and fall of mountain systems and the level of the oceans.

The moon arises, and it draws the tide; the moon sets, and the tide recedes. The earth spins on its axis, and revolves around the sun; and the sun and all our solar system move rapidly, hurtling through space, in accordance with laws that we seek to outline but as yet perhaps do not understand in their tremendous scope and sweep.

On our earth are a million life forms, from the one-celled primitive amoeba up to man; and, within man, a million cells functioning in small coordinated groups to produce will and power and intelligence, ability to cope, in a way, with environment.

The simplest method to explain all this is to quote the Psalmist: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handywork."

Poet Of The Heart

Macaulay, in his "Essay on Milton," develops the theme that as civilization advances, poetry almost necessarily declines.

"The most wonderful and splendid proof of a genius is a great poem produced in a civilized age," he says. "He who, in an enlightened and literary society, aspires to be a great poet, must first become a little child. He must unlearn much of that knowledge which has perhaps constituted hitherto his chief title to superiority.

"If these reasons be just, no poet has ever triumphed over greater difficulties than the learned Milton."

And if these reasonings be just in Milton's case, they might apply with equal effect to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, whose 148th birthday anniversary was observed February 27. Longfellow was a scholar in the field of literature and language, with a Harvard professorship and a background of foreign study and travel.

Yet the poetry for which he is remembered and revered is simple verse of the heart rather than of the mind. No American poet has been so widely popular nor more dearly loved than this kindly, white-bearded man whose verse can be understood by all sorts and conditions of men. He dealt, as did Milton, with the universal emotions and experiences known so well by humankind. That is why, in almost every school in the land children still are reciting "The Children's Hour," "Psalm of Life," "The Rainy Day," "The Bridge," "The Day Is Done," "The Arrow and the Song," "The Village Blacksmith" or parts of "Hiawatha" and "Evangeline."

British Labor Party Split

Party splits are nothing new in a government that elects its officials. The Democratic and the Republican parties in the United States are split today as wide as a barn door, and the cleavages seem to be widening in the GOP, which controls the White House, but fundamentally and potentially they are just as wide between the left-wing Adlai Stevenson faction and the southern Democratic conservatives.

In Britain, there is a rapidly growing cleavage between the "radical" and "conservative" factions of the Labor Party—both of which, in fact, are left-wing to an extreme. Aneurin Bevan, spokesman for the ultra-socialist, pro-communist faction, has been agitating a dangerous political issue—the possible use of nuclear bombs by United States Air Force units based in the British Isles, as against Russia. Sir Hartley Shawcross, a "moderite" in the Labor Party, has accused Bevan of indulging in reckless and provocative statements and "doing grave harm to the party."

Clement Attlee, the British Labor leader, has backed the decision of Prime Minister Churchill not only to harbor American Air Force bases in the islands, with their potentiality of delivering nuclear weapons, but also to build H-bombs in Britain as a stop to Soviet aggression.

The challenge of Bevan has reached a point where leaders of the Labor Party are talking seriously of expelling this firebrand extremist.

The alternative to party splits is a "splinter system," such as prevails in France, where government is hogtied and pig-stringed, and helpless, when its hour of decision most crucially affects the nation.

The chances are that Bevan will be disciplined, perhaps, but not expelled. Two great splits in a two-party system such as prevails in the United States and the British Isles would, after all, result in four parties—the beginning of a "splinter" government.

Leftists To Smear Graham

Angel and I share a friendship with and respect for Ruth and Billy Graham. The four of us had lunch together today and, while this is fresh in my mind, I want to prepare you for something.

Last spring, for twelve magnificent weeks, Dr. Billy introduced Christ to seventeen million Britishers.

Even the skeptical London reporters, prepared to impale him on their sharpened pencils, praised him.

A tall, lean lad with a fresh scrubbed look who knew where he was going . . . was showing others the way.

It all happened so suddenly, the groundswell of enthusiasm, that it caught the Communists and their kindred completely off guard.

They will not be caught off guard again.

This year, from March 20 until August 1, there'll be another Billy Graham Crusade for Christ in the largest stadiums in western Europe.

Twice the scope of last year's campaign.

This is not a political mission, but a purely spiritual one.

As last year, whenever anybody asked political questions in parliament or in the pubs or the trams of England, Dr. Billy would reply, "I did not come here to talk about politics. I came here to talk about Christ."

Yet, the forces now aligning themselves against him include a faction which is readily recognized by the red ruffles on its policies . . . and the Communists, who fear a spiritual revival more than anything . . .

I have irrefutable evidence that representatives of this conspiracy to discredit Billy Graham are presently in the United States — have been here since last November — and that they are searching news morgues for every statement Billy has ever made which could possibly be used against him in Britain.

To try to hang him with his own out-of-context quotes is one thing. Quite another is the avowed plan of this cowardly clique to use vicious untruths about Billy's personal life and habits often enough and loud enough so that the big lie will eventually drown out the big Truth which he tells.

Billy Graham, from his precarious pinnacle, has become a symbol of decency rising resolutely above our animal jungle.

He recognizes the awesomeness of this responsibility.

He speaks with increasing frequency these days about dying . . . about hoping that the Lord will remove him from our midst before any action of his might lead anyone of us astray.

Billy is part martyr. All crusaders are.

Many times we who recognize his responsibility have prayed that he will not stub his toe.

I don't think he will.

The legions of darkness are presently arraying themselves to turn back his spiritual invasion of western Europe.

But with God's help, the lad with the slingshot of righteousness and the pebble of Truth can do it again.

TRYING TO TAKE HIS MIND OFF THE FOOD

False Statements

The United States is the most difficult nation in the world in which to keep a secret, especially if it be an official secret. That was once comparatively unimportant, for there were few matters within the purview of government to merit secrecy. But nowadays it is of vital importance that some government operations be secretly conducted though a surprising number of responsible people scarcely seem to appreciate the fact.

Congressional investigations, probing reporters and occasional government officials have riddled efforts to make the designation "top secret" effective. The only government agencies which have managed to make secrecy mean what it implies are the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the U. S. Secret Service and the Central Intelligence Agency. They have had to resort to extreme measures, which have been condemned by those who seek to be informed of everything that transpires of a governmental nature. But without such agencies, the United States would be a happy hunting ground for foreign agents of every description.

By their method of operations, they are able to obtain more information about subversive activity in the United States than the subversives have about government secrets.

Such incidents as the recent disclosure that several recanting Communists, who became government witnesses in important trials against persons charged with Communists connections, tend to upset confidence in the operation of secret agencies. The outstanding case is that of Harvey M. Matusow, whose confession that he has testified falsely in several trials and investigations has embarrassed the Department of Justice and other agencies which have used him as a government witness has led to allegations that he was a Communist "plant," and that his confessed false testimony was a Red plot to take advantage of the U. S. prejudice against spies, undercover operators and turncoats of every description.

The Matusow case has been so widely discussed that the public has become thoroughly confused as to whether Matusow lied in his first testimony or in his subsequent denials. The Department of Justice, which has had its fingers burned before on witnesses who had professed a change of front from communism, believes that Matusow may have made false statements on both occasions first in testifying to matters which were purely hearsay, though he swore to them as of his personal knowledge; second, in saying now that his first testimony was untrue, though he did not know in the first instance whether it was true or not.

The FBI has made a remarkable record in penetrating Communist organizations, which in turn have had little success at all in penetrating FBI secrets. The principal revelation of the activity of the agency headed by Director J. Edgar Hoover has come through testimony in numerous trials of informers who had become such trusted "members" of the Communist party in the U. S. that they knew all about its activities. This tactic resulted in conviction of 82 Red leaders — against but three acquittals.

The Secret Service has on occasion used similar methods in tracing counterfeiters and enemy agents within its jurisdiction. The Central Intelligence Agency frequently under fire from several quarters, has managed to obtain much secret information in foreign fields, pertaining particularly to Communist activity in Europe and Asia.

Their records may be considered for the most part remarkable in view of the ease with which Communists once penetrated into every sphere of interest in the United States, sometimes with the aid of high government officials.

In addition to the cases of Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White there is the case of Edwin S. Smith., one of the three original members of the National Labor Rleations Board who was subsequently identified by Louis Budenz, a former Communist who has been one of the government's most effective aides, as having been a member of the Communist party. Smith later invoked the Fifth Amendment before the McCarran Senate committee.

In view of the difficulty of getting evidence which will stand up in a court trial, the flip-flop tactics of few communist recanters should not be allowed to obscure the fact that secret agencies have done a tremendous job in disclosing subservice activities against this country both at home and abroad.

Surprise $20 Tax Reduction Forces Groups To Ad Lib

WASHINGTON — Caught short by the Democratic drive for a $20 income tax cut, pro and con pressure groups found time only for ad lib lobbying.

They consider the tax cut one of the year's top issues, they told Congressional Quarterly. But the bill reached a House vote before they had a chance to marshal their forces. Elaborate campaigns usually are executed when so much money and so many basic principles are at stake.

With no time to organize letter-writing campaigns and other grass roots pressures, these groups had to skip preliminaries and rely on direct lobbying—usually saved for late phases of a legislative struggle. They scurried to Capitol Hill to press their views on individual Congressmen, and inspired a brief rain of telegrams.

Both sides virtually conceded that the House would vote the tax cut, so lobby activity on that side of the Capitol served as a warm-up for the pay-off battle in the Senate. The Chamber of Commerce of the U. S., for example, polled Congressmen in an effort to plan its strategy.

Tax-cutters formulated their strategy late in the game. The tax reduction was attached to a relatively non-controversial administration bill to extend "temporary" corporation and excise tax rates one year beyond the scheduled March 31 expiration date.

Democratic leaders reasoned that the President would hesitate to veto the tax cut if the veto would cost the Treasury nearly $2 billion in fiscal 1956 excise and corporation taxes. The $20 tax cut would reduce fiscal 1956 revenue $815 million by allowing taxpayers to reduce their annual payments $20 for each personal exemption, effective Jan. 1, 1956.

Advocates of the reduction—led in the pressure sphere by Americans for Democratic Action and the Congress of Industrial Organizations — conceded that they would have a harder time pushing the measure through the Senate than the House. Opponents of the cut —led by the Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers — counted on the Senate to block the proposal.

The Senate Finance Committee shaped up as the initial battleground in the upper chamber. Losers in that engagement prepared to carry the fight to the Senate floor and finally to the Senate-House conference committee. Lobby stands were complicated slightly by efforts to compromise by postponing the effective date of the income tax cut to July 1, 1956.

Although not set for the tax clash as it developed, lobbies didn't hesitate on where they stood. Basic tax policies provided the answers.

ADA opposed 1954 tax relief because, it said, the benefits were concentrated in the upper income brackets. In agreement with the CIO, ADA believes tax cuts in lower brackets are more in line with the principle of taxation according to ability to pay, and provide greater stimulation to the economy.

The Chamber of Commerce said the proposed cut would lead to a "spiral of inflation." The Chamber and the NAM consistently have urged emphasis on tax relief for business and investors.

While the form of the 1955 tax cut proposal differs from unsuccessful Democratic efforts in 1954, basic principles of the issue are similar. In 1954, ADA and CIO favored bills and amendments to raise personal exemptions by $100 or more, while the Chamber and NAM were opposed. The lobbies hope the arguments they circulated at the grass roots last year will be remembered and applied in 1955.

The Chamber, NAM, ADA, and CIO all oppose the existing excise tax structure. ADA and CIO want reductions of rates and perhaps eventual elimination of all exices. The Chamber and NAM want excises eventually placed on a broader base, such as a general manufacturers levy, to replace taxes on individual items. ADA and CIO oppose any tax related to a general excise or sales levy, which they consider "regressive."

Spokesmen for individual industries engaged in perfunctory lobbying for reduction of excises, but realized they had little chance for success.

CIO favored extension of the 52 per cent corporation tax, scheduled for reduction to 47 per cent, for at least one year beyond March 31. The Chamber "reluctantly" endorsed the extension, although — like NAM — it believes rates are so high that investment is discouraged.

'Two Scholars'

New Orleans, La.

Editor, Morning World:

The recent Sunday edition of your paper carried a letter to the editor concerning "a study on communism and the churches" sponsored by the Fund for the Republic. The letter was signed Ralph Lord Roy and Paul A. Carter.

I do not dispute the right of these people to write the letter but it does strike me that the wording of the letter was of a strange color. For instance Messrs. Roy and Carter request "(1) Documented evidence of actual communist attempts to infiltrate the churches or make use of clergymen — Protestant, Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, or Jewish."

All this is very fine but let's read a bit further. They then ask for "(2) Examples of false and irresponsible charges of Communist influence on religion in America."

Is it not strange that these two scholars (I use the term rather loosely) should ask for documented evidence of actual Communist attempts to infiltrate the churches and then make the statement that they will accept any examples of false and irresponsible charges of Communist influence on religion in America? Does this mean the examples may be of hearsay or rumor and need not be documented?

I have come to the conclusion that the wording of the letter clearly indicates these two "scholars" have already revealed what their real opinion is on this subject.

Although coal produced 90 per cent of U. S. energy supplies in 1900, it now produces less than 30 per cent.

Only 1 per cent of the students who concentrate on English, history or social sciences in college will go into careers in those fields, a study made at the University of Michigan indicates.

Japanese industries produced $6,745,000 worth of armaments for U. S. troops in Japan during 1954, more than 99 per cent of it ammunition.

The United States issued its first three cent stamp in 1851.

Cowrie shells found in the Indian Ocean have been one of the world's most widely used forms of money.

U. S. men have a higher death rate from heart disease than those in most other countries, although the death rate for U. S. women from heart disease is about average.

There are varying theories about the origin of St. Valentine's Day —that it grew out of an old Roman festival, commemorates a third-century martyr or marks the date of the supposed mating of all birds.

U. S. farm families use about the same percentage of their incomes in the purchase of food as do city families, says the Twentieth Century Fund.

In 1940, one farm worker in the United States could produce enough food for 11 people, on the average. Today, with shorter hours he can produce enough for 18 people.

Sweden reports that a record 339,769 non-Scandinavians visited there in 1954, most from Western Germany (103,545) with Americans second (65,878).

Editorials

A Sunday Editorial

The struggle of man against nature sometimes eclipses and dwarfs the struggle of man against man. The elemental forces of nature have been tamed and harnessed in an almost infinitesimal way by man; yet a summer thunderstorm, according to our scientists, may generate far more energy than any H-bomb releases; and the summer sun pours more kilowatts of energy upon the earth in one day than man uses in a century.

On the eastern tip of the beautiful semi-tropical island of Hawaii, molten lava is spouting in jeweled fountains, and the earth shakes, and the natives flee for their lives, as fiery cascades invade the peaceful fields of sugar cane.

There is nothing that man can do, except to beat a retreat—to evacuate a district where nature has become temperamental and angry.

In our pride and conceit as human beings, perhaps we should pause once in a while to reflect upon the feebleness of our control over physical environment.

We cannot stop a blizzard, or a tornado, or a hurricane, or a typhoon, or an earthquake, or a disastrous flood, or a great drouth cycle, or a mighty storm at sea—or a volcano spouting lava from the fluid or superheated solid core of the earth.

We heat our buildings and automobiles against blizzards, give radar warnings of tornadoes and hurricanes and typhoons, construct homes and skyscrapers especially designed to resist earthquake damage, build great dams and diversion channels to mitigate floods, "seed" the clouds to get a little more rainfall in times of drouth, seek by better design and construction to build ships that will ride out the storms at sea—and evacuate zones of violent volcanic action.

All of these tactics on the part of man are defensive and evasive, fundamentally, although here and there is a little of the counter-offensive spirit, in a weak and feeble way.

We dwell upon the surface of a spinning planet, where, for the most part, nature is benign and friendly. Our planet is a pin-prick in the vast star-studded reaches of space—and every telescope we build, of greater magnitude, reveals to our eyes new giant pin-wheels of cosmic matter, in suns that dwarf our own to insignificance; peopled with their planetary systems and satellites.

The mocking-birds sing in the springtide, and dormant life awakes, and the soft spring rains fall, and the sunrise is a promise and a glory, and the sunset is beautiful, and green buds open; and life is glorious and good, from nature's standpoint.

Yet a relatively few miles above us are radiations from the cosmos, possibly fatal to all life on earth if unscreened. A blanket of atmosphere and a mysterious thin barrier protect us mercifully from these. And a relatively few miles beneath us is superheated matter, the magma of the earth's interior, ladled out white-hot in the immemorial past, aeons and aeons before man's advent, millions of years ago, miraculously cooling by minute degrees, to minimize the effects of earthquakes and volcanoes, and the rise and fall of mountain systems and the level of the oceans.

The moon arises, and it draws the tide; the moon sets, and the tide recedes. The earth spins on its axis, and revolves around the sun; and the sun and all our solar system move rapidly, hurtling through space, in accordance with laws that we seek to outline but as yet perhaps do not understand in their tremendous scope and sweep.

On our earth are a million life forms, from the one-celled primitive amoeba up to man; and, within man, a million cells functioning in small coordinated groups to produce will and power and intelligence, ability to cope, in a way, with environment.

The simplest method to explain all this is to quote the Psalmist: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handywork."

Poet Of The Heart

Macaulay, in his "Essay on Milton," develops the theme that as civilization advances, poetry almost necessarily declines.

"The most wonderful and splendid proof of a genius is a great poem produced in a civilized age," he says. "He who, in an enlightened and literary society, aspires to be a great poet, must first become a little child. He must unlearn much of that knowledge which has perhaps constituted hitherto his chief title to superiority.

"If these reasons be just, no poet has ever triumphed over greater difficulties than the learned Milton."

And if these reasonings be just in Milton's case, they might apply with equal effect to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, whose 148th birthday anniversary was observed February 27. Longfellow was a scholar in the field of literature and language, with a Harvard professorship and a background of foreign study and travel.

Yet the poetry for which he is remembered and revered is simple verse of the heart rather than of the mind. No American poet has been so widely popular nor more dearly loved than this kindly, white-bearded man whose verse can be understood by all sorts and conditions of men. He dealt, as did Milton, with the universal emotions and experiences known so well by humankind. That is why, in almost every school in the land children still are reciting "The Children's Hour," "Psalm of Life," "The Rainy Day," "The Bridge," "The Day Is Done," "The Arrow and the Song," "The Village Blacksmith" or parts of "Hiawatha" and "Evangeline."

British Labor Party Split

Party splits are nothing new in a government that elects its officials. The Democratic and the Republican parties in the United States are split today as wide as a barn door, and the cleavages seem to be widening in the GOP, which controls the White House, but fundamentally and potentially they are just as wide between the left-wing Adlai Stevenson faction and the southern Democratic conservatives.

In Britain, there is a rapidly growing cleavage between the "radical" and "conservative" factions of the Labor Party—both of which, in fact, are left-wing to an extreme. Aneurin Bevan, spokesman for the ultra-socialist, pro-communist faction, has been agitating a dangerous political issue—the possible use of nuclear bombs by United States Air Force units based in the British Isles, as against Russia. Sir Hartley Shawcross, a "moderite" in the Labor Party, has accused Bevan of indulging in reckless and provocative statements and "doing grave harm to the party."

Clement Attlee, the British Labor leader, has backed the decision of Prime Minister Churchill not only to harbor American Air Force bases in the islands, with their potentiality of delivering nuclear weapons, but also to build H-bombs in Britain as a stop to Soviet aggression.

The challenge of Bevan has reached a point where leaders of the Labor Party are talking seriously of expelling this firebrand extremist.

The alternative to party splits is a "splinter system," such as prevails in France, where government is hogtied and pig-stringed, and helpless, when its hour of decision most crucially affects the nation.

The chances are that Bevan will be disciplined, perhaps, but not expelled. Two great splits in a two-party system such as prevails in the United States and the British Isles would, after all, result in four parties—the beginning of a "splinter" government.

This year, from March 20 until August 1, there'll be another Billy Graham Crusade for Christ in the largest stadiums in western Europe.

Twice the scope of last year's campaign.

This is not a political mission, but a purely spiritual one.

As last year, whenever anybody asked political questions in parliament or in the pubs or the trams of England, Dr. Billy would reply, "I did not come here to talk about politics. I came here to talk about Christ."

Yet, the forces now aligning themselves against him include a faction which is readily recognized by the red ruffles on its policies . . . and the Communists, who fear a spiritual revival more than anything. . .

I have irrefutable evidence that representatives of this conspiracy to discredit Billy Graham are presently in the United States — have been here since last November — and that they are searching news morgues for every statement Billy has ever made which could possibly be used against him in Britain.

To try to hang him with his own out-of-context quotes is one thing. Quite another is the avowed plan of this cowardly clique to use vicious untruths about Billy's personal life and habits often enough and loud enough so that the big lie will eventually drown out the big Truth which he tells.

Billy Graham, from his precarious pinnacle, has become a symbol of decency rising resolutely above our animal jungle.

He recognizes the awesomeness of this responsibility.

He speaks with increasing frequency these days about dying . . . about hoping that the Lord will remove him from our midst before any action of his might lead anyone of us astray.

Billy is part martyr. All crusaders are.

Many times we who recognize his responsibility have prayed that he will not stub his toe.

I don't think he will.

The legions of darkness are presently arraying themselves to turn back his spiritual invasion of western Europe.

But with God's help, the lad with the slingshot of righteousness and the pebble of Truth can do it again.

IN WASHINGTON

False Statements

The United States is the most difficult nation in the world in which to keep a secret, especially if it be an official secret. That was once comparatively unimportant, for there were few matters within the purview of government to merit secrecy. But nowadays it is of vital importance that some government operations be secretly conducted though a surprising number of responsible people scarcely seem to appreciate the fact.

Congressional investigations, probing reporters and occasional government officials have riddled efforts to make the designation "top secret" effective. The only government agencies which have managed to make secrecy mean what it implies are the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the U. S. Secret Service and the Central Intelligence Agency. They have had to resort to extreme measures, which have been condemned by those who seek to be informed of everything that transpires of a governmental nature. But without such agencies, the United States would be a happy hunting ground for foreign agents of every description.

By their method of operations, they are able to obtain more information about subversive activity in the United States than the subversives have about government secrets.

Such incidents as the recent disclosure that several recanting Communists, who became government witnesses in important trials against persons charged with Communists connections, tend to upset confidence in the operation of secret agencies. The outstanding case is that of Harvey M. Matusow, whose confession that he has testified falsely in several trials and investigations has embarrassed the Department of Justice and other agencies which have used him as a government witness has led to allegations that he was a Communist "plant," and that his confessed false testimony was a Red plot to take advantage of the U. S. prejudice against spies, undercover operators and turncoats of every description.

The Matusow case has been so widely discussed that the public has become thoroughly confused as to whether Matusow lied in his first testimony or in his subsequent denials. The Department of Justice, which has had its fingers burned before on witnesses who had professed a change of front from communism, believes that Matusow may have made false statements on both occasions first in testifying to matters which were purely hearsay, though he swore to them as of his personal knowledge; second, in saying now that his first testimony was untrue, though he did not know in the first instance whether it was true or not.

The FBI has made a remarkable record in penetrating Communist organizations, which in turn have had little success at all in penetrating FBI secrets. The principal revelation of the activity of the agency headed by Director J. Edgar Hoover has come through testimony in numerous trials of informers who had become such trusted "members" of the Communist party in the U. S. that they knew all about its activities. This tactic resulted in conviction of 82 Red leaders — against but three acquittals.

The Secret Service has on occasion used similar methods in tracing counterfeiters and enemy agents within its jurisdiction. The Central Intelligence Agency frequently under fire from several quarters, has managed to obtain much secret information in foreign fields, pertaining particularly to Communist activity in Europe and Asia.

Their records may be considered for the most part remarkable in view of the ease with which Communists once penetrated into every sphere of interest in the United States, sometimes with the aid of high government officials.

In addition to the cases of Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White there is the case of Edwin S. Smith,, one of the three original members of the National Labor Rleations Board who was subsequently identified by Louis Budenz, a former Communist who has been one of the government's most effective aides, as having been a member of the Communist party. Smith later invoked the Fifth amendment before the McCarran Senate committee.

In view of the difficulty of getting evidence which will stand up in a court trial, the flip-flop tactics of few communist recanters should not be allowed to obscure the fact that secret agencies have done a tremendous job in disclosing subservice activities against this country both at home and abroad.

'Two Scholars'

New Orleans, La.

Editor, Morning World:

The recent Sunday edition of your paper carried a letter to the editor concerning "a study on communism and the churches" sponsored by the Fund for the Republic. The letter was signed Ralph Lord Roy and Paul A. Carter.

I do not dispute the right of these people to write the letter but it does strike me that the wording of the letter was of a strange color. For instance Messrs. Roy and Carter request "(1) Documented evidence of actual communist attempts to infiltrate the churches or make use of clergymen — Protestant, Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, or Jewish."

All this is very fine but let's read a bit further. They then ask for "(2) Examples of false and irresponsible charges of Communist influence on religion in America."

Is it not strange that these two scholars (I use the term rather loosely) should ask for documented evidence of actual Communist attempts to infiltrate the churches and then make the statement that they will accept any examples of false and irresponsible charges of Communist influence on religion in America? Does this mean the examples may be of hearsay or rumor and need not be documented?

I have come to the conclusion that the wording of the letter clearly indicates these two "scholars" have already revealed what their real opinion is on this subject.

Congressional Quarterly

Surprise $20 Tax Reduction Forces Groups To Ad Lib

WASHINGTON — Caught short by the Democratic drive for a $20 income tax cut, pro and con pressure groups found time only for ad lib lobbying.

They consider the tax cut one of the year's top issues, they told Congressional Quarterly. But the bill reached a House vote before they had a chance to marshal their forces. Elaborate campaigns usually are executed when so much money and so many basic principles are at stake.

With no time to organize letter-writing campaigns and other grass roots pressures, these groups had to skip preliminaries and rely on direct lobbying—usually saved for late phases of a legislative struggle. They scurried to Capitol Hill to press their views on individual Congressmen, and inspired a brief rain of telegrams.

Both sides virtually conceded that the House would vote the tax cut, so lobby activity on that side of the Capitol served as a warm-up for the pay-off battle in the Senate. The Chamber of Commerce of the U. S., for example, polled Congressmen in an effort to plan its strategy.

Tax-cutters formulated their strategy late in the game. The tax reduction was attached to a relatively non-controversial administration bill to extend "temporary" corporation and excise tax rates one year beyond the scheduled March 31 expiration date.

Democratic leaders reasoned that the President would hesitate to veto the tax cut if the veto would cost the Treasury nearly $2 billion in fiscal 1956 excise and corporation taxes. The $20 tax cut would reduce fiscal 1956 revenue $815 million by allowing taxpayers to reduce their annual payments $20 for each personal exemption, effective Jan. 1, 1956.

Advocates of the reduction—led in the pressure sphere by Americans for Democratic Action and the Congress of Industrial Organizations — conceded that they would have a harder time pushing the measure through the Senate than the House. Opponents of the cut —led by the Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers — counted on the Senate to block the proposal.

The Senate Finance Committee shaped up as the initial battleground in the upper chamber. Losers in that engagement prepared to carry the fight to the Senate floor and finally to the Senate-House conference committee. Lobby stands were complicated slightly by efforts to compromise by postponing the effective date of the income tax cut to July 1, 1956.

Although not set for the tax clash as it developed, lobbies didn't hesitate on where they stood. Basic tax policies provided the answers.

ADA opposed 1954 tax relief because, it said, the benefits were concentrated in the upper income brackets. In agreement with the CIO, ADA believes tax cuts in lower brackets are more in line with the principle of taxation according to ability to pay, and provide greater stimulation to the economy.

The Chamber of Commerce said the proposed cut would lead to a "spiral of inflation." The Chamber and the NAM consistently have urged emphasis on tax relief for business and investors.

While the form of the 1955 tax cut proposal differs from unsuccessful Democratic efforts in 1954, basic principles of the issue are similar. In 1954, ADA and CIO favored bills and amendments to raise personal exemptions by $100 or more, while the Chamber and NAM were opposed. The lobbies hope the arguments they circulated at the grass roots last year will be remembered and applied in 1955.

The Chamber, NAM, ADA, and CIO all oppose the existing excise tax structure. ADA and CIO want reductions of rates and perhaps eventual elimination of all exices. The Chamber and NAM want excises eventually placed on a broader base, such as a general manufacturers levy, to replace taxes on individual items. ADA and CIO oppose any tax related to a general excise or sales levy, which they consider "regressive."

Spokesmen for individual industries engaged in perfunctory lobbying for reduction of excises, but realized they had little chance for success.

CIO favored extension of the 52 per cent corporation tax, scheduled for reduction to 47 per cent, for at least one year beyond March 31. The Chamber "reluctantly" endorsed the extension, although — like NAM — it believes rates are so high that investment is discouraged.

'Which Way Shall We Turn To Save Our Lives?'

Churchill Voices Uneasy Fear Of Bomb-Scarred Britain

YOUNG BUSINESS LEADER — A product of Monroe's educational system, Kurl Stevenson (above) is becoming a leader in the textile industry as assistant secretary and treasurer for Hornwood Warp Knitting Corporation, Wadesboro, N. C., and he turned author recently when his story, "Costing Tricot Fabrics for Pricing Purposes," was published in the National Association of Cost Accountants Bulletin, a monthly publication. Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. "Mike" Stevenson, 318 North Third street, graduated from L. S. U. in 1938 after earlier graduating from Northeast Center of L. S. U., the junior college which later became the senior institution, Northeast Louisiana State. He obtained his elementary and high school education here.

LONDON, March 5 (AP)—"Which way shall we turn to save our lives?"

Prime Minister Churchill voiced the question of the nuclear age this week and gave his own answer with the announcement Britain is building its own H-bombs to help keep Russia afraid of war.

The news has given rise to uneasy fear in bomb-scarred Britain.

It has split the opposition Labor party wide open on H-bomb policy, with Leftwinger Aneurin Bevan again differing with the party leaders.

It has led to intense speculation that Churchill is personally trying to set up a British-American partnership in developing H-bombs and guided missiles to deliver them.

It has sparked what looks like a Russian propaganda campaign to intensify America's uneasiness about disclosing nuclear weapons secrets to the British.

A great national debate and talkfest raged tonight around the Churchill speech. In pubs, homes, political meetings, wherever Britons met, the H-bomb was a prime topic. A common talking point was that Soviet bombers are only a few hours flying time from British cities.

In spite of the fears, Churchill's policy and his dramatic exhortation—"Never flinch, never weary, never despair"—clearly had won him the backing of the majority.

"If it is to be a deterrent, let it be really effective in order to avoid the possibility of a dreadful clash," said a Laborite—former War Minister Emanuel Shinwell.

Former Prime Minster Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition party, already had emphasized his belief that a stockpile of H-bombs is essential in the absence of international disarmament. Said Attlee: "It's no good going to the Kremlin and thinking you can read them the Sermon on the Mount. You have to talk to them straight."

Bevan has not argued against building the bomb. His line has been that Britain should pledge not to use the bomb unless an enemy uses one against the British first.

"Suicidal, almost criminal," moderate Laborite Sir Hartley Shawcross said of Bevan's proposal.

Bevan had the support of about one-fifth of the party strength in the House of Commons, including ardent pacificists.

Legislator Emrys Hughes voiced the view of pacifist Laborites with the words:

"I would prefer to see Russian communism in this country rather than see the country become a mass of radioactive ruin. The great majority of the people would prefer any kind of system rather than suicide."

In the wake of Churchill's disclosures there were good reasons to believe he is striving for close cooperation with America in developing nuclear weapons.

Churchill is understood to hold the view that as matters now stand there is a wasteful duplication in the two Allies' defense programs. In the British view both programs might be speeded if secrets were exchanged.

American law prevents any exchange now.

The government refuses official comment but senior officials do not hide the British intention to press for a new understanding with Washington.

Sir William Penney, Britain's director of nuclear weapons research, is reported planning a trip to Washington soon to try for an easing of the restrictions.

The Soviets' disclosure this week that Bruno Pontecorvo, Italian-born British atomic scientist, was at work in the Soviet Union looked like a bid to inflame American uneasiness about British security.

Pontecorvo defected to the Russians in 1950, but the Kremlin waited until yesterday to confirm that fact. He spoke of respect for his former British colleagues.

Churchill said in his speech Britain's allies would be bound to listen more attentively to her views if she possessed an H-bomb arsenal.

Later in the week the Prime Minister said it seemed likely the U.S. Air Force would strike back quickly without prior consultation, if an enemy dropped H-bombs that obliterated London.

In response to pressing questions from uneasy Laborites, however, Churchill made it clear that the British-American agreement calls for consultation in most circumstances before the U.S. Air Force takes off from bases in Britain on any A-bomb or H-bomb mission.

Miss. Legislature

Surtax Measure Killed In Senate; Seek Substitute

JACKSON, Miss., March 5 (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee tossed out the controversial 20 per cent "surtax" increase and substituted other means of raising money to help equalize Negro and white schools.

But the fate of the program still is in doubt.

Sen. Earl Evans of Canton, committee chairman, said the substitutes would be considered Monday but declined to predict Senate action. He did say they were "received very well by the committee."

But Rep. Hilton Waits of Washington County chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, viewed the future darkly: "It sure looks black. I don't know whether the House would accept a compromise now that it has passed the surtax."

The discarded, House-passed surtax would have hit eight present taxes to bring in 5½ million dollars during the next 15 months.

The committee suggestions would reduce the program cost by one million and raise 4½ million dollars to offset the needed 5½ million.

Evans said the committee would begin revamping the program as soon as possible.

The million-dollar cut would come from reduction to $125 of the $200 per teacher unit per year allocated for salary supplements and reduction to $15,000 of the $20,000 allocated to counties for administrative expenses.

Evans said the reductions would not hurt the program.

Money-raising bills suggested as substitutes for the surtax would:

1. Raise franchise taxes from $1.50 to $2 permanently on each $1,000 of assessed value. This would produce $500,000 a year.

2. Levy a 20 per cent surtax on income tax for 15 months, excluding manufacturers, to produce two and one-half million dollars.

3. Levy a one per cent tax on commercial rentals and a one half per cent tax on documentary transfers. The two would produce 1¾ million dollars a year.

To offset another six million dollars the program would need, Evans suggested withholding until Jan. 1, 1956 accruals of $12 per white child and $15 per Negro child per year for school construction.

"That shouldn't prevent any school district from starting its building program," Evans said.

U. S. And Britain Long Way From Swapping Secrets

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Top U.S. officials believe a greater exchange of atomic information with Britain would be profitable to both countries. But they are a long way from swapping secrets about how to manufacture hydrogen bombs or other weapons.

Informants said today that if trading of hydrogen bomb information is what the British are aiming for now they are heading for disappointment. However, they also said that realistic British officials are undoubtedly too familiar with the U.S. attitude to be really optimistic about the chances for such a swap.

The fact is that the United States, Britain and Canada have been slowly rebuilding a solid but limited cooperation on atomic matters since the low point of several years ago, when one of Britain's top atomic scientists, Klaus Fuchs, proved to be a spy for Russia and another, Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, disappeared behind the Iron Curtain.

In keeping with this cooperation, a British military team has been invited here to witness test explosions of atomic weapons at the Nevada proving rounds. A Canadian team of army, navy and air force atomic experts also will attend the firings, which are known as military evaluation tests.

There is some reason to believe that when the British invitation—never officially announced here—was issued by the U.S. Defense Department, officials expected that only military men would attend. However, the British government, in an apparent maneuver to increase the importance of the operation and press is case for greater exchange of atomic information, placed the group in charge of Sir William Penney, its leading expert on nuclear weapons. He is due here with his team in the immediate future.

Penney's mission became a kind of international mystery this week. Word leaded out from London that he was going somewhere. The destination finally proved to be Washington.

The mystery was a needless product of British-American misunderstanding and perhaps mishandling. At any rate the two governments could not agree on an annoucement, presumably because they could not agree on how to state publicly the importance of the mission. By contrast it was announced on March 1 that a Canadian observer team would view the Nevada explosion.

Checks, Balances Is Supported For Education Funds

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A statewide organization announced its support today of proposals for checks and balances on state Department of Education spending.

Mrs. Paul W. McIlhenny, temporary chairman of the committee for action on the Peabody survey, said the organization is backing Rep. J. Marshall Brown's proposal for a $40,000 appropriation to pay for a board of education financial and clerical staff.

Mrs. McIlhenny said the committee was formed in January to push for action on the Peabody survey, a study of Louisiana education needs completed in 1954.

She said the committee also would back Sen. Louis Mahoney's proposal that Department of Education records be subjected to an audit.

The action group, she said, wants to see that the survey does not "become just another book on the shelves of the libraries of the state, but that it be used as an intelligent, guiding force in improving our schools."

Mrs. McIlhenny said the board of education needs money to pay for a check on department records and a staff of its own to handle disbursement of the $140,000 million annual education budget.

Advance Gifts In Red Cross Drive Is At 47 Per Cent

Harry H. Hudson, chairman of the advance gifts division of the 1955 American Red Cross fund-membership drive, has announced that his group already has reached 47 per cent of the goal. The goal set for the advanced gifts group is $19,500.

Hudson also urged all worker to complete their soliciations and meet for the final report Friday at 3 p.m.

American law prevents any exchange now.

The government refuses official comment but senior officials do not hide the British intention to press for a new understanding with Washington.

Sir William Penney, Britain's director of nuclear weapons research, is reported planning a trip to Washington soon to try for an easing of the restrictions.

The Soviets' disclosure this week that Bruno Pontecorvo, Italian-born British atomic scientist, was at work in the Soviet Union looked like a bid to inflame American uneasiness about British security.

Pontecorvo defected to the Russians in 1950, but the Kremlin waited until yesterday to confirm that fact. He spoke of respect for his former British colleagues.

Churchill said in his speech Britain's allies would be bound to listen more attentively to her views if she possessed an H-bomb arsenal.

Later in the week the Prime Minister said it seemed likely the U.S. Air Force would strike back quickly without prior consultation, if an enemy dropped H-bombs that obliterated London.

In response to pressing questions from uneasy Laborites, however, Churchill made it clear that the British-American agreement calls for consultation in most circumstances before the U.S. Air Force takes off from bases in Britain on any A-bomb or H-bomb mission.

Surtax Measure Killed In Senate; Seek Substitute

JACKSON, Miss., March 5 (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee tossed out the controversial 20 per cent "surtax" increase and substituted other means of raising money to help equalize Negro and white schools.

But the fate of the program still is in doubt.

Sen. Earl Evans of Canton, committee chairman, said the substitutes would be considered Monday but declined to predict Senate action. He did say they were "received very well by the committee."

But Rep. Hilton Waits of Washington County chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, viewed the future darkly: "It sure looks black. I don't know whether the House would accept a compromise now that it has passed the surtax."

The discarded, House-passed surtax would have hit eight present taxes to bring in 5½ million dollars during the next 15 months.

The committee suggestions would reduce the program cost by one million and raise 4½ million dollars to offset the needed 5½ million.

Evans said the committee would begin revamping the program as soon as possible.

The million-dollar cut would come from reduction to $125 of the $200 per teacher unit per year allocated for salary supplements and reduction to $15,000 of the $20,000 allocated to counties for administrative expenses.

Evans said the reductions would not hurt the program.

Money-raising bills suggested as substitutes for the surtax would:

1. Raise franchise taxes from $1.50 to $2 permanently on each $1,000 of assessed value. This would produce $500,000 a year.

2. Levy a 20 per cent surtax on income tax for 15 months, excluding manufacturers, to produce two and one-half million dollars.

3. Levy a one per cent tax on commercial rentals and a one half per cent tax on documentary transfers. The two would produce 1¾ million dollars a year.

To offset another six million dollars the program would need, Evans suggested withholding until Jan. 1, 1956 accruals of $12 per white child and $15 per Negro child per year for school construction.

"That shouldn't prevent any school district from starting its building program," Evans said.

U. S. And Britain Long Way From Swapping Secrets

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Top U.S. officials believe a greater exchange of atomic information with Britain would be profitable to both countries. But they are a long way from swapping secrets about how to manufacture hydrogen bombs or other weapons.

Informants said today that if trading of hydrogen bomb information is what the British are aiming for now they are heading for disappointment. However, they also said that realistic British officials are undoubtedly too familiar with the U.S. attitude to be really optimistic about the chances for such a swap.

The fact is that the United States, Britain and Canada have been slowly rebuilding a solid but limited cooperation on atomic matters since the low point of several years ago, when one of Britain's top atomic scientists, Klaus Fuchs, proved to be a spy for Russia and another, Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, disappeared behind the Iron Curtain.

In keeping with this cooperation, a British military team has been invited here to witness test explosions of atomic weapons at the Nevada proving rounds. A Canadian team of army, navy and air force atomic experts also will attend the firings, which are known as military evaluation tests.

There is some reason to believe that when the British invitation—never officially announced here—was issued by the U.S. Defense Department, officials expected that only military men would attend. However, the British government, in an apparent maneuver to increase the importance of the operation and press is case for greater exchange of atomic information, placed the group in charge of Sir William Penney, its leading expert on nuclear weapons. He is due here with his team in the immediate future.

Penney's mission became a kind of international mystery this week. Word leaded out from London that he was going somewhere. The destination finally proved to be Washington.

The mystery was a needless product of British-American misunderstanding and perhaps mishandling. At any rate the two governments could not agree on an annoucement, presumably because they could not agree on how to state publicly the importance of the mission. By contrast it was announced on March 1 that a Canadian observer team would view the Nevada explosion.

Checks, Balances Is Supported For Education Funds

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A statewide organization announced its support today of proposals for checks and balances on state Department of Education spending.

Mrs. Paul W. McIlhenny, temporary chairman of the committee for action on the Peabody survey, said the organization is backing Rep. J. Marshall Brown's proposal for a $40,000 appropriation to pay for a board of education financial and clerical staff.

Mrs. McIlhenny said the committee was formed in January to push for action on the Peabody survey, a study of Louisiana education needs completed in 1954.

She said the committee also would back Sen. Louis Mahoney's proposal that Department of Education records be subjected to an audit.

The action group, she said, wants to see that the survey does not "become just another book on the shelves of the libraries of the state, but that it be used as an intelligent, guiding force in improving our schools."

Mrs. McIlhenny said the board of education needs money to pay for a check on department records and a staff of its own to handle disbursement of the $140,000 million annual education budget.

Vet Officer Held Following Death Of Friend's Wife

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 5—UP — Joe Evert Austin, 29-year-old VFW official who was jailed after the wife of another member died as he took her home, took a second unsuccessful lie detector test Saturday.

Austin offered to repeat the story of how Mrs. Dorothy Williams, a pretty 28-year-old brunette, died on the way home from a VFW party.

Homicide detectives said he gave conflicting answers to questions about the death.

M. W. Myatt, state crime bureau polygraph expert, said Austin was in such a high state of nervous tension, it was impossible to obtain a positive reaction. Austin showed similar nervousness when he took his first test Friday.

Mrs. Williams died at a hospital Friday of a skull fracture. Austin told police she fell from her automobile as he was driving her home from a VFW, dance. Her husband, Oscar P. Williams, was out of town.

The autopsy report said the head wound was probably caused by a blunt instrument.

"The blow definitely was not caused by a flat surface, such as falling on the pavement," Homicide Capt. Ted Baughman said.

Besides that he said the upper torso showed no pavement burns or bruises, although Mrs. Williams legs were scratched.

District Library News

The Louisiana Reading Festival must be a large event if the results of circulation in the Morehouse parish library are any indication, Mrs. Lou Venia G. Jones, librarian, has pointed out. During the month of February there was a 17½ per cent increase over the same month last year. Approximately 100 new borrowers were registered this month, the librarian said.

There have been a great demand for and much interest in plays and the theatre in Bastrop lately. Bill Harp, a native of Bastrop, who has been one of the directors for a New York production company is home on vacation and is directing "Our Town" by Wilder, which will be given March 10 and 11.

The erection of a new library building for the Bonita branch was begun two weeks ago. It will be ready for occupancy on May 1. The building is being financed by a local citizen, but built according to library specifications.

With snakes coming out of winter quarters into the warm sunshine, the boys of East Carroll are asking the parish library for books on reptiles. Usually the books are wanted to identify a particular snake that was seen on the banks of the lake or one of the ditches or bayous of the parish. Fathers sometimes accompany their sons into the library and help in trying to identify a snake. "The First Book of Snakes" by Hoke for the lower elementary grades is one of the most popular as it gives information in simple form with pictures which the children can understand. One father who read and studied the book with his small son said that he learned considerable about reptiles from this book.

Though there are not as many alligators in East Carroll as snakes, books on alligators and crocodiles are in demand right now. The children are also borrowing books on birds.

A book taster talk at the Rotary Club; a book review of Seven Steeples, by Margaret Henrichsen, a woman who became a Methodist minister after forty; and an interview as guest on Vicksburg's WQBC Bookshelf program, are some of the recent Reading Festival activities of the Madison Parish librarian, Miss Mary Moore Mitchell.

Suggestive reading lists slanted toward men's interests and called "Especially for Men" were distributed to Rotary members in Tallulah and are available for other men at the library. Lists of religious books, fiction about ministers, Biblical fiction, and reminiscences of ministers and ministers' families were given to members of the Methodist Guild and a Presbyterian Circle and are also available to others who wish them.

A parade on the library's tenth birthday was a special highlight of the Festival. Led by the Tallulah High band, it also included numerous elementary school children dressed as storybook characters, a group of Boy Scouts, and pretty high school girls in new cars loaned by local dealers. Mrs. Har Osbourne, a past P - TA president, promoted the parade at school and interested the children in participating, and Mrs. Ben Jordan of the library staff, was in charge of car decorations and many other details.

During this spring readers in Richland have been particularly interested in biographies and requests for this type of reading have been numerous, Mrs. Lellah H. Lyle has said. The library has many new biographies for these readers. Pearl Buck's "My Several Worlds"; Ellen Glasgow's "The Woman Within"; John Leighton Stuart's "Fifty Years in China"; Alben Barkley's "That Reminds Me" - Yen Liang's "Daughter of the Khans"; Aldrich's "Gertrude Lawrence as Mrs. A"; Thompson's "Assignment Churchill"; Grantland Rice's "The Tumult and the Shouting"; Bob Hope's "Have Tux, Will Travel", and Hagedorn's story of Albert Schweitzer, "Prophet in the Wilderness".

Several men who have never had any great urge to use the library have been eager to read James Bishop's "The Day Lincoln Was Shot." Western fans have found Myer's Doc Holliday" an entertaining account of one of the "Bad" men of bygone days in the West, as well as Loomis "Holsters and Heroes" to their liking. Biographies are always in demand. And not only the newer publications, some of the old ones will be most rewarding to the reader.

The Louisiana reading festival has had a definite effect upon the circulation of books at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. During the month of February 25,501 books were borrowed from the four branches of the Library. This is almost 2,000 more books than were borrowed in February of last year. Another encouraging sign is that more than 10 per cent of the total circulation was adult non - fiction, which shows that people are eagerly reading books which help them with the problems of their everyday life, Miss Frances Flanders, Parish Iberian has announced.

During the months of February 300 different people saw one or more of the 15 films shown or arranged for by the Ouachita Parish Public Library. These films were seen by church groups, school faculties, students, garden clubs and the civil air patrol.

Don't forget the list for Lenten reading available at all the branches of the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Polio Vaccine Being Distributed Throughout U. S.

NEW YORK, March 5—UP—Nationwide distribution of enough Salk anti-polio vaccine to vaccinate nine million children is well underway, it was disclosed Saturday.

The distribution by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is in anticipation of a favorable report from the scientific evaluation center established to measure the results of the test vaccination of 440,000 children last spring.

In addition to the nine million vaccinations purchased with $9 million in March of Dimes funds, pharmaceutical manufacturers are piling up a considerable stock for the use of private physicians—also in the belief that the scientific evaluation report will be favorable.

The evaluation center at the University of Michigan, directed by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., is expected to make its report soon after April 1. It will be an elaborate report, designed to answer many complex questions with scientific precision.

No one aside from Dr. Francis and his associates has any indication of what these answers will be, and Dr. Francis has taken elaborate precautions against "leaks." But scientists who have been close to the development of the vaccine from the beginning were positive that the report could not be entirely unfavorable.

An entirely unfavorable report would be that the vaccine had no protective value against polio whatever. The elaborate and large-scale tests of Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who developed the vaccine at the University of Pittsburgh, first in animals and then in human beings, all but ruled out such a sad end to man's greatest hope so far for licking polio.

The report has to show that the vaccine is effective to some extent, these scientists believe, and the big question it will answer is how effective. If it effectively protects against polio even for one "polio season," (one polio season is only one summer) it could eventually wipe out the disease if all children were vaccinated once a year.

Plans For Two Highway Bills In May Announced

NEW ORLEANS March 5 —UP— State Sen. Theodore (Ted) Hickey said today two bills to trigger Louisiana's highway imporvement program will be introduced at the May session of the Legislature.

Hickey said the first would seek an appropriation of $25 million from the general fund to start the highway program. The other would be a proposed constiutional amendment to set up the highway program in the future.

Hickey said "We don't want a special constitutional amendment election as that would cost extra money."

He said the amendment would ask for $50 million a year for 10 years.

The Fifth District State Senator said the $25 million appropriation would mark the first step in the 10-year program to build better roads as recommended jointly by the Automotive Safety Foundation and the Louisiana highway department.

The evaluation center at the University of Michigan, directed by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., is expected to make its report soon after April 1. It will be an elaborate report, designed to answer many complex questions with scientific precision.

No one aside from Dr. Francis and his associates has any indication of what these answers will be, and Dr. Francis has taken elaborate precautions against "leaks." But scientists who have been close to the development of the vaccine from the beginning were positive that the report could not be entirely unfavorable.

An entirely unfavorable report would be that the vaccine had no protective value against polio whatever. The elaborate and large-scale tests of Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who developed the vaccine at the University of Pittsburgh, first in animals and then in human beings, all but ruled out such a sad end to man's greatest hope so far for licking polio.

The report has to show that the vaccine is effective to some extent, these scientists believe, and the big question it will answer is how effective. If it effectively protects against polio even for one "polio season," (one polio season is only one summer) it could eventually wipe out the disease if all children were vaccinated once a year.

Plans For Two Highway Bills In May Announced

NEW ORLEANS March 5 —UP— State Sen. Theodore (Ted) Hickey said today two bills to trigger Louisiana's highway imporvement program will be introduced at the May session of the Legislature.

Hickey said the first would seek an appropriation of $25 million from the general fund to start the highway program. The other would be a proposed constitutional amendment to set up the highway program in the future.

Hickey said "We don't want a special constitutional amendment election as that would cost extra money."

He said the amendment would ask for $50 million a year for 10 years.

The Fifth District State Senator said the $25 million appropriation would mark the first step in the 10-year program to build better roads as recommended jointly by the Automotive Safety Foundation and the Louisiana highway department.

Vet Officer Held Following Death Of Friend's Wife

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 5—UP — Joe Evert Austin, 29-year-old VFW official who was jailed after the wife of another member died as he took her home, took a second unsuccessful lie detector test Saturday.

Austin offered to repeat the story of how Mrs. Dorothy Williams, a pretty 28-year-old brunette, died on the way home from a VFW party. Homicide detectives said he gave conflicting answers to questions about the death.

M. W. Myatt, state crime bureau polygraph expert, said Austin was in such a high state of nervous tension, it was impossible to obtain a positive reaction. Austin showed similar nervousness when he took his first test Friday.

Mrs. Williams died at a hospital Friday of a skull fracture. Austin told police she fell from her automobile as he was driving her home from a VFW, dance. Her husband, Oscar P. Williams, was out of town.

The autopsy report said the head wound was probably caused by a blunt instrument.

"The blow definitely was not caused by a flat surface, such as falling on the pavement," Homicide Capt. Ted Baughman said.

Besides that he said the upper torso showed no pavement burns or bruises, although Mrs. Williams legs were scratched.

Publisher Says Press Free, But Editors Are Not

NEW ORLEANS, March 5—UP—The publisher of the McComb, Miss., Enterprise-Journal, J. Oliver Emmerich, said today that freedom of the press does not mean freedom of an editor.

In an address at the closing session of the two-day meeting of the Southwest Journalism Congress, he said that "freedom of the press" means freedom of information, and does not mean freedom "of an editor to abuse."

Emmerich, speaking on "editorial Backbone," said newspapers hold a sort of "spiritual franchise" to operate in a community, though no legal franchise may be necessary to the publication of the paper.

"This spiritual franchise is based on an acceptance of a sense of responsibility to the community which the newspaper serves," he said.

Other speakers today on a faculty roundtable on teaching problems included E. L. Callihan, Southern Methodist University; DeWitt Reddick, University of Texas; Fayette Copeland, University of Oklahoma, and Bruce Underwood, University of Houston.

At yesterday's opening session, George E. Simmons, president of the Congress, presented a citation to the New York Times for "providing the most complete reporting of significant events by a newspaper in the United States during the past 25 years."

The citation was accepted by Turner Catledge, managing editor of the Times.

180 Moose Lose Lives Because Of Deep-Snow Fear

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 5 (AP)—The Anchorage Times says 180 moose have been killed by trains so far this season because of their fear of deep snow.

And the Alaska Railroad is no little irked by it all because the slaughter disrupts schedules and arouses criticism of the railroad.

The moose is afraid of deep snow and it is piled as high as his head along the railroad's right of way between Anchorage and Fairbanks. The moose knows if he jumps into deep snow he is easy prey for wolves. He likes a cleared area where he can run or whirl and fight with feet and horns.

The only cleared area around is the railroad tracks, so the moose congregate there. So far nobody has thought up a good way to get rid of them.

Sailor Awarded $7,500 In Damages At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 5—UP—A 23-year-old ex-sailor today held an award of $7500 in damages for injuries allegedly suffered when he was beaten by a city policeman in a French Quarter bar more than two years ago.

A federal court jury awarded the damages to Duane Long, Lucerne Mines, Pa., yesterday after almost 1½ hours deliberation. At the same time, the jury held that patrolman Paul Sanderson, who allegedly beat the ex-sailor over the head with the night stick, was not an employe of the city at the time of the incident at Pat O'Brien's bar, Sept. 20, 1952.

Whitman Books Locked Up After Diary Is Stolen

DETROIT, March 5—UP—The Detroit Public Library locked the remains of a priceless collection of Walt Whitman lore in a burglar-proof vault Saturday, and the director said the institution was "shamed" by the theft of the poet's most intimate work—his diary.

But Charles E. Feinberg, owner of the collection, said it was "a dirty shame" to remove the original manuscripts and books from public view.

"Just because some dirty dog broke into a case and took one item is no reason to deprive the rest of the people of the work of a great man," Feinberg said.

Whitman's diary, valued at between $10,000 and $25,000, was reported stolen late Friday. Whitman called his day-by-day diary his "Commonplace Book." It covered the poet's life from 1876 to 1889.

No one knew exactly when a glass exhibit case was pried open and the volume taken. Photographs of the collection taken two days before the theft was noted revealed that the diary was not in its customary place when the pictures were made.

Ralph A. Ulveling, library director, said he was sorry to have to dismantle the Whitman collection, which will be returned to Feinberg, but stated the library "can no longer be responsible for such priceless documents."

Police worked throughout Friday night and late into the day Saturday questioning library employes. They admitted they were "against a blank wall."

LAFAYETTE, La. March 5 — UP— The first Sunday tour through the flowering azalea gardens in the Lafayette area is scheduled tomorrow under the direction of members of the Les Vingt Quatre Club.

Mrs. J. J. Davidson Jr., chairman of the tours committee, said the tours will begin at the Evangeline and Garden hotels at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. tomorrow. Flower lovers will be taken by bus to Lafayette area gardens.

Weekday tours also are planned, Mrs. Davidson said. These are held Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week, and the first in the series of tours was held Thursday.

Besides Lafayette, the flower pilgrimage includes stops at famed Paradise Oaks in Breaux Bridge, St. Martinville, the Longfellow-Evangeline state park, Jungle Gardens at Avery Island and New Iberia.

Mrs. Del Marmol Heads University Women In State

Mrs. Alfonso Del Marmol of New Orleans was elected president of the Louisiana division of the American Association of University Women, which concluded its 25th annual convention in Monroe, Saturday. The election of officers was the final item of business on the agenda for the two-day meeting.

Other officers elected for the coming year include Miss Ivey Gravette, Alexandria, vice - president; and Miss Naomi Gardberg, New Orleans, corresponding secretary.

Using the theme "We Choose to Build," the delegates heard addresses from Dr. Helen D. Bragdon, general director of the A.A.U.W. from Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Frazer Banks, regional fellowship chairman for the A.A.U.W. from Birmingham; and Miss Henrietta M. Thompson, regional vice-president, University of Alabama.

Friday evening's session opened with an invocation by Mrs. C. E. Coates, followed by greetings from the Monroe Branch by Miss Hazel Mitchell, president. Miss D. Vickers gave the response.

The keynote address for this session, entitled "Builders or Beneficiaries," was by Dr. Bragdon, who told the group that the fact they are beneficiaries of educational opportunities enables obligates to become builders in a free society. The areas in need of building are without limit, Dr. Bragdon pointed out, extending from the local community to all parts of the world. Through the free flow of information among peoples ever where there may be found a unity in diversity.

The growing consciousness of internationalism is encouraging curious and enthusiastic learning, Dr. Bragdon pointed out, which necessarily combats apathy and attitudes of anti intellectualism.

Following the meeting a reception was held in the Crystal Ball room of the Virginia Hotel.

The second general session was held in the ball room Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. The morning session consisted of a program "We Chose to Build through the Strengthening of Our System of Education." Participating in this phase of the program were Miss Eleanor Patrick, education chairman of Lake Charles, Miss Naomi Gardberg, of New Orleans, and Mrs. J. W. Ward of Shreveport.

Following a short coffee break, the group returned to hear a symposium under the leadership of Miss Henrietta Thompson. Consultants were Dr. Bragdon and Mrs. L. Frazer Banks.

The A.A.U.W. is an organization on 131,000 members within the United States. Louisiana has a total of 853 members.

The average temperature of Canada is below 32 degrees fahrenheit.

Fuller Crossed

money to let a bawdy house operate unmolested.

When Deason asked about that today the husky, 35-year-old defendant said he didn't remember being tried.

But as Deason continued to question him, Fuller said he remembered parts of the trial "vaguely" and that he did testify on his own behalf that he hadn't taken a bribe.

Then in response to another question he changed the bribe statement, explaining, "that's what I was told."

A few minutes later, questioned by Chief Defense Atty. Roderick Beddow, the witness said he was taking drug injections for a back injury at the time of his bribery trial. It was then that he became specific about what Beddow called "unfair conditions" about that trial.

Fuller insisted that he supported Patterson in the attorney general's race and that Patterson was his 'personal friend."

He said he asked many people to vote for the crusading attorney who had promised to wipe out vice and racketeering in Phenix City.

But he said he didn't vote for Patterson.

The ex-chief deputy is one of three men the state contends killed Patterson because the former State senator had pledged to smash the multi-million dollar racketeering empire in his home town.

The others, still awaiting trial, are Arch Ferrell, prosecuting attorney in the vice-ridden community, and former Alabama Atty. Gen. Si Garrett, whom Patterson would have succeeded.

Fuller gave a lengthy account of his activities on the day Patterson was slain.

One point concerned whether he could have run from a vacant lot near the murder scene and jumped into a waiting car as a prosecution witness had testified.

Fuller said he had a stiff knee and hip for several years, that his right leg had been broken twice, and had been giving him much trouble for a year prior to the day of the killing.

That afternoon, he said he had gone to the YMCA for treatment of his right leg, and was not able to run.

Then, a few minutes later, the former chief deputy said he "ran down the hall" at the county jail when he learned Patterson had been shot.

As he and then Sheriff Ralph Mathews arrived at the scene of the slaying, Fuller told the jury, he "jumped out of the car and ran across the street."

Fuller denied that he stood in front of Patterson's law office at any time on June 18 prior to the shooting; or that he ran out of a vacant lot and jumped into a car.

His account of the events in the Russell County jail where he contends he had been for about 50 minutes agreed substantially with that of the six alibi witnesses the defense had put on earlier.

FIVE INJURED—Five persons were injured when the car, pictured above, driven by a West Monroe woman, slammed into a Monroe bus driver's automobile at the intersection of Louisville and North Eighth Friday night around 10:30. The bus driver, Claude Adams Causey, Jr., of 802 Winnsboro Road sustained two broken ribs in the accident. Three members of his family were hospitalized with minor lacerations and bruises. Sgt. W. J. Hunnicutt of the Monroe Police, pictured at the left, identified the West Monroe woman as Billie McKnight, 22, of 703 Wheelis. She sustained no major injuries in the wreck.

New Leasing Of Offshore Lands By U. S. Planned

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— Edward Woozley, director of the bureau of land management, revealed today that preparations are under way for a possible third bonus bid sale of leases in the outer continental shelf, embracing lands off both Louisiana and Texas.

He said that nominations of areas for future oil, gas and sulphur leasing may be submitted to the bureau as late as March 25. The nominations will be studied to determine if a third sale is advisable in the near future.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay announced that development of the natural resources in the Gulf outer continental shelf has brought $142.4 million, including $118.8 million from Louisiana, into the U. S. treasury as the bureau completed the first phase of its oil, gas and sulphur leasing activities.

Women's Voters Unit Meeting Is Scheduled

A combined unit meeting of the Monroe League of Women Voters will be held Wednesday at the new United Gas building on Louisville avenue. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Miss Jean Bonham will lead a discussion of a recent report of Frederick Ward, Jr., of the National Probation and Parole Association, on the juvenile probation and detention needs of Ouachita parish. This survey was made to determine whether or not this parish needs a detention home.

Sulfa Drugs Issued To 40,000 At Ft. Dix After Quick-Killing Virus Hits

FT. DIX, N. J., March 5 (AP)—A blood infection similar to one that killed a trainee here Feb. 22 today struck a third GI and triggered mass distribution of sulfa drugs to this giant Army base's 40,000 personnel.

Capt. Tom Hamrick, public information officer, said distribution of four sulfadiazine tablets to each man and woman was ordered by the post surgeon as "a precautionary measure" and there was "no cause for alarm."

Unmarried personnel were restricted to the post for 12 hours, but married personnel were permitted to go home after receiving tablets.

The latest trainee to contract the infection was Pvt. Michael T. Danza, 19, of the Bronx, N. Y. He was reported in critical condition in the post hospital.

Only last night Pvt. Richard A. Robinson, 21, of Norwell, Mass., was flown to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D. C., in serious condition with a similar ailment contracted Wednesday. His condition was unchanged today.

Pvt. Irwin Weinrib, 18, of Far Rockaway, N. Y., died in the post hospital on Washington's Birthday of what was described as "fulminating meningitis—a quick killer."

Implications that Weinrib was denied proper medical treatment and additional allegations of mistreatment by his buddy, Pvt. Leslie Feldman, 19, of Far Rockaway, N. Y., are the basis of an investigation now in progress.

The Twin Cities Chess tournament, held in the 'Y" for the past eight Fridays, came to a close March 4 with a packed house attending. Ralph Harker, 10 years old, of West Monroe, defeated Billy Press of Monroe to gain the title of small fry chess champ of the Twin Cities.

Jack Burton, 11 years old, defeated James West of Monroe to take the junior chess championship title and Bert Borden, 15 years old, of Monroe defeated Glen Harrelson the 1954 champion of West Monroe to cop the intermediate title.

George R. Caterer is the "Y" chess instructor.

West Monroe's new industry, that of the production of crickets for fish bait, received considerable mention in Collier's, March 18 issue. The story is entitled "How Many Crickets to A Quart?"

It is stated that the output of the new plant is expected to reach 20 million crickets this year and to gross $200,000.

The plant in West Monroe is a companion plant to one owned by the same company in Glennville, Ga.

A story is being repeated in Monroe concerning British scientists overseeing a construction project. They saw that one worker always pulled his wheelbarrow instead of pushing it. It was so unusual that those interested finally approached him and asked why he did as he did.

"Why do I pull me barrow?" he asked. "Because, govn'r I can't stand the sight of the bloody thing!"

John Elmendorf phoned Jes' Ramblin' late last night. "I went fishing for bass in Black Bayou and what did I catch on my casting rod?" he declared.

"It was a rattle snake, but it was young with only two rattles and a button."

Persons attending the brotherhood program at the First Christian Church a few days ago, heard Dr. E. K. Means speak, evidently at his best. Later it was learned that his address was delivered only in most painful manner. He admitted he is suffering from an attack of inflamatory rheumatism, and he admits he knows of no more painful complaint, but he filled the engagement regardless.

Man Arrested Here On Burglary Charge

City detectives yesterday arrested Arthur Green, route two, Downsville, on a charge of simple robbery less than an hour after he allegedly strong-armed a West Monroe man and took $20 from him.

According to detectives, O. C. Luther, 101 Wheel s street, West Monroe, was walking down Hall street near DeSiard, about 4 p.m. yesterday. He was holding $20 in his hand, which was in his pocket, when a thief grabbed him from behind, and forcibly took the maney from him.

Less than an hour after Luther reported the theft, detectives arrested Green, whom Luther identified as the thief, officers sa d.

Green was transferred to the parish jail.

Man Escapes Injury In Crossing Accident

According to the report of investigating officers, Hebert Williams, route two, Monroe, was driving south on Eleventh street, when h s truck stalled on the crossing. Williams fled the truck seconds before it was struck by a west bound train.

Williams was taken into custody and charged with drunk and reckless driving. His bond was set at $450.

Informants said Dulles will be unable to report his tour has ended a British-American split over policy towards the Quemoy and Matsu islands off the China coast. Britain has been pressing for the transfer of these islands from Nationalist to Communist control.

The continuing American-British disagreement is seen as one important diplomatic reason for reports from London that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill may be considering a trip to Washington to confer with President Eisenhower. The report said Churchill's speech on the H-bomb this week should have made it clear that the Anglo-American alliance has reached a "sad state."

In Dulles' private talks with the President and congressional committees, he is expected to go deeply into the latest developments in administration strategy to retaliate on three fronts against Red China if it commits aggression in the Asian-Pacific area.

The triple front strategy calls for hitting the Chinese Reds primarily from Korea, Formosa, and Southeast Asia.

Chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) said Dulles will be asked to meet with the Senate Foreign Relations committee Tuesday if it is convenient for the secretary. If not, George said, a date later in the week will be set.

Dulles met in Bangkok, Thailand, with diplomats and defense leaders of seven other countries to put the Southeast Asian link into this defense planning.

The main retaliation against any Red Chinese aggression would be delivered by American air and sea power. Dulles has told Allied leaders that the United States, because of its atomic weapons, now has greater striking power in the Far East than it had at the height of the war against Japan. Use of atomic weapons would depend upon the size of the aggression and the strategy to counteract it. The United States now treats atomic weapons as conventional weapons.

The evacuation of UN families was ordered as a precaution against their becoming involved and possibly being wounded or killed in such clashes.

UN officials identified the American who was evacuated as Mrs. Pierre Duhet, formerly of Geneva, Ill. She is the wife of a Belgian civilian radio operator.

Israel, which has denied the Egyptian charge of responsibility for the bloody Gaza battle, also countered the Jordanian charge of an unprovoked attack in Jordan territory on the opposite side of Israel.

Jordan told the Mixed Armistice Commission its nationals were cut down deliberately in retaliation for the deaths of a young Israeli couple Israel claimed was murdered two weeks ago. Jordan said a sixth Jordanian was released and told to tell his government the murders were in repayment for the two Israeli deaths.

Israel claimed the latest clash occurred when four armed Jordan shepherds were found herding their flocks on Israeli territory in the Biet Govrin area. The shepherds were said to have exchanged gunfire with the patrol and then to have withdrawn to Jordan territory.

Israel indicated it knew of no casualties in the encounter.

Jordan lies across Israel from the Gaza strip where reports of new Israeli actions raised fears for the safety of United Nations families.

money to let a bawdy house operate unmolested.

When Deason asked about that today the husky, 35-year-old defendant said he didn't remember being tried.

But as Deason continued to question him, Fuller said he remembered parts of the trial "vaguely" and that he did testify on his own behalf that he hadn't taken a bribe.

Then in response to another question he changed the bribe statement, explaining, "that's what I was told."

A few minutes later, questioned by Chief Defense Atty. Roderick Beddow, the witness said he was taking drug injections for a back injury at the time of his bribery trial. It was then that he became specific about what Beddow called "unfair conditions" about that trial.

Fuller insisted that he supported Patterson in the attorney general's race and that Patterson was his 'personal friend."

He said he asked many people to vote for the crusading attorney who had promised to wipe out vice and racketeering in Phenix City.

But he said he didn't vote for Patterson.

The ex-chief deputy is one of three men the state contends killed Patterson because the former State senator had pledged to smash the multi-million dollar racketeering empire in his home town.

The others, still awaiting trial, are Arch Ferrell, prosecuting attorney in the vice-ridden community, and former Alabama Atty. Gen. Si Garrett, whom Patterson would have succeeded.

Fuller gave a lengthy account of his activities on the day Patterson was slain.

One point concerned whether he could have run from a vacant lot near the murder scene and jumped into a waiting car as a prosecution witness had testified.

Fuller said he had a stiff knee and hip for several years, that his right leg had been broken twice, and had been giving him much trouble for a year prior to the day of the killing.

That afternoon, he said he had gone to the YMCA for treatment of his right leg, and was not able to run.

Then, a few minutes later, the former chief deputy said he "ran down the hall" at the county jail when he learned Patterson had been shot.

As he and then Sheriff Ralph Mathews arrived at the scene of the slaying, Fuller told the jury, he "jumped out of the car and ran across the street."

Fuller denied that he stood in front of Patterson's law office at any time on June 18 prior to the shooting; or that he ran out of a vacant lot and jumped into a car.

His account of the events in the Russell County jail where he contends he had been for about 50 minutes agreed substantially with that of the six alibi witnesses the defense had put on earlier.

FIVE INJURED—Five persons were injured when the car, pictured above, driven by a West Monroe woman, slammed into a Monroe bus driver's automobile at the intersection of Louisville and North Eighth Friday night around 10:30. The bus driver, Claude Adams Causey, Jr., of 802 Winnsboro Road sustained two broken ribs in the accident. Three members of his family were hospitalized with minor lacerations and bruises. Sgt. W. J. Hunnicutt of the Monroe Police, pictured at the left, identified the West Monroe woman as Billie McKnight, 22, of 703 Wheelis. She sustained no major injuries in the wreck.

New Leasing Of Offshore Lands By U. S. Planned

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— Edward Woozley, director of the bureau of land management, revealed today that preparations are under way for a possible third bonus bid sale of leases in the outer continental shelf, embracing lands off both Louisiana and Texas.

He said that nominations of areas for future oil, gas and sulphur leasing may be submitted to the bureau as late as March 25. The nominations will be studied to determine if a third sale is advisable in the near future.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay announced that development of the natural resources in the Gulf outer continental shelf has brought $142.4 million, including $118.8 million from Louisiana, into the U. S. treasury as the bureau completed the first phase of its oil, gas and sulphur leasing activities.

Cancer Society Meet Speaker Is Dr. J. W. Eaton

A featured speaker at the American Cancer Society's regional meeting to be held in Monroe on March 10th will be Dr. J. W. Eaton, anaesthetist from Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, who has been cured of cancer. Dr. Eaton is originally from New Hampshire and had his medical training at McGill University in Montreal.

He will encourage volunteers from a 24 parish area to step up support of the Cancer Society's three-point program against the number two killer, through education, research and service to the cancer victim. From one-half to one - third of the more than 3,600 persons who died in Louisiana last year died needlessly because they did not get to their doctors while the malignacy was in its early curable stage, according to the Cancer Society.

"Better education on the part of the lay public can save many lives and, therefore, the educational activities of the April Cancer Crusade are of vital importance in campaign," they said. "Dr. Eaton's experience in defeating this dreaded disease should prove inspirational to those who will conduct the April Crusade."

Dr. L. C. Bleich, Medical Advisor of the Lincoln Parish Cancer Unit, Ruston, and an active worker in bringing cancer education to civic groups, clubs and organizations of that parish in cooperation with local cancer workers, will be featured luncheon speaker at the conference.

Leading the workshop sessions on campaign planning will be Fred H. Block, Thibodaux, 1955 State Campaing Chairman for the Louisiana Division of the Society. Parish leaders will participate in panel discussions of effective methods for organizing and carrying out the Crusade for April, Cancer Control Month.

In the morning session the workers will hear Harry Arthur, local television program director discuss methods of reaching the radio and TV audience with the life-saving messages of the society.

The meeting will start with registration at 10:00 a.m. and coffee will be served. The morning session will get under way at 10:30 a.m. with a welcome by Monroe Mayor John E. Coon, and Irving Leibowitz will preside through the day in behalf of the Ouachita Unit. Adjournment will be at 3:00 p.m.

Woman's Nude Body Discovered

NEW ORLEANS March 5 —UP— The nude body of an attractive 40-year-old woman, badly eaten by ants, was found in a bottle-littered French Quarter apartment today, but police said they had not been able to determine if the woman was murdered.

Homicide Detective Philip Nicaud said the body was found sprawled on a bed and was covered by a bed sheet. He said a preliminary examination failed to disclose any signs of violence, but said "it was hard to tell because her body was badly eaten by ants."

Police identified the victim as Glenda Adcock, a stewardess on a river boat from Sikeston, Mo.

Nicaud said the apartment was strewn with whiskey bottles and said there were signs of a scuffle in the room.

The woman was believed to have been dead at least five days, authorities said. An autopsy was to be performed this weekend in an attempt to determine the cause of death.

Ellender Opposes Reduction Of Income Tax

Democrats Fighting For Large Army Urged To Aid In Defeat Of Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)— Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) today challenged Democrats resisting a proposed military manpower cut to join Republicans in their fight to kill a $20-a-person income tax reduction.

But Sen. George (D-Ga), who announced he will oppose the tax cut voted by the House, indicated clearly he will be open to compromise suggestions if the House refuses to go along with the Senate's expected rejection of the measure.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which stripped the $20 provision from an administration tax bill, said he would "fight to the utmost" against any revenue loss now.

Knowland, the GOP floor leader, said the income tax cut the House passed would cost the Treasury $2,200,000,000 revenue at "an inappropriate time." It would be effective next Jan. 1.

"Democrats who have been advocating that the military forces be expanded can hardly support a tax cut now," Knowland said. "Pay increase legislation which is pending in Congress for Postal workers and Civil Service workers is going to require additional funds.

"To have a loss of revenue under such circumstances wouldn't be constructive or responsible handling of the fiscal affairs of the government."

President Eisenhower asked for a year's extension of corporation and excise taxes expiring April 1 which yield about three billion dollars, and House Democrats added the $20 income tax cut to this bill.

The Senate Finance Committee knocked out this section and George, a key member, said he is worried that if it comes to a Senate-House showdown the whole bill might be jeopardized.

Knowland said if that happens he believes the corporation and excise taxes eventually would be restored. But he said there might be a lapse in the excises—on liquor, tobacco, gasoline, automobiles and other items—which would be "harmful to business."

"If the word got out that there might be only a few days lapse in these excise taxes, people might hesitate to buy because they felt they might get the same items cheaper," he said. "It would be detrimental to business to have any such hiatus."

George said he believed every legitimate effort ought to be made to compromise differences after the Senate passes it's version of the bill. But he said he can't envision at this time any tax reduction he would be willing to support.

Sen. Ellender (D-La) said in a recording for Louisiana radio stations that he is opposed to the $20 cut because he fears it would set off an inflationary spiral and "result in our people actually losing money in the long run."

He said if the proposal got through Congress and survived an expected veto the government would have to borrow an additional billion dollars, with interest charges running 25 million dollars or more a year.

"What the . . . proposal boils down to is immediate relief for our taxpayers at an extremely high price in the long run," Ellender said. "I am not convinced that the token relief the House bill would buy is worth the price our government would have to pay."

Ellender deprecated what he said was "the great hue and cry which arises from the Republican camp now that the House Democrats have seized the President's tax program and run away with it." Eisenhower has said tax cuts may be possible in 1956 if business holds up and government expenses can be cut.

"Tax reductions should not be turned into political footballs—either they are justified on the basis of our nation's financial plight, or they are not," Ellender declared.

Brooks Declares Armed Units Not Ready For Crisis

Appearing on the Jaycees Roundtable, a local television show, yesday, Congressman Overton Brooks, Shreveport, declared that America's armed forces reserve and national guard are not presently prepared to meet an emergency. He explained that the reserve force is inadequate in size and lacks the necessary training and equipment to be of immediate combat use in the event of an attack on this nation.

At the outbreak of World War I, Congressman Brooks said, 15 months elapsed between the declaration of war and the committing of the first Americans to battle. When World War II was declared, a year was required to training and equip and train the nation's Army, he said.

Although American forces were committed to battle within a few hours after the Communists invaded South Korea, Brooks continued, the units were composed for the most part of men who had been subjected to battle during World War II. "We must not continue to rely on our men who have had previous battlefield experience to fight all our battles. We must have a large reserve force which, has had the necessary training, but not composed of war weary veterans." he said.

He explained that the present reserve force, which totals about two and a half million men should be double, and said that he is working for the enactment of a law which would be a "bargain" to the nation's youth. Under the proposed program, all qualified men would be required to spend six months on active military duty after which they would be required to actively participate in the reserve for a period of eight to 10 years.

Others appearing on the program included Brig. Gen. George W. Trousdale, commander of the Thirty-ninth Infantry Division; Col. Ben Mason, commander of the 2699th Air Reserve Center, Shreveport; Maj. George Whitmeyer, Army advisor for the local Army Reserve units, and Lt. Roy Johns commander of the Monroe Naval Reserve unit.

Speaking for the National Guard, General Trousdale, said the guard could be filled to war strength and ready for battle within three months, or if necessary could be used immediately as a "stop gap" organization.

Guardsmen are fully equipped for an emergency and many units are at wartime strength, Trousdale said.

Long Says Tax Cut Has Little Chance Of Okay

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Sen. Long (D-La) acknowledged tonight that "right now I suspect we are a few votes shy of what we need" in the Senate to get the $20 income tax cut approved.

He denied reports its supporters were stalling to keep the bill from coming up on the Senate floor soon. He added "but we do want some time to get together the facts and figures upon which we buttress our case."

Long is a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which stripped the $20 tax cut from the administration bill after the House had approved it. However, he voted for the cut.

As to chances of the cut on the Senate floor, "I do not believe in giving up a fight before you have tried," Long said in a radio interview (CBS' Capitol Cloakroom).

Long didn't think the President would veto a tax cut bill if one should go to him, saying "I do not think he could afford to do it, for many reasons: Politically, morally and many others."

On the fate of the President's reciprocal trade program in the Senate, Long said, "we have some senators . . . who very well might stand and talk at great length about that bill and offer an untold number of amendments. Some of those amendments may be adopted."

In answer to other questions Long predicted that Congress "is getting rather weary of these foreign give-away programs" and will have a tendency to reduce foreign aid funds.

He believed "the prospects are very good for the South going solidly Democratic" in the 1956 presidential elections. He said that prediction was based on the assumption that President Eisenhower would run again.

"It is not so much a matter of Eisenhower being less popular; it is a matter of the Democrats, as a party, being more popular," he said.

He said it was possible that Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, might also be the 1956 candidate but thought "there are other possibilities who might run just as strongly and perhaps a stronger race." He declined to name any.

The West Monroe woman received no major injuries in the crash according to hospital authorities.

Cancer Society Meet Speaker Is Dr. J. W. Eaton

A featured speaker at the American Cancer Society's regional meeting to be held in Monroe on March 10th will be Dr. J. W. Eaton, anaesthetist from Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, who has been cured of cancer. Dr. Eaton is originally from New Hampshire and had his medical training at McGill University in Montreal.

He will encourage volunteers from a 24 parish area to step up support of the Cancer Society's three-point program against the number two killer, through education, research and service to the cancer victim. From one-half to one - third of the more than 3,600 persons who died in Louisiana last year died needlessly because they did not get to their doctors while the malignacy was in its early curable stage, according to the Cancer Society.

"Better education on the part of the lay public can save many lives and, therefore, the educational activities of the April Cancer Crusade are of vital importance in campaign," they said. "Dr. Eaton's experience in defeating this dreaded disease should prove inspirational to those who will conduct the April Crusade."

Dr. L. C. Bleich, Medical Advisor of the Lincoln Parish Cancer Unit, Ruston, and an active worker in bringing cancer education to civic groups, clubs and organizations of that parish in cooperation with local cancer workers, will be featured luncheon speaker at the conference.

Leading the workshop sessions on campaign planning will be Fred H. Block, Thibodaux, 1955 State Campaing Chairman for the Louisiana Division of the Society. Parish leaders will participate in panel discussions of effective methods for organizing and carrying out the Crusade for April, Cancer Control Month.

In the morning session the workers will hear Harry Arthur, local television program director discuss methods of reaching the radio and TV audience with the life-saving messages of the society.

The meeting will start with registration at 10:00 a.m. and coffee will be served. The morning session will get under way at 10:30 a.m. with a welcome by Monroe Mayor John E. Coon, and Irving Leibowitz will preside through the day in behalf of the Ouachita Unit. Adjournment will be at 3:00 p.m.

Mrs. E. G. Wright, state chairman of volunteers for the society, will head the hospitality committee, assisted by Mrs. Max Kulcke, chairman of the local unit. Miss Joanne Genung is chairman of publicity.

30-Year-Old Man Confesses Part In Burglary Here

A 30 - year - old Ouachita Parish Negro confessed yesterday afternoon to the burglary of the Economy Auto Supply Company in West Monroe early Saturday morning, in which approximately $113 in cash and $431 in checks were taken, Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailey Grant stated yesterday.

The Negro identified by Sheriff's Department as Roosevelt French, an employee of the supply company, was arrested about 8 a.m. Saturday morning by the West Monroe Police department as he returned to work.

Sheriff Grant stated that French is being lodged in the parish jail awaiting bond to be set on simple burglary charges.

French, an employee of the supply company for about nine months, stated that before leaving for home about 8 p.m. Friday he had broken the hasp on the rear door, through which, he gained entrance later on.

Sheriff deputies recovered, $111.-35 in cash and $328.29 in checks from a hiding place in the woods about 150 feet from the Negro's home, near Hickory Bend off Highway 80 West.

Two officers from each department worked on the case, which was solved in about five or six hours.

Long Says Tax Cut Has Little Chance Of Okay

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Sen. Long (D-La) acknowledged tonight that "right now I suspect we are a few votes shy of what we need" in the Senate to get the $20 income tax cut approved.

He denied reports its supporters were stalling to keep the bill from coming up on the Senate floor soon. He added "but we do want some time to get together the facts and figures upon which we buttress our case."

Long is a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which stripped the $20 tax cut from the administration bill after the House had approved it. However, he voted for the cut.

As to chances of the cut on the Senate floor, "I do not believe in giving up a fight before you have tried," Long said in a radio interview (CBS' Capitol Cloakroom).

Long didn't think the President would veto a tax cut bill if one should go to him, saying "I do not think he could afford to do it, for many reasons: Politically, morally and many others."

On the fate of the President's reciprocal trade program in the Senate, Long said, "we have some senators . . . who very well might stand and talk at great length about that bill and offer an untold number of amendments. Some of those amendments may be adopted."

In answer to other questions Long predicted that Congress "is getting rather weary of these foreign give-away programs" and will have a tendency to reduce foreign aid funds.

He believed "the prospects are very good for the South going solidly Democratic" in the 1956 presidential elections. He said that prediction was based on the assumption that President Eisenhower would run again.

"It is not so much a matter of Eisenhower being less popular; it is a matter of the Democrats, as a party, being more popular," he said.

He said it was possible that Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, might also be the 1956 candidate but thought "there are other possibilities who might run just as strongly and perhaps a stronger race." He declined to name any.

Accident Victims Reported Better

C. Adams Causey, Jr., 39, who received two broken ribs in a two-car collision Friday night at the intersection of Louisville avenue and North Eighth street was reported to be in "good condition" yesterday afternoon.

The wreck which caused the hospitalization of three members of Causey's family occurred around 10:30 p.m. according to Monroe Police.

All were doing "well" late last night according to attendants at the Wright-Bendel Clinic.

Driver of the second vehicle, was identified by Monroe Police, as Billie McKnight, 22, of 703 Wheelis street, West Monroe.

The McKnight woman driving a borrowed car, was traveling north on North Eighth street and the Causey vehicle, a 1948 Chevrolet was headed west on Louisville avenue when the two collided, police stated.

The West Monroe woman received no major injuries in the crash according to hospital authorities.

Skid marks 42 feet long from the 1953 Chevrolet, which the woman was driving, were left on the pavement according to the police report.

Persons involved in the accident were conveyed to the clinic by Mulhearn ambulances.

Union Negotiators In Conference

New Telephone Workers' Contract Sought Before Deadline March 14

ATLANTA, March 5 (AP)—Union negotiators today locked themselves in for a weekend of intensive planning aimed, they said, at reaching an agreement with Southern Bell Telephone before the March 14 deadline if possible.

Chairman of the CIO Communications Workers of America bargaining committee is Lonnie B. Long of Frankfort, Ky.; Richard E. Hayden, Owensboro, Ky.; Bessie B. Kerr, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Margaret Roepke, Birmingham, Ala.

With the negotiations temporarily in recess—but subject to a quick call back into session by either side—company and union continued to dispute just what issues remain to be agreed upon.

F. M. Malone, company vice president for personnel, maintained the only remaining "real issue" is union agreement on a no-strike clause. He accused the union of reopening "whole areas of discussion that were disposed of last fall." He declared that if there is a walkout, "it will be because uhion leaders want a contract allowing them to call workers off the job whenever they desire instead of sticking to mutually established procedures for handling grievances."

Daniel, speaking for the CWA, countered that a wide range of issues remains to be settled. He challenged company mention of a $4-a-week wage offer as potentially benefiting only a handful while "thousands of the 50,000 workers involved would receive nothing."

He declared that prime among a dozen points he claimed are still in dispute are wages and charged that the South is on the tail end of a bell system wage policy based on geography."

"Geographical differentials," he said, "have been used by the Bell system too long as a means of avoiding equal pay for equal work."

He also asserted:

"We believe it is time to shorten hours for women who work nights, but the company has failed to do justice to our proposal. There are some rough spots on the vital question of craft work being performed by supervisors, and craft work being contracted to outside agencies, but the company has blinded itself to the need for ironing out these rough spots.

"We also want improved arbitration provisions that would effectively prevent miscarriages of justice; and because of the company's recent anti-union attitude, we desire improved union security. All of these issues are officially, formally and definitely in dispute."

Malone, speaking for Southern Bell, said he is hopeful that a contract agreement can be reached that is "fair to the public, to employes and the company."

He continued:

"The company has worked long and hard over a considerable period, during which time we have proposed many contract improvements and agreed to others. We stand ready to bargain as long as necessary to reach agreement. We believe the wage increases and other contract improvements now before the union for consideration form the basis of a reasonable agreement."

Daniel, the CWA spokesman, declined to predict a strike, although he said some eight months of negotiations up to now "certainly have had their discouraging aspects." He announced that he and fellow committeemen are planning "seven full days of hard-driving negotiations" next week and said an agreement could result if the company will "bargain this thing out to a finish."

The 50,000 workers whose wages and working conditions are at stake are employes by the company in Kentucky, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The company's wage structure is complex and difficult to describe in general terms. The present scale provides a maximum of $57 weekly operators in cities of Atlanta's size and $43.50 in smaller places. The top for plant craft workers such as cable spicers is $91.50.

Stocks Resume Bullish Rise To Reach New Highs

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Stocks resumed their bull market drive ahead this week after a brief sell-off and pushed up to new peak levels.

There were no fireworks in trading, but the average gain was the greatest in four months.

The market started a recovery from last week with the opening gong Monday and kept right on pushing ahead—sometimes mildly and sometimes strongly, but always forward.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced $3.70 on the week, the widest gain since last November. The average closed at $162.60, highest level in its history.

The rise was strong in major divisions like steels, railroads, motors and oils.

Everyone here was well aware that Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) was conducting a study of the stock market through the Senate Banking Committee. If the market itself was influenced by the hearings, there was no visible indication to which brokers could or would point.

General business news was considered highly favorable for a rise in the stock market. The National Assn. of Purchasing Agents reported order backlogs high. The steel industry cited a rush of business. Leaders in the automobile industry forecast new records of production and sales.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were Webb & Knapp up 7/8 on 894,300 shares; General Stores unchanged at 1⅜; Nonferrous Metal Products up 1-16 at ⅝; Brazilian Traction up 1⅛ at 9⅜, and Fargo Oils up 7-16 at 2⅜.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were Graham Paige up ⅝ at 3⅛ on 243,500 shares; Pennsylvania Railroad up 1 at 28½; General Motors up 4⅛ at 98; Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton up ⅝ at 16⅜, and Textron up 3 at 16¾.

Miss Guice, who retired four years ago as an English teacher at Waterproof High school, worked as correspondent for the Monroe News-Star — World for a number of years until the time of her death.

She is survived by one brother, John K. Guice, of St. Joseph; five nieces, Mrs. E. R. McDonald of Newellton, Mrs. Lawrence Davis of Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Cleo Cassels of Gloster, Miss., and Mrs. Mildred Deason and Mrs. Lena Barnett of Waterproof.

Pallbearers will be William Greaves, Thompson Clark, Louis Preis, Slyvest Marlbrough, William Hunter, Statham Crosby, and Archie Hedrick, and Ray McGee.

Home Owners Asked To Sign Exemptions

Bert Coverdale, Ouachita parish tax assessor, has again urged all home owners to sign the homestead exemption application forms as soon as possible in order to avoid the last minute rush. The forms must be signed on or before April 15 for the owner to be eligible to receive the reduction in parish and state taxes.

Coverdale pointed out that the signatures for those persons living in the parish are coming in "quite satisfactorily" but the home owners within the limits of Monroe and West Monroe are coming in "slowly." He urged the persons living within these areas to sign up as soon as possible.

The forms are in the assessor's office, located on the first floor of the Ouachita parish court house.

March 17 Tallulah To Observe Kate Stone Day

TALLULAH, March 5 (Special)—Plans are underway for the observance of Kate Stone Day in Tallulah on March 17. The event, sponsored by the Madison Parish Chamber of Commerce under the auspices of the Tallulah Book Club, is in recognition of the publication of "Brokenburn," the journal of Kate Stone, 1861-68, by Louisiana State University Press.

The book is the diary of Mrs. Kate Stone Holmes, a pioneer resident of Madison Parish, written by her during the Civil War years when she was a 20 year old girl living with her widowed mother on Brokenburn plantation, north of Tallulah.

It was through the efforts of Mrs. W. M. Murphy, a life long friend of the Stone family, who learned of the yellowed diary in possession of Miss Amy Holmes, daughter of Kate Stone Holmes. Mrs. Murphy recognized the literary and historic merit of the manuscript and made many unsuccessful attempts to have it published.

In August 1953 when Dr. John Q. Anderson, assistant professor of English at Texas A. & M. College came to Tallulah seeking information for a biography of Henry Clay Lewis he was writing, he learned of the diary from Francis Ward, local historian and Mrs. Murphy, and was amazed at the picture of life in the old South as recorded by Kate Stone. His interest was so aroused that he and his wife undertook the work of preparing the manuscript for publication.

Special ceremonies on Kate Stone Day will include a giant parade featuring the old days before and during the Civil War, the presentation of the first book, bound in leather to Miss Amy Holmes by Mayor W. P. Sevier in front of the Court House, an address by Dr. John Q. Anderson, followed by Open House at the Tallulah Book Club from 1 to 6, when officials of the L. S. U. University Press will be in attendance and autographed copies of the book will be offered for sale.

The public is invited to all the festivities.

Union Negotiators In Conference

New Telephone Workers' Contract Sought Before Deadline March 14

ATLANTA, March 5 (AP)—Union negotiators today locked themselves in for a weekend of intensive planning aimed, they said, at reaching an agreement with Southern Bell Telephone before the March 14 deadline if possible.

Chairman of the CIO Communications Workers of America bargaining committee is Lonnie B. Long of Frankfort, Ky.; Richard E. Hayden, Owensboro, Ky.; Bessie B. Kerr, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Margaret Roepke, Birmingham, Ala.

With the negotiations temporarily in recess—but subject to a quick call back into session by either side—company and union continued to dispute just what issues remain to be agreed upon.

F. M. Malone, company vice president for personnel, maintained the only remaining "real issue" is union agreement on a no-strike clause. He accused the union of reopening "whole areas of discussion that were disposed of last fall." He declared that if there is a walkout, "it will be because union leaders want a contract allowing them to call workers off the job whenever they desire instead of sticking to mutually established procedures for handling grievances."

Daniel, speaking for the CWA, countered that a wide range of issues remains to be settled. He challenged company mention of a $4-a-week wage offer as potentially benefiting only a handful while "thousands of the 50,000 workers involved would receive nothing."

He declared that prime among a dozen points he claimed are still in dispute are wages and charged that the South is on the tail end of a bell system wage policy based on geography."

"Geographical differentials," he said, "have been used by the Bell system too long as a means of avoiding equal pay for equal work."

He also asserted:

"We believe it is time to shorten hours for women who work nights, but the company has failed to do justice to our proposal. There are some rough spots on the vital question of craft work being performed by supervisors, and craft work being contracted to outside agencies, but the company has blinded itself to the need for ironing out these rough spots.

"We also want improved arbitration provisions that would effectively prevent miscarriages of justice; and because of the company's recent anti-union attitude, we desire improved union security. All of these issues are officially, formally and definitely in dispute."

Malone, speaking for Southern Bell, said he is hopeful that a contract agreement can be reached that is "fair to the public, to employes and the company."

He continued:

"The company has worked long and hard over a considerable period, during which time we have proposed many contract improvements and agreed to others. We stand ready to bargain as long as necessary to reach agreement. We believe the wage increases and other contract improvements now before the union for consideration form the basis of a reasonable agreement."

Daniel, the CWA spokesman, declined to predict a strike, although he said some eight months of negotiations up to now "certainly have had their discouraging aspects." He announced that he and fellow committeemen are planning "seven full days of hard-driving negotiations" next week and said an agreement could result if the company will "bargain this thing out to a finish."

The 50,000 workers whose wages and working conditions are at stake are employes by the company in Kentucky, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The company's wage structure is complex and difficult to describe in general terms. The present scale provides a maximum of $57 weekly operators in cities of Atlanta's size and $43.50 in smaller places. The top for plant craft workers such as cable spicers is $91.50.

Stocks Resume Bullish Rise To Reach New Highs

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Stocks resumed their bull market drive ahead this week after a brief sell-off and pushed up to new peak levels.

There were no fireworks in trading, but the average gain was the greatest in four months.

The market started a recovery from last week with the opening gong Monday and kept right on pushing ahead—sometimes mildly and sometimes strongly, but always forward.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced $3.70 on the week, the widest gain since last November. The average closed at $162.60, highest level in its history.

The rise was strong in major divisions like steels, railroads, motors and oils.

Everyone here was well aware that Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) was conducting a study of the stock market through the Senate Banking Committee. If the market itself was influenced by the hearings, there was no visible indication to which brokers could or would point.

General business news was considered highly favorable for a rise in the stock market. The National Assn. of Purchasing Agents reported order backlogs high. The steel industry cited a rush of business. Leaders in the automobile industry forecast new records of production and sales.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were Webb & Knapp up ⅞ on 894,300 shares; General Stores unchanged at 1⅜; Nonferrous Metal Products up 1-16 at ⅜; Brazilian Traction up 1⅛ at 9⅜, and Fargo Oils up 7-16 at 2⅜.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were Graham Paige up ⅝ at 3⅛ on 243,500 shares; Pennsylvania Railroad up 1 at 28½; General Motors up 4⅛ at 98; Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton up ¾ at 16¾, and Textron up 3 at 16¼.

Services For Miss Rose Guice This Afternoon

Rev. W. E. Giddens, pastor, will officiate at the services, and internment will follow in the family plot in Natchez City Cemetery at Natchez under the direction of the Foster Funeral Home at Natchez.

Miss Guice, who retired four years ago as an English teacher at Waterproof High school, worked as correspondent for the Monroe News-Star — World for a number of years until the time of her death.

She is survived by one brother, John K. Guice, of St. Joseph; five nieces, Mrs. E. R. McDonald of Newellton, Mrs. Lawrence Davis of Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Cleo Cassels of Gloster, Miss., and Mrs. Mildred Deason and Mrs. Lena Barnett of Waterproof.

Pallbearers will be William Greaves, Thompson Clark, Louis Preis, Slyvest Marlbrough, William Hunter, Statham Crosby, and Archie Hedrick, and Ray McGee.

Home Owners Asked To Sign Exemptions

Bert Coverdale, Ouachita parish tax assessor, has again urged all home owners to sign the homestead exemption application forms as soon as possible in order to avoid the last minute rush. The forms must be signed on or before April 15 for the owner to be eligible to receive the reduction in parish and state taxes.

Coverdale pointed out that the signatures for those persons living in the parish are coming in "quite satisfactorily" but the home owners within the limits of Monroe and West Monroe are coming in "slowly." He urged the persons living within these areas to sign up as soon as possible.

The forms are in the assessor's office, located on the first floor of the Ouachita parish court house.

March 17 Tallulah To Observe Kate Stone Day

TALLULAH, March 5 (Special)—Plans are underway for the observance of Kate Stone Day in Tallulah on March 17. The event, sponsored by the Madison Parish Chamber of Commerce under the auspices of the Tallulah Book Club, is in recognition of the publication of "Brokenburn," the journal of Kate Stone, 1861-68, by Louisiana State University Press.

The book is the diary of Mrs. Kate Stone Holmes, a pioneer resident of Madison Parish, written by her during the Civil War years when she was a 20 year old girl living with her widowed mother on Brokenburn plantation, north of Tallulah.

It was through the efforts of Mrs. W. M. Murphy, a life long friend of the Stone family, who learned of the yellowed diary in possession of Miss Amy Holmes, daughter of Kate Stone Holmes. Mrs. Murphy recognized the literary and historic merit of the manuscript and made many unsuccessful attempts to have it published.

In August 1953 when Dr. John Q. Anderson, assistant professor of English at Texas A. & M. College came to Tallulah seeking information for a biography of Henry Clay Lewis he was writing, he learned of the diary from Francis Ward, local historian and Mrs. Murphy, and was amazed at the picture of life in the old South as recorded by Kate Stone. His interest was so aroused that he and his wife undertook the work of preparing the manuscript for publication.

Special ceremonies on Kate Stone Day will include a giant parade featuring the old days before and during the Civil War, the presentation of the first book, bound in leather to Miss Amy Holmes by Mayor W. P. Sevier in front of the Court House, an address by Dr. John Q. Anderson, followed by Open House at the Tallulah Book Club from 1 to 6, when officials of the L. S. U. University Press will be in attendance and autographed copies of the book will be offered for sale.

The public is invited to all the festivities.

Activity Spurred In Congress After Gas, Oil Report

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Issuance of the long-awaited report of the Cabinet Committee on Fuels and Resources was followed this week by a flurry of legislative activity dealing with the controversial natural gas and oil import questions.

Chairman Harris (D-Ark) of the House Commerce Committee introduced a bill—which he has had under study for many weeks—to exempt independent producers and gatherers of natural gas from federal regulation. Harris said his bill would carry out the finding of the Cabinet committee that the federal government should not exercise any control over natural gas prior to its entry into an interstate pipeline.

Sen. Neely (D-WVa) and 13 other senators, both Democrats and Republicans, introduced in the Senate a bill to limit oil imports to 10 per cent of domestic demand.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) offered a proposed amendment to the Natural Gas Act of 1938 to require that rates and charges of natural gas companies be determined on the basis of "actual legitimate cost of the company's property, less depreciation." Douglas said, in introducing his measure, "While I congratulate the gas industry on their success in the Cabinet committee, I must observe that their stacked deck is showing."

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) gave the Harris bill his blessing, which could count for much.

These were the principal legislative developments of the week bearing on the oil and gas industry. Elsewhere:

1. Frank Porter, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said: "We are now confident that the unfortunate effects of the Supreme Court decision in the Phillips case, which singled out the competitive production of this one commodity (gas) for a virtual peacetime OPA price fixing, will soon be corrected.

2. Russell B. Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, said in a report to members the conclusions of the Cabinet committee were in agreement with the fundamental principles to which the organization subscribes.

The Harris bill is designed to nullify the Supreme Court's decision last June which, in effect, told the Federal Power Commission to start regulating the price at the well of all natural gas destined for interstate commerce. The decision came in a case involving the Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla.

Impressive Gains Registered In Key Business Areas

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, March 5 (AP) — Things were definitely on the upbeat this week in key areas of the nation's business.

Here's where you could spot the most impressive gains:

Consumer spending at retail, four to six per cent higher than a year ago.

Automobile production, significantly higher than the week before and just below the all-time peak.

Contracts awarded for heavy construction jobs, 58 per cent ahead of the year-ago rate.

Production and refining of crude oil—highest ever recorded.

Brisk demand for unfinished steel indicated a renewal of inventory building by major steel consumers. Output of the nation's steel mills hit 90 per cent of capacity for the second week in a row. Prices of iron ore movel up.

With practically all the important business indicators pointing higher, the big question was: How long would it last?

Attention focused on two main props—auto output and home building.

It was obvious that auto production—roaring along at a rate of nearly nine million cars a year—would eventually slacken. Harlow H. Curtice, president of General Motors, upped an earlier forecast and predicted the industry would build and sell 7½ million cars in the United States this year. Some called his figures overly optimistic.

The home building boom, with its huge payroll and its tremendous consumption of materials, came in for close scrutiny in the March letter of the National City Bank of New York.

The bank pointed out that new homes built in the three years ended last April—roughly 3,300,000—outnumbered new families formed in that period by about 3-2. It also warned that funds available for investment in mortgages are no longer as plentiful as they were a few months back.

As of now, said the bank, demand for housing is being sustained by such factors as the desire of many families for larger homes, and migration of city people to the suburbs—trends which are highly vulnerable to economic change.

Even before the latest surge," it said, 'many persons were concerned about the high rate of housing construction. They wondered how much longer people would continue to buy a million or more homes a year; also about the increased volume of mortgage credit and the easy terms on which most of it was extended."

Court Battle Is Shaping Up Over Body Advertising

NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody agrees that it's Jane Russell's face in an advertisement of a film, but the question of "which one owns the torso" is shaping up as a court battle.

Blonde Lyn Jones, a 21-year-old Queens model, claims RKO, makers of the movie "underwater" without her consent superimposed her body on Miss Russell's head in an ad for the screenplay.

Miss Jones is suing RKO for $100,000 charging invasion of privacy.

RKO Atty. James B. Hayes yesterday submitted an affidavit in state Supreme Court from artist Mario Zamparelli, who did the painting for the ad.

In his painting, Zamparelli was quoted as saying, he used four California models to portray a composite body— ". . .not a picture of the body of any actual person. . ."

Justice Felix C. Benvenga denied a request by Miss Jones for a temporary injunction restraining RKO from using the ad until her suit has been decided. However, he ordered the case to trial but set no date.

After examining photos of Miss Jones and Miss Russell, both curvaceous, the judge commented: "Well, both of these ladies are very good looking."

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The New York Yankees, by assigning their most publicized young farm hands to the Twin Cities Sports of the Cotton States League, have given baseball in Monroe and West Monroe its biggest boost since Bonneau Peters of the Shreveport Sports purchased the Helena, Ark., franchise in 1949 and restablished the diamond sport here the next season.

News that the Mantle twins of Commerce, Okla., Roy and Ray, 19-year-old brothers of Mickey Mantle, the Yankee center fielder, are coming here has done more to stimulate baseball interest than anything that has happened to the Sports. And, in addition, we're getting use of Bill Dietrich, Jr., the young pitching son of the famed major leaguer of the same name. The Yanks will be sending other young talent here in fulfillment of their working agreement with the Twin Cities Baseball Corporation, but the Mantles and Dietrich are enough to give a great lift to our baseball spirits.

Baseball fans across the nation are interested in what the future holds for these young athletes, and the Twin Cities can expect plenty of national publicity on the doings of the Mantles. Probably no youngsters since Bob Feller came out of the Iowa cornfields has been so publicized in the last year or two.

With no spring training here, the fans can get no early look at the Sports' talent unless they journey to Hattiesburg, Miss., sometime during the first 22 days of April when Yankee farm hands will be training there. Manager Ed Head will move in here with his boys about April 23 to get ready for the season opener with El Dorado on April 26.

The Twin City Gun Club opens for its first full season this afternoon with skeet and trapshooting at its Selman Field range. The range, opened for the first time late last summer, ran into limited action in conflict with the hunting seasons, but now that all hunting is over until next fall, the sportsmen can keep their guns going on the clay targets offered by Leroy Stern and S. K. Bernheim, range managers.

You are always hearing talk about teaching safety in handling firearms to the younger generations. The Twin City Gun Club is offering that opportunity, and there's no better way (here at least) to give the youngsters a break in obtaining good instruction and a chance to perform on the targets than at these week-end shoots.

After today, the range will be open each Saturday and Sunday afternoon until the early fall at least. We figure Saturday afternoons should be perfect for father-son combinations at the range as the youngsters are taught the finer points of cracking the flying targets. Possible Stern and Bernheim can cook up some kind of father-son competition to stimulate interest along this line.

Annually you hear of serious gun accidents that might have been avoided if young hunters (and some of their elders) were better acquainted with the handling of their sporting arms. Some folks don't like firearms and deny their sons the right to use them. Someday a lot of these boys are going to get around to doing a little shooting anyway. They'll be a lot better off with supervised shooting as offered by the gun club. Even the experts can have mishaps some times, but a lot of accidents can be cut down with a better knowledge of the gun in hand and how to use it. This summer may be the time to accept the opportunity to learn.

Marty Holds Lone Stroke Lead Over Barber And Clark

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

BATON ROUGE, March 5 (AP)—Marty Furgol, lanky power hitter from Lemont, Ill., held an uneasy one-stroke lead today after the third round of the $12,500 Baton Rouge open golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 205.

Furgol shot a one-under-par 71 today to go 11 strokes under par for the three rounds.

Handsome Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., roared into contention with a seven under par 65 for a 206 total. Clark's red hot round was the best of the day over the 6,450-yard Baton Rouge Country Club course.

The blond and bronzed Californian had a two under par 34 on the first nine. He started the second nine with two par holes. Then he birdied the 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th, pared the next two, and wound up with a birdie on the par-five 18 for a five under par 31.

Jerry Barber, pint sized precision artist from Los Angeles, who shared the lead with Furgol at the start of today's round, had a par 72 today after two 67 rounds, and tied Clark with a 206 total.

Barber said he "just played so-so golf. I mised some greens on my chip shots and some putts didn't drop."

One stroke back with 207 were Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., and Bo Wininger, Oklahoma City.

Wininger shot a 67, while Maxwell came in with a 68.

Cary Middlecoff of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., and Art Doering of Inwood, N. Y., were next with 208. Both had four under par 68.

Johnny Pott, Young Louisiana State University golfer, fired a two under par 70 for a 209 total to lead the amateurs.

Professional Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., also posted a three day score of 209.

Leo Biagetti of Sandusky, Ohio; Walter Romans of Baltimore and Paul McGuire of Wichita, Kan., were bunched at 210.

Biagetti stroked a three-under-par 69 and Romans, first day leader with a 65, had a 70. McGuire, who was only two strokes behind Barber and Furgol this morning, went two over par with 74 to fall five strokes off the pace.

Bribe Attempt Of Niagara U. Cager Reported

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 5 (AP)—An attempt apparently was made three days ago to bribe a member of Niagara University's N.I.T.-bound basketball Memorial Auditorium, it was reliably reported tonight.

The player involved was Charlie Hoxie, co-captain of the club who is scoring at an average of 13 points a game. The only confirmation came from a Niagara official who, when asked for comment, replied:

"We're very proud of Charlie."

Hoxie is understood to have reported a telephone call he received to Coach John J. (Taps) Gallagher. The incident was turned over to Niagara county District Attorney William Earl, who secured court permission to have Hoxie's telephone tapped in case he received other calls.

It was not learned whether any further calls were received.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 5 (AP)—The Minneapolis Lakers retained a mathematical chance to tie Fort Wayne for the western division title in the N.B.A. today by edging the Rochester Royals 107-104 in a nationally televised overtime game.

JENA, La., March 5 (Special) —The Jena Giants, fighting from behind in the last four minutes, shaded the Minden Crimson Wave, 65-62, in a rousing battle before a capacity basketball championship but Minden, as the runner-up in the north, still will get a crack at the state title.

The Giants hooped the first basket of the game, but moments later Minden went ahead to stay until the last four minutes when a layup by Jimmy Tullos gave Jena a tie at 57-57. The score rocked back and forth until Ronald Manchester s jump shot sent the Giants into a 61-59 lead they never lost.

Jena, with a season record of 40-5, will meet the south's runner-up team in the first game of the state semi-finals at a time and place to be decided. Minden will meet the south's winner. Victors in the state preliminaries will tangle for the state title.

Moreland, Minden, was high scorer tonight with 26 points, followed by Tullos of Jena with 24.

The New York Yankees, by assigning their most publicized young farm hands to the Twin Cities Sports of the Cotton States League, have given baseball in Monroe and West Monroe its biggest boost since Bonneau Peters of the Shreveport Sports purchased the Helena, Ark., franchise in 1949 and restablished the diamond sport here the next season.

News that the Mantle twins of Commerce, Okla., Roy and Ray, 19-year-old brothers of Mickey Mantle, the Yankee center fielder, are coming here has done more to stimulate baseball interest than anything that has happened to the Sports. And, in addition, we're getting use of Bill Dietrich, Jr., the young pitching son of the famed major leaguer of the same name. The Yanks will be sending other young talent here in fuifillment of their working agreement with the Twin Cities Baseball Corporation, but the Mantles and Dietrich are enough to give a great lift to our baseball spirits.

Baseball fans across the nation are interested in what the future holds for these young athletes, and the Twin Cities can expect plenty of national publicity on the doings of the Mantles. Probably no youngsters since Bob Feller came out of the Iowa cornfields has been so publicized in the last year or two.

With no spring training here, the fans can get no early look at the Sports' talent unless they journey to Hattiesburg, Miss., sometime during the first 22 days of April when Yankee farm hands will be training there. Manager Ed Head will move in here with his boys about April 23 to get ready for the season opener with El Dorado on April 26.

The Twin City Gun Club opens for its first full season this afternoon with skeet and trapshooting at its Selman Field range. The range, opened for the first time late last summer, ran into limited action in conflict with the hunting seasons, but now that all hunting is over until next fall, the sportsmen can keep their guns going on the clay targets offered by Leroy Stern and S. K. Bernheim, range managers.

You are always hearing talk about teaching safety in handling firearms to the younger generations. The Twin City Gun Club is offering that opportunity, and there's no better way (here at least) to give the youngsters a break in obtaining good instruction and a chance to perform on the targets than at these week-end shoots.

After today, the range will be open each Saturday and Sunday afternoon until the early fall at least. We figure Saturday afternoons should be perfect for father-son combinations at the range as the youngsters are taught the finer points of cracking the flying targets. Possible Stern and Bernheim can cook up some kind of father-son competition to stimulate interest along this line.

Annually you hear of serious gun accidents that might have been avoided if young hunters (and some of their elders) were better acquainted with the handling of their sporting arms. Some folks don't like firearms and deny their sons the right to use them. Someday a lot of these boys are going to get around to doing a little shooting anyway. They'll be a lot better off with supervised shooting as offered by the gun club. Even the experts can have mishaps some times, but a lot of accidents can be cut down with a better knowledge of the gun in hand and how to use it. This summer may be the time to accept the opportunity to learn.

"It has been called to my attention that some of the fishermen in your area are under the impression that Clear Lake, located in Richland parish, has been closed to fishing. This is entirely false. Clear Lake has not been closed to fishing and the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission has no intention of closing this lake to fishing. We are extremely desirous of having all fishermen of your area who desire to fish in Clear Lake utilize its sportfishing opportunities. Our only intention on Clear Lake is to get a complete check of the fishermen and number and kinds of fish they catch in order to evaluate our experimental management program.."

The Bulldogs and Demons tied for the Gulf States Conference championship and were selected by the district N.A.I.A.committee to play the best - two - out - of-three series to determine Louisiana's representative.

Tentative plans call for the victorious Bulldogs to leave from the Shreveport airport Sunday morning by Braniff Airlines to fly to Kansas City in time for the Tip-Off banquet planned for Sunday evening at the Muehlebach Hotel. The Techsters will stay at the Phillips Hotel in Kansas City.

Coach Cecil Crowley has announced that 10 players will make the trip. The include forwards Jap Gullatt, L. V. Norris, Joe White, and L. J. Fontenot; guards Billy Wiggins, Bill Bailey, Bub Haile and Hank Halverson; centers Chester Coker and Tony Graves.

This will be Tech's fourth time since 1942 to represent Louisiana at the Kansas City tourney. The Bulldogs played in the meet in 1942, 1946 and 1953.

Bribe Attempt Of Niagara U. Cager Reported

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 5 (AP)—An attempt apparently was made three days ago to bribe a member of Niagara University's N.I.T.-bound basketball Memorial Auditorium, it was reliably reported tonight.

The player involved was Charlie Hoxie, co-captain of the club who is scoring at an average of 13 points a game. The only confirmation came from a Niagara official who, when asked for comment, replied:

"We're very proud of Charlie."

Hoxie is understood to have reported a telephone call he received to Coach John J. (Taps) Gallagher. The incident was turned over to Niagara county District Attorney William Earl, who secured court permission to have Hoxie's telephone tapped in case he received other calls.

It was not learned whether any further calls were received.

O. C. U. Cager 1st To Play 4 NCAA Meets

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 5 (AP)—Gerald Bullard, senior guard on the Oklahoma City University basketball team, will set a new NCAA record next tuesday night but he won't get any trophy for it.

Bullard will be the first basketball player to compete in four consecutive NCAA tournaments.

Also, Oklahoma City will be the second team ever to play in four consecutive NCAA meets. The Chiefs take on Bradley University in a playoff game at nearby El Reno between the two western at-large clubs.

Bullard, a sandy haired, 6-foot-2 player from Edmond Okla., played his first NCAA tourney game in 1952 when the Chiefs met UCLA at Carvallis, Wash. NCAA rules permitted freshmen participation that year.

JENA, La., March 5 (Special) —The Jena Giants, fighting from behind in the last four minutes, shaded the Minden Crimson Wave, 65-62, in a rousing battle before a capacity basketball championship but Minden, as the runner-up in the north, still will get a crack at the state title.

The Giants hooped the first basket of the game, but moments later Minden went ahead to stay until the last four minutes when a layup by Jimmy Tullos gave Jena a tie at 57-57. The score rocked back and forth until Ronald Manchester s jump shot sent the Giants into a 61-59 lead they never lost.

Jena, with a season record of 40-5, will meet the south's runner-up team in the first game of the state semi-finals at a time and place to be decided. Minden will meet the south's winner. Victors in the state preliminaries will tangle for the state title.

Moreland, Minden, was high scorer tonight with 26 points, followed by Tullos of Jena with 24.

32 Teams Poised For 6-Day Kansas City Tournament

By SKIPPER PATRICK

KANSAS CITY, March 5 (AP) — Basketball's busiest and most unpredictable tournament, the national intercollegiate, makes its 17th week-long stand here next week.

The 32-team, small college meet sponsored by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, (NAIA) will open at 11 a.m. (CST) Monday and the championship won't be settled until Saturday night.

There'll be four day and four night games Monday through Wednesday, four quarterfinal bouts Thursday night, and two games each, Friday and Saturday nights. It takes five victories to win the crown.

There's never been a standout pre-meet favorite. The field appears especially strong this time with entries from 30 states.

St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kan., the 1954 champion, didn't qualify this year. The only ex-champion in the field is Southwestern College of Winfield, Kan., which won in 1939.

Among the more highly regarded teams are Western Illinois of McComb, which lost in the finals last year; Beloit (Wis) College, College of Steubenville (Ohio), Evansville (Ind) College, Gustavus Adolphus, Loyola of Los Angeles, Geneva and St. Francis of Brooklyn.

Alderson-Broaddus of Phillips, W. Va., and the Minor (N.D.) Teachers will open the tournament.

Welch, Roberts Return In Tag Match Tuesday

UP AND COMING young wrestler in his field is Mario Calendo, (above) who pairs with Red "Bullethead" Roberts in an Arena tag match Tuesday night against crowd-pleasing Lester Welch, who had the large-sized wrestling crowd on its feet during most of last Tuesday's feature, and Buddy Starr, Tulsa, Okla.

Another tag team wrestling match, featuring two grapplers who have never appeared here, holds sway at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

Lester Welch, Lawton, Okla., who made such a great impression here last week, not only with his wrestling ability and great variety of scientific holds, but by his sheer strength and unhesitating willingness to come to the aid of his tag partner, pairs this week with Oklahoman Buddy Starr, Tulsa, in the relay feature against Red Roberts, Little Rock, Ark. and partner Marie Calendo, Toledo, Ohio.

Roberts, whom fans will remember as the bullet-headed husky who paired with Red Scarr two weeks ago in a tag tussle, is the former southern junior heavyweight champion.

His partner Tuesday, Calendo, was recently featured in a Ring Magazine article on wrestling as a man likely to become much better known. From his photo in the same magazine, Calendo appears young and handsome, and is reputedly a popular, scientific ringman, who can get as rough as the situation demands.

Welch, siding with fellow Oklahoman Lee Fields last Tuesday was a component of the best tag match seen here for many a moon, and the big boy was easily the outstanding wrestler of the better - than - average quartet.

West Monroe's Bill Barney returns to action as referee Tuesday night, and will handle all bouts. There will be two one-fall, ten minute time limit preliminaries prior to the main go, each of which will pit opposing team members against one another.

St. Vincent Cops Victory In $115,900 Capistrano

By BOB MYERS

ARCADIA, Calif., March 5 (AP)— English-bred St. Vincent, in a rousing duel down the stretch with game little Determine and Gigantic, swept to victory today in the $115,900 San Juan Capistrano Handicap.

Racing before 58,000 fans, largest at Santa Anita park in two years, the 4-year-old chestnut colt, the betting favorite, flashed under the wire by half a length in the long, hard run over the Camino Real grass course.

The time for the mile and almost three quarters was 2.46 4-5, a new track record for the grind.

Andrew Crevolin's Determine, carrying high weight of 126 pounds, fought it out in a thrilling finish to take second place, and just back in third was Joe W. Brown's Gigantic.

St. Vincent, striking for his second major stakes victory of the waning season here, is owned by George Gardiner and the Alberta ranches of Canada, and was ridden by the veteran of the saddle, Johnny Longden.

St. Vincent, who whipped most of these same horses in the Washington Birthday Handicap, paid $7.20, $4.30 and $3.30; Determine returned $4.70 and $4, and Gigantic $8.40.

St. Vincent, carrying 123 pounds as the third high weight in the field of 13, was ridden just off the pace as moneybags Longden rode on to win his ninth stakes victory of the meeting.

Louis B. Mayer's Alidon was fourth while the well regarded King Ranch's Rejected was never a factor, and like such other hopes, Poona II of the Helbush farm, ran out of the money.

Poona II was installed as the betting favorite on the morning line but when the vast crowd began to pour the money through the pari-mutuels, it was St. Vincent as the betting choice.

Behind the first four, in order, were Great Captain, Rejected, Ole Travis, Nearque II, Salmon Peter, Impulsivo, Poona II, The Driller and Arctic Way.

LaSalle's Tigers Whip Port Barre By 56-53 Margin

OLLA, La., Mar. 5 (Special) The LaSalle High School Tigers of Olla nipped Port Barre, 56-53, last night to move a step nearer the throne room of the Louisiana class A basketball championship.

Coach Bill Walters' Bengals, now boasting a 29-9 record for the season, will meet the winner of Gueydan-Newman of New Orleans playoff next week in a preliminary of the four-team state finals. Other half of next week's program sends West Lake against Baker. The four schools involved will meet this week to decide the site of the games due to be played Friday and Saturday.

LaSalle gets in a tuneup Tuesday night when the tigers appear in their last regularly scheduled game.

The Port Barre game was close all the way with the South Louisiana club leading 27-26 at the half. Leon Sikes led LaSalle with 19 and had 17-point support from Lyn Russell and Ken Winberry. Dunbar led Port Barre with 20.

Dommert, considered the classiest of Port Barre players, was the victim of some leach-tight guarding by "Rip" Cannady who held the P.B. ace to 11 points.

32 Teams Poised For 6-Day Kansas City Tournament

By SKIPPER PATRICK

KANSAS CITY, March 5 (AP) — Basketball's busiest and most unpredictable tournament, the national intercollegiate, makes its 17th week-long stand here next week.

The 32-team, small college meet sponsored by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, (NAIA) will open at 11 a.m. (CST) Monday and the championship won't be settled until Saturday night.

There'll be four day and four night games Monday through Wednesday, four quarterfinal bouts Thursday night, and two games each, Friday and Saturday nights. It takes five victories to win the crown.

There's never been a standout pre-meet favorite. The field appears especially strong this time with entries from 30 states.

St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kan., the 1954 champion, didn't qualify this year. The only ex-champion in the field is Southwestern College of Winfield, Kan., which won in 1939.

In one of them, Tennessee A. and I., winner of the 8-team NAIA tournament here last December, was beaten by Texas Southern of Houston, 103-100, at Nashville, Tenn. Coe whipped Wartburg, 72-61, in the Iowa playoffs, New Haven (Conn) outscored American International, 86-67, and Kirksville (Mo) teachers trimmed William Jewell, 83-68.

Among the more highly regarded teams are Western Illinois of McComb, which lost in the finals last year; Beloit (Wis) College, College of Steubenville (Ohio), Evansville (Ind) College, Gustavus Adolphus, Loyola of Los Angeles, Geneva and St. Francis of Brooklyn.

Alderson-Broaddus of Phillips, W. Va., and the Minor (N.D.) Teachers will open the tournament.

Welch, Roberts Return In Tag Match Tuesday

UP AND COMING young wrestler in his field is Mario Calendo, (above) who pairs with Red "Bullethead" Roberts in an Arena tag match Tuesday night against crowd-pleasing Lester Welch, who had the large-sized wrestling crowd on its feet during most of last Tuesday's feature, and Buddy Starr, Tulsa, Okla.

Another tag team wrestling match, featuring two grapplers who have never appeared here, holds sway at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

Lester Welch, Lawton, Okla., who made such a great impression here last week, not only with his wrestling ability and great variety of scientific holds, but by his sheer strength and unhesitating willingness to come to the aid of his tag partner, pairs this week with Oklahoman Buddy Starr, Tulsa, in the relay feature against Red Roberts, Little Rock, Ark. and partner Marie Calendo, Toledo, Ohio.

Roberts, whom fans will remember as the bullet-headed husky who paired with Red Scarr two weeks ago in a tag tussle, is the former southern junior heavyweight champion.

His partner Tuesday, Calendo, was recently featured in a Ring Magazine article on wrestling as a man likely to become much better known. From his photo in the same magazine, Calendo appears young and handsome, and is reputedly a popular, scientific ringman, who can get as rough as the situation demands.

Welch, siding with fellow Oklahoman Lee Fields last Tuesday was a component of the best tag match seen here for many a moon, and the big boy was easily the outstanding wrestler of the better - than - average quartet.

West Monroe's Bill Barney returns to action as referee Tuesday night, and will handle all bouts. There will be two one-fall, ten minute time limit preliminaries prior to the main go, each of which will pit opposing team members against one another.

St. Vincent Cops Victory In $115,900 Capistrano

By BOB MYERS

ARCADIA, Calif., March 5 (AP)— English-bred St. Vincent, in a rousing duel down the stretch with game little Determine and Gigantic, swept to victory today in the $115,900 San Juan Capistrano Handicap.

Racing before 58,000 fans, largest at Santa Anita park in two years, the 4-year-old chestnut colt, the betting favorite, flashed under the wire by half a length in the long, hard run over the Camino Real grass course.

The time for the mile and almost three quarters was 2.46 4-5, a new track record for the grind.

Andrew Crevolin's Determine, carrying high weight of 126 pounds, fought it out in a thrilling finish to take second place, and just back in third was Joe W. Brown's Gigantic.

St. Vincent, striking for his second major stakes victory of the waning season here, is owned by George Gardiner and the Alberta ranches of Canada, and was ridden by the veteran of the saddle, Johnny Longden.

St. Vincent, who whipped most of these same horses in the Washington Birthday Handicap, paid $7.20, $4.30 and $3.30; Determine returned $4.70 and $4, and Gigantic $8.40.

St. Vincent, carrying 123 pounds as the third high weight in the field of 13, was ridden just off the pace as moneybags Longden rode on to win his ninth stakes victory of the meeting.

Louis B. Mayer's Alidon was fourth while the well regarded King Ranch's Rejected was never a factor, and like such other hopes, Poona II of the Helbush farm, ran out of the money.

Poona II was installed as the betting favorite on the morning line but when the vast crowd began to pour the money through the pari-mutuels, it was St. Vincent as the betting choice.

Behind the first four, in order, were Great Captain, Rejected, Ole Travis, Nearque II, Salmon Peter, Impulsivo, Poona II, The Driller and Arctic Way.

LaSalle's Tigers Whip Port Barre By 56-53 Margin

OLLA, La., Mar. 5 (Special) The LaSalle High School Tigers of Olla nipped Port Barre, 56-53, last night to move a step nearer the throne room of the Louisiana class A basketball championship.

Coach Bill Walters' Bengals, now boasting a 29-9 record for the season, will meet the winner of Gueydan-Newman of New Orleans playoff next week in a preliminary of the four-team state finals. Other half of next week's program sends West Lake against Baker. The four schools involved will meet this week to decide the site of the games due to be played Friday and Saturday.

LaSalle gets in a tuneup Tuesday night when the tigers appear in their last regularly scheduled game.

The Port Barre game was close all the way with the South Louisiana club leading 27-26 at the half. Leon Sikes led LaSalle with 19 and had 17-point support from Lyn Russell and Ken Winberry. Dunbar led Port Barre with 20.

Dommert, considered the classiest of Port Barre players, was the victim of some leach-tight guarding by "Rip" Cannady who held the P.B. ace to 11 points.

Sea O Erin Captures New Orleans Handicap By Neck

Leads Full Route To Trounce Spur On, Wide Margin

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, March 5 (AP) — Hasty House Farm's speedy Sea O Erin set a blistering pace and withstood stretch challenges from Spur On and Wide Margin to win the $62,900 New Orleans Handicap at the Fair Grounds today.

The front running Sea O Erin, a four-year-old son of the Irish bred Shannon II, held a length lead through most of the mile and 1-8th feature and outlasted Sam Tufano's Wise Margin by a neck.

Marvin Affeld's Spur On trailed Wise Margin by a neck for the show spot.

Sea O Erin and running mate, Mister Black, arrived from Florida Wednesday to run in the Handicap, richest offering of the Fair Grounds' 82-day racing season.

The Hasty House entry went to the post at 4-1 odds and returned $10.40, $4.60 and $3. Wise Margin, second choice in the betting to Spur On, paid $4.40 and $2.80 with Spur On returning $2.60.

Sea O Erin, ridden by Kenneth Church, streaked to the victory in 1:50 and 1-5th, 3-5ths of a second behind the track record.

Sea O Erin was highly regarded in pre-race forecasts, but was not expected to maintain his burning speed over the long route. But the alert looking Hasty House colorbearer fooled everybody and showed lots of stamina in outlasting the stretch charges of Wise Margin and Spur On.

Sam E. Wilson's Bugledrums broke from the gate first, but Sea O Erin took command as the field rounded the first turn and moved to a length and a half margin through the back stretch.

Mrs. Grace Kosiba's Sub Factor and T. P. Morgan's Grover B made threatening moves, but fell back as Wise Margin and Spur On both moved up as the 10-horse field swung into the long run for home.

The three matched stride, for the final quarter of a mile, but Sea O Erin was not to be denied.

The victory was worth $45,500 to Hasty House Farm, which also picked up $2,500 since Mister Black finished fourth.

A crowd of 18,000 turned out for the 28th running of the handicap. The temperature was in the high 70s and a brilliant sun streamed down all afternoon.

Church set a record with the victory, his third in the handicap. He won with Mount Marcy in 1951 and repeated with Hasty House's Oil Capitol in 1952.

Loblolly ($7.40) took the first and Lullaby Time ($61.60) won the second for a daily double for $235.60.

A consolation daily double of $7.60 resulted when Lanky John was a late scratch in the second race.

WHITE SOX

Sugar Ray Calls Off Fight Shortly Before Ring Time

BOSTON, March 5 (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson, former welter and middleweight boxing champion attempting a comeback, withdrew from his scheduled 10-round bout with Georgie Small of Brooklyn tonight only a few hours before ring time.

Robinson claimed that he was ill, but boxing commissioner Dr. Edwin H. Hormel said after an examination he "found no evidence of sickness or injury which would warrant me to postpone the fight."

Matchmaker Sam Silverman of Callahan A. C. cancelled the Boston Garden card and said he would seek to have Robinson suspended.

Silverman said that Robinson notified him at 4:30 p.m. (CST) that he was ill. The boxing commission then requested Dr. Hormel to examine the former champion in his hotel room.

Dr. Hormel reported that he examined Robinson "in the presence of his personal prysician (Dr. Robert F. Moore)" and said:

"In consultation with Dr. Moore it was agreed . . . that there was no objective medical evidence which warrant postponement of the fight tonight."

Robinson appeared at the boxing commission offices at 1 p.m. for a physical examination and at that time made no mention of feeling ill, boxing commissioner Joe Reardon said.

DODGERS

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 5 (AP) —Karl Sponer, late 1954 season Brooklyn pitching sensation, who took the mound for the first time since his winter cartilage operation today and gave a highly impressive exhibition.

"My knee still feels a little weak," said the 23-year-old southpaw who struck out 27 men for a record while hurling two shutouts last September. "But it doesn't bother my pitching."

GIANTS

PHOENIX, March 5 (AP) —The New York Giants engaged in their first intra-squad game today and wound up in a 1-1 tie between the Freddy Fitzsimmons and the Herman Frankses.

RED SOX

SARASOTA, Fla., March 5 (AP) — After displaying mid-season form in pitching batting practice, 6-7 Frank Sullivan was named today to take a turn on the mound in the first of the two Boston Red Sox intra-squad games Monday and Tuesday.

CARDINALS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5 (AP) —Rookie outfielder Bill Verdon has what St. Louis Cardinal manager Eddie Stanky calls a "pleasing fault" — he's too fast.

He gets the ball away quickly, but so quickly he sometimes sacrifices accuracy. So the Cards are giving him polish.

REDLEGS

TAMPA, Fla., March 5 (AP) —The Kluszewskis walloped the Bells 7-1 today in an intrasquad Cincinnati Redleg game in which batters were permitted four strikes and pitchers five balls.

Bob Borkowski smashed a bases-loaded home run for the squad captained by Ted Kluszewski. Rookie Bob Thurman homered for the only run scored by Gus Bell's boys.

YANKEES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5 (AP) —Casey Stengel today called this year's squad the "best conditioned of my seven years as manager of the Yankees." The manager then named New York's pitchers for the opening exhibition game against the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday.

"Whitey Ford is in the best shape I've seen him and he'll open," Stengel said. "Bob Turley follows and Tom Morgan works the last three innings."

WHITE SOX

TAMPA, Fla., March 5 (AP) — Manager Marty Marion named seven pitchers of the rookie variety to handle the mound chores in the Chicago White Sox' first intrasquad game tomorrow.

Of the group, all except Connie Johnson are headed for farm jobs in the Sox chain.

CUBS

MESA, Ariz., March 5 (AP) —Veterans Bubba Church and Hal Jeffcoat head a sextet of pitchers who will hurl in tomorrow's Cub seven-inning intrasquad game.

The others will be Al Lary, Don Elston, John Andre and Bob Zick.

No high school team will play any independent team, but the high school games will be held in conjunction with the independent games.

Trophies will be awarded boys' and girls' teams in both the independent and high school divisions.

Sugar Ray Calls Off Fight Shortly Before Ring Time

BOSTON, March 5 (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson, former welter and middleweight boxing champion attempting a comeback, withdrew from his scheduled 10-round bout with Georgie Small of Brooklyn tonight only a few hours before ring time.

Robinson claimed that he was ill, but boxing commissioner Dr. Edwin H. Hormel said after an examination he "found no evidence of sickness or injury which would warrant me to postpone the fight."

Matchmaker Sam Silverman of Callahan A. C. cancelled the Boston Garden card and said he would seek to have Robinson suspended.

Silverman said that Robinson notified him at 4:30 p.m. (CST) that he was ill. The boxing commission then requested Dr. Hormel to examine the former champion in his hotel room.

Dr. Hormel reported that he examined Robinson "in the presence of his personal prysician (Dr. Robert F. Moore)" and said:

"In consultation with Dr. Moore it was agreed . . . that there was no objective medical evidence which warrant postponement of the fight tonight."

Robinson appeared at the boxing commission offices at 1 p.m. for a physical examination and at that time made no mention of feeling ill, boxing commissioner Joe Reardon said.

Lions Club Urges Big Attendance At Phone Rate Meet

MANGHAM, March 5 —(Special)—The Mangham Lions Club today urged citizens to attend a public service commission meeting to be held in Monroe in the near future on the proposed increase in rates of the Avoyelles Telephone Company.

John J. McKeithen, public service commissioner, has not set a definite day, but said that it would be in the near future.

The Lions club announced recently that through the efforts of the club, the town of Mangham, and interested citizens, the Public Service Commissioner had refused to grant the proposed increase in rates of the phone company. Officials said that this was the third postponement that had been secured.

The proposed rates of the telephone company, according to the civic club, would mean an increase over their present rate of 66 2-3 per cent in some cases, a yearly increase of at least $6, with one exception, in every case.

The Lions club asked that any citizen who has received an overcharged bill bring it to the Town Clerk or a member of the Lions club immediately to be used as evidence at the hearing.

Lions Club Urges Big Attendance At Phone Rate Meet

MANGHAM, March 5 —(Special)—The Mangham Lions Club today urged citizens to attend a public service commission meeting to be held in Monroe in the near future on the proposed increase in rates of the Avoyelles Telephone Company.

John J. McKeithen, public service commissioner, has not set a definite day, but said that it would be in the near future.

The Lions club announced recently that through the efforts of the club, the town of Mangham, and interested citizens, the Public Service Commissioner had refused to grant the proposed increase in rates of the phone company. Officials said that this was the third postponement that had been secured.

The proposed rates of the telephone company, according to the civic club, would mean an increase over their present rate of 66 2-3 per cent in some cases, a yearly increase of at least $6, with one exception, in every case.

The Lions club asked that any citizen who has received an overcharged bill bring it to the Town Clerk or a member of the Lions club immediately to be used as evidence at the hearing.

Spectacles Found By 3 Young Boys

Three young boys have found and are holding for the owner a pair of rimless spectacles, they reported to this newspaper yesterday.

Lavelle, Johnny and Richard Brown, 14, 10, and 9, respectively, said they found the glasses near the Monroe end of the old bridge about 1:30 p.m. yesterday. They were in a light brown case, with silver - colored frames.

They said the glasses could be recovered by calling their grandmother, Mrs. H. E. Stuckey, at 2-6465.

BALCONY OF IRON LACEWORK

Fancy ironwork is a notable characteristic of most of the balconies in the old section of New Orleans.

While some of the ironwork was forged in New Orleans, most of it was imported from Spain.

These iron balcony railings of exquisite artistry reveal a civilization of proud Creoles who desired that the exterior of their homes recite a prologue of what could be seen inside.

EVERYBODY IS ASKING.....

HOW DO WE DO IT?

WELL — IT ISN'T EASY

THE MAIN REASON WE ENJOY A BIG VOLUME OF SALES IS THE FACT THAT WE DON'T GUESS.....

We Know The Market ...We Know Our Business

We appraise in the vicinity of 200 automobiles a week all over the country. We Do Know Quality as well as the market and we don't ask that big DOUBTFUL TRADE DIFFERENCE. We shoot at a steady low figure with our customers that insures us a SMALL MARGIN PROFIT.

We admit we do get beat on a trade once in while, but very seldom. 90% of the time we can beat any dealer on a Trade Difference or Price. We are not partial to any particular make or model car. We handle all makes and models and know their actual value.

There's probably a lot of dealers who would like to trade with you at a smaller difference figure, but they do not keep up with today's fast-moving market, are "Guessers of Values" and cannot afford to gamble. 10% of the time they will gamble and you will get a Good Deal — but the other 90% of the time you will end up paying much more than we ever ask.

So many people have asked us how we can price our cars so low. They figure there is something wrong with the car, that the quality is bad or that there's a "catch" somewhere.

WELL—HERE'S THE FACTS:

Our cars are as high a quality as you will find anywhere and we mean THE BEST. Sure OUR PRICES ARE LOW . . . .

ANY DEALER ANYWHERE can operate the way we do and price his cars as low as we price them but few of them will dare do this because 85% of the people have trade-ins and by working on a very narrow margin of profit, which Must Come with these low prices . . . his appraisals must be deadly accurate. IF he makes a slip and mis-appraises on this narrow margin . . . he loses money instead of making it. It's very, very easy for a dealer to lose money working on this basis. Every dollar higher a dealer prices his cars gives him that much more protection against Profit Loss when trading, and that's why they hold up their prices.

Also another advantage of knowing the market as we know we know it and knowing quality as we know we know it . . . we are able to buy cars at their true value and not over. We pass the savings on to you.

Some dealers won't buy or trade for certain makes or models because they say they can't sell them . . . we have never used that alibi. By saying this they are admitting they don't know the true market value of that car. If they knew it's value do you think they would turn down a chance to make some money?

We Can Sell Anything because we know where to buy it and how to price it. The same principle applies in any successful business . . . especially when competition is keenest.

The Car Buying Public owe it to themselves to buy where their "Dollar Goes the Fartherest and Buys the Mostest."

THAT'S HOW WE DO IT ...AND IT ISN'T EASY!

INTRODUCING
A New Kind Of Electric Typewriter
THE NEW ROYAL ELECTRIC

A typewriter that gives you new freedom . . . new ease of operation . . . the typewriter that was engineered with YOU in mind!

NEW FEATURES:

SPEED-FLO-KEYBOARD—Try it! You'll discover that the touch is smoother, faster, and lighter than that found on any electric typewriter yet designed.

COPY CONTROL—Sparkling carbons are now your meat with this major improvement. Just ask our salesman to demonstrate it to you.

FOOLPROOF REPEAT KEYS—Underscore . . . make hyphens . . . space backward or forward just by holding down the right key. You can't make a mistake, because these repeat keys operate independently of the regular keys. A ROYAL ELECTRIC exclusive!

INSTANT SPACE-UP KEY—You don't have to reach for the carriage knobs. You don't have to push the carriage return key. No matter where you are in a line, you just touch a bar and instantly you get as many spaces up as you like.

"MAGIC" MARGIN—Another Royal exclusive that gives you the fastest, easiest known method of setting margin. It does it automatically, thanks to the only spring-impelled margin in the electric field.

LINE METER—Your Royal Electric is equipped with a simple, easy-to-use paper slot indicator that tells you how much space you have left when typing near the bottom of a page.

NEW ROYALS ALSO AVAILABLE IN EXCITING PASTEL COLORS!

INTRODUCING
A New Kind Of Electric Typewriter
THE NEW ROYAL ELECTRIC

A typewriter that gives you new freedom . . . new ease of operation . . . the typewriter that was engineered with YOU in mind!

NEW FEATURES:

SPEED-FLO-KEYBOARD—Try it! You'll discover that the touch is smoother, faster, and lighter than that found on any electric typewriter yet designed.

COPY CONTROL—Sparkling carbons are now your meat with this major improvement. Just ask our salesman to demonstrate it to you.

FOOLPROOF REPEAT KEYS—Underscore . . . make hyphens . . . space backward or forward—just by holding down the right key. You can't make a mistake, because these repeat keys operate independently of the regular keys. A ROYAL ELECTRIC exclusive!

INSTANT SPACE-UP KEY—You don't have to reach for the carriage knobs. You don't have to push the carriage return key. No matter where you are in a line, you just touch a bar and instantly you get as many spaces up as you like.

"MAGIC" MARGIN—Another Royal exclusive that gives you the fastest, easiest known method of setting margin. It does it automatically thanks to the only spring-impelled margins in the electric field.

LINE METER—Your Royal Electric is equipped with a simple, easy-to-use page-end indicator that tells you how much space you have left when typing near the bottom of a page.

NEW ROYALS ALSO AVAILABLE IN EXCITING PASTEL COLORS!

Showdown Battle Near On Natural Gas Control

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, March 5 (AP) — President Eisenhower's special cabinet committee on energy supplies has cleared the way for another showdown battle on federal control of natural gas production.

There is indication the battle will be just as bitter as in 1950 when the Kerr bill squeezed through both Houses and met with a Presidential veto.

The Cabinet Committee on Energy Supplies and Resources Policy recommended there be no federal control over production, gathering, processing or sale of natural gas prior to its entry into an interstate transmission line.

Legislation spelling out such a federal policy has been a major objective of the oil and gas industry since the Supreme Court last June held that the Federal Power Commission has authority to control the price of gas in the field.

A proposal similar to the Kerr bill was introduced in the House several weeks ago but congressional leaders frankly expressed hope the cabinet committee could report before the gas battle got underway.

Membership of Congress has changed so sharply the Kerr bill vote cannot be taken as indication of possible outcome of the 1955 fight.

The Senate approved the Kerr bill, 44-38, on March 29, 1950. Only 27 senators who recorded votes in favor of the bill and 25 of those who opposed it are still in Washington.

After an early 181-131 vote, the House gave final approval, 176-174, on March 31, 1950. Only 109 proponents and 96 opponents still are in Congress.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), who authored the House version of the Kerr bill in 1950, this week introduced a bill apparently designed to carry out the recommendations of the Cabinet committee.

Gov't Considers Bar Of 'Worker' From US Mails

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— The government is considering whether to bar the Daily Worker and other organs of the Communist party from domestic mail under the Communist Control Act of 1954.

Abe McGregor Goff, solicitor general of the Post Office, said Saturday the department is giving "closest scrutiny" to the question.

"We intend to enforce all laws in the United States that will enable us to exclude Communist mail from circulating in the country's mails in any form whatsoever," Goff told United Press.

Foreign publications tending to incite civil strife or attempting to advocate the political policies of a foreign government already are kept out of the mails under the Foreign Agents Registration act of 1940. Most of this propaganda comes from the Soviet Union or the Iron Curtain countries.

Silver Anniversary Follies To Be Presented March 26

The Follies are coming to town! Not quite on the scale of Zeigfeld—but it is to be an extravaganza just the same!

Excitement is rife among the Junior Charity League membership since they voted to sponsor the "Silver Anniversary Follies" as a money-making project for the benefit of the Easter Seal Rehabilitation and Physical Therapy Center. The "girls" have a major theatrical production to whip into shape. Actually curtain time is several weeks away, but the Follies, to be March 26 at Neville High School auditorium, should be a bright spot of the spring season.

It will be a different group this time to take the limelight. The last Follies to be given by the league was in 1946. Since that time the organization has sponsored several marionette shows, and, jointly with the KNOE Happiness Exchange, outstanding nationally known performers. The league has always been recognized as giving real entertainment for the public's dollar.

The "Silver Anniversary Follies" are so called in honor of the 25 years of service given by the group to the community and the equipment for the rehabilitation center was selected to be the special project for this special year. The center, which wil be built by the Society for Crippled Children and Adults, will provide a place where persons who have been injured can be brought back to normal or near normal functional ability.

Other special projects of the league in the past three years have been the decoration of a children's room at the Ouachita Parish Public Library; the promotion of the establishment of a receiving home for the neglected children of Ouachita parish; the decoration of the children's reading room in the new St. Francis Hospital; and the equipping of the children's examining room in the Mental Health Clinic.

Some services are maintained by the league on a regular basis. The milk fund provides milk for underprivileged children up to the age of 12. Approximately $2400 are spent annually for about 10,000 bottles and-or cans of milk. At one time, the league bought a cow with the milk fund. The animal was loaned to a family with six children living out of town beyond the milk delivery routes. A calf was born and sold during this time. When the family moved into town, the cow herself was sold and the money returned to the milk fund.

Layettes, slippers, toothbrushes, and powder, as well as "Treat Day" twice a month, are provided for the children at E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital. At the Crippled Children's Clinic, league members provide medicine, take doctor's notes, and assist in clerical work. The league also maintains a "revolving fund" which may be borrowed by patients to travel to New Orleans for orthopedic operations.

Mrs. Cavitt Cookston, president of the league, has appointed Mrs. Ben Marshall as general chairman of the Follies. Working with her will be Mrs. C. D. Oakley, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Robert Wood, talent chairman, with Mrs. Joe Dixon, co-chairman; Mrs. Fred Westrom, wardrobe; Mrs. Paul Ransom, advertising, assisted by Mrs. John Savage, co-chairman; Mrs. D. V. Lofiin, publicity; Mrs. Jack Taylor, tickets, and Mrs. DeWitt Milam, patrons' tickets; Mrs. Grant Boardman, honeymooners' contest; Mrs. W. J. Riley, Jr., make-up; Mrs. Theo Terzia, props; and Mrs. Jack McCook, prize bar.

Music Guild Met Wednesday In Fairbanks

The Music Guild met Wednesday morning in the home of Mrs. R. L. Morgan of Fairbanks. Mrs. W. E. Williams, Mrs. D. N. White and Mrs. Cecil Massey assisted as hostesses. Arrangements of peach blossoms and daffodils lent a breath of spring. In a brief business session members of the club voted to send two delegates to the Music Club Federation convention in Alexandria and one delegate to the Biennial Convention in Miami.

Mrs. Robert Wroten gave an interesting discussion on opera. The operetta or light opera is often comic with dialogue used between musical numbers and with ballet numbers woven into the theme. Grand opera is more serious anl formal and is often woven around a tragedy. Operettas were originally presented to plebians while grand opera was performed for kings and the nobility. Many present day movies are made from light opera and many of the songs are well known by everyone and have become popular hits. Only a small number of modern American composers have attempted an opera because of the strict rules that have been handed down pertaining to grand opera. Musical numbers chosen from operettas and opera were performed by members of the club as follows: Mrs. Doyle Hamilton played The Firefly Waltz by Rudolph Friml. Mrs. Cecil Hill, accompaniel by Mrs. Willys Hopkins, sang Night in June by Offenbach. Mrs. Robert Bliss played a medley of Waltzes from The Merry Widow by Franz Lehar. Mrs. Tommy Spurlock sang Vissi D'Arte, Vissi D'Amore from Tosca by Puccini. Mrs. P. A. Poag played a selection from Blossom Time by Sigmund Romberg.

The Music Guild were honored by guests who drove down from Monticello, Ark., for the occasion, Mrs. J. H. Mosley anl Mrs. J. B. Holder. Members present were: Mrs. Robert Bliss, Mrs. C. A. Caldwell, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. R. W. Cretney, Mrs. C. L. Dillingham, Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. James T. Harris, Mrs. Cecil Hill, Mrs. Willys Hopkins, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. Cecil Massey, Mrs. R. L. Morgan, Mrs. L. C. Noland, Jr., Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. Tommy Spurlock, Mrs. C. W. Thacker, Mrs. D. N. White, Mrs. Robert Wroten.

Girl Scout News

Today, we hope, there won't be many people in the Twin Cities who do not know that we have Girl Scouting with us. This morning, and in some cases this evening, you'll see groups of green-uniformed girls and their younger, brown-uniformed sisters attending church services. This is in keeping with the first part of their promise, their duty toward God. There'll be others there, not in uniform, whom the public won't recognize as Scouts, but who are good Scouts just the same.

This afternoon at three o'clock the girls will hold their annual birthday program at the Ouachita Parish High School Auditorium. A simple program on international friendship and the presentation of the Juliette Low World Friendship pennies by troops will be featured. To this program everybody comes, the little brothers and sisters, big ones, too, Mother and Dad, Auntie and Grandfather.

Representatives from each troop will light candles on the birthday cake and will present the troop's Juliette Low money. Rumor has it that Troop 23 has set out to give the most money, though participation is more important, they agree. Anyway, they planned a family social affair, to which they invited the girls and boys of the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades at St. Matthew's School, and while all of them had fun, they were contributing to the fund.

Troop 21 did something similar, as they did last year, so maybe they won't lose their leadership to Troop 23. Most girls give a penny for each year of their age. Leaders do, too, one leader saying she gives a dollar because everyone knows she isn't a hundred years old.

After many girls heard Robbie McClendon tell about Our Chalet at the annual meeting, surely they have a greater interest in the fund. Who knows? Some year it may be a girl from our community who has that wonderful experience. There are other projects, too, that the fund carries out in order to help spread Scouting all over the world. Senior Troop 14 and intermediate troop 43 are two we've heard of who've planned to go to church together, have lunch together, and afterward take part in the birthday program.

The program will last less than an hour, so even the babies can come. If you are the parents of Scouts do your duty by seeing that your daughter gets a chance to go this afternoon. That means take her and some of her friends and stay and see what goes on. If you would-be Scouts in your family, come and bring them. And if you're interested in youth, whatever the reason, you're invited.

Listen to the radio, look at television, read the newspapers and magazines all this week for mention of Girl Scout Week. Church, homemaking, citizenship, health and safety, arts and crafts, international friendship, and out of doors are the programs being celebrated each day of the week.

Phi Mu Observes 103rd Birthday This Past Week

Thursday, March 4, marked the 103rd birthday of Phi Mu sorority. On this day, Phi Mus all over the world gathered together to celebrate the anniversary of its founding and to honor the three girls who established the sorority at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., on March 4, 1852.

Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., president of the Monroe Phi Mu Alumnae Club, announced today that as part of the observance of the day a Founders Day dinner was held at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

"Phi Mu is dedicated to the ideals of enduring friendship, loyalty to college and fraternity, high scholarship and service to others. Today, as in 1852, these same ideals guide Phi Mus in their daily lives," said Mrs. Gray.

Evidence of service to others is found in the many social service projects carried out on a local and national basis. Among these are toy carts in hospitals all over the country, scholarships, an international study grant administered in conjunction with A. A. U. W. and other similar endeavors. Assistance to crippled Navajo Indian children at Crown Point hospital, New Mexico was adopted as a national Phi Mu pledge project at the 1954 national convention.

Local officers of the Monroe Phi Mu Alumnae Club are Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., president; Mrs. H. Flood Madison, Jr., vice - president; Mrs. R. M. Simonton, secretary; Mrs. Hays B. Clark, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Lee D. Herron, reporter; and Mrs. M. A. Hawley, Jr., historian.

Music Guild Met Wednesday In Fairbanks

The Music Guild met Wednesday morning in the home of Mrs. R. L. Morgan of Fairbanks. Mrs. W. E. Williams, Mrs. D. N. White and Mrs. Cecil Massey assisted as hostesses. Arrangements of peach blossoms and daffodils lent a breath of spring. In a brief business session members of the club voted to send two delegates to the Music Club Federation convention in Alexandria and one delegate to the Biennial Convention in Miami.

Mrs. Robert Wroten gave an interesting discussion on opera. The operetta or light opera is often comic with dialogue used between musical numbers and with ballet numbers woven into the theme. Grand opera is more serious anl formal and is often woven around a tragedy. Operettas were originally presented to plebians while grand opera was performed for kings and the nobility. Many present day movies are made from light opera and many of the songs are well known by everyone and have become popular hits. Only a small number of modern American composers have attempted an opera because of the strict rules that have been handed down pertaining to grand opera. Musical numbers chosen from operettas and opera were performed by members of the club as follows: Mrs. Doyle Hamilton played The Firefly Waltz by Rudolph Friml. Mrs. Cecil Hill, accompaniel by Mrs. Willys Hopkins, sang Night in June by Offenbach. Mrs. Robert Bliss played a medley of Waltzes from The Merry Widow by Franz Lehar. Mrs. Tommy Spurlock sang Vissi D'Arte, Vissi D'Amore from Tosca by Puccini. Mrs. P. A. Poag played a selection from Blossom Time by Sigmund Romberg.

The Music Guild were honored by guests who drove down from Monticello, Ark., for the occasion, Mrs. J. H. Mosley anl Mrs. J. B. Holder. Members present were: Mrs. Robert Bliss, Mrs. C. A. Caldwell, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. R. W. Cretney, Mrs. C. L. Dillingham, Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. James T. Harris, Mrs. Cecil Hill, Mrs. Willys Hopkins, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. Cecil Massey, Mrs. R. L. Morgan, Mrs. L. C. Noland, Jr., Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. Tommy Spurlock, Mrs. C. W. Thacker, Mrs. D. N. White, Mrs. Robert Wroten.

Girl Scout News

Today, we hope, there won't be many people in the Twin Cities who do not know that we have Girl Scouting with us. This morning, and in some cases this evening, you'll see groups of green-uniformed girls and their younger, brown-uniformed sisters attending church services. This is in keeping with the first part of their promise, their duty toward God. There'll be others there, not in uniform, whom the public won't recognize as Scouts, but who are good Scouts just the same.

This afternoon at three o'clock the girls will hold their annual birthday program at the Ouachita Parish High School Auditorium. A simple program on international friendship and the presentation of the Juliette Low World Friendship pennies by troops will be featured. To this program everybody comes, the little brothers and sisters, big ones, too, Mother and Dad, Auntie and Grandfather.

Representatives from each troop will light candles on the birthday cake and will present the troop's Juliette Low money. Rumor has it that Troop 23 has set out to give the most money, though participation is more important, they agree. Anyway, they planned a family social affair, to which they invited the girls and boys of the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades at St. Matthew's School, and while all of them had fun, they were contributing to the fund.

Troop 21 did something similar, as they did last year, so maybe they won't lose their leadership to Troop 23. Most girls give a penny for each year of their age. Leaders do, too, one leader saying she gives a dollar because everyone knows she isn't a hundred years old.

After many girls heard Robbie McClendon tell about Our Chalet at the annual meeting, surely they have a greater interest in the fund. Who knows? Some year it may be a girl from our community who has that wonderful experience. There are other projects, too, that the fund carries out in order to help spread Scouting all over the world. Senior Troop 14 and intermediate troop 43 are two we've heard of who've planned to go to church together, have lunch together, and afterward take part in the birthday program.

The program will last less than an hour, so even the babies can come. If you are the parents of Scouts do your duty by seeing that your daughter gets a chance to go this afternoon. That means take her and some of her friends and stay and see what goes on. If you would-be Scouts in your family, come and bring them. And if you're interested in youth, whatever the reason, you're invited.

Listen to the radio, look at television, read the newspapers and magazines all this week for mention of Girl Scout Week. Church, homemaking, citizenship, health and safety, arts and crafts, international friendship, and out of doors are the programs being celebrated each day of the week.

Phi Mu Observes 103rd Birthday This Past Week

Thursday, March 4, marked the 103rd birthday of Phi Mu sorority. On this day, Phi Mus all over the world gathered together to celebrate the anniversary of its founding and to honor the three girls who established the sorority at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., on March 4, 1852.

Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., president of the Monroe Phi Mu Alumnae Club, announced today that as part of the observance of the day a Founders Day dinner was held at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

"Phi Mu is dedicated to the ideals of enduring friendship, loyalty to college and fraternity, high scholarship and service to others. Today, as in 1852, these same ideals guide Phi Mus in their daily lives," said Mrs. Gray.

Evidence of service to others is found in the many social service projects carried out on a local and national basis. Among these are toy carts in hospitals all over the country, scholarships, an international study grant administered in conjunction with A. A. U. W. and other similar endeavors. Assistance to crippled Navajo Indian children at Crown Point hospital, New Mexico was adopted as a national Phi Mu pledge project at the 1954 national convention.

Local officers of the Monroe Phi Mu Alumnae Club are Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., president; Mrs. H. Flood Madison, Jr., vice - president; Mrs. R. M. Simonton, secretary; Mrs. Hays B. Clark, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Lee D. Herron, reporter; and Mrs. M. A. Hawley, Jr., historian.

Tentative arrangements have been made to secure the services of a guest harpist for the next concert, in order to present a special musical number of unusual appeal.

Mrs. Marion Fisher was named to the board of directors, and will serve as publicity director. Plans were made for an intensified publicity program, to acquaint the community of the activities and personnel of the Twin Cities Symphony Orchestra.

State PTA Plans Spring Conferences

The Districts of the Louisiana Parent - Teacher Association will be busily engaged in spring conferences the forepart of March. This is the proverbial "Resolution" time for districts. Resolutions will be cleared in the district meetings which will be sent to the state convention for passage by the state organization at their April convention to be held in Shreveport, states Mrs. J. S. Goff, Shreveport, president.

Units throughout the state have been reviewing the State Platform as promulgated recently by the state board of managers. This platform includes stands on Child Welfare; Education, general, administrative structure, curriculum and finances; Saftey and Continuing Vigilance.

High on the agenda is the request that the State Board of Education and the State Superintendent of Education make available to the press and the public progress reports as to which recommendations of the George Peabody Survey of education in Louisiana have been carried out. The more public is informed on the progress of education in our state, naturally the more interest they will have in the education of Louisiana's youth, states Mrs. Goff.

The Louisiana P.-T. A. urges the development of a kindergarten system as a part of our state school system and that state funds be made available to help maintain kindergartens.

The Louisiana P.-T. A. urges the maintenance and expansion of all present funds provided for public elementary and secondary schools and the provision of additional funds for additional necessary personnel and facilities to provide maximum educational opportunities of all the increased number of Louisiana school children — the Tidelands Oil Revenue would aid in this endeavor tremendously.

The Louisiana P.-T. A. urges further study of the method of distribution of school funds in our state.

The Louisiana P.-T. A. continues to advocate the appointment of the state superintendent of education by an all - elected state board of education. Further that - the personnel of the state department of education be nominated by the state superintendent of education subject to the approval of the state board of education - and that the budget for the state department of education be subject to the approval of the state board of education.

The Louisiana P.-T. A. continues constant vigilance to prevent action which might impair: 1 — Louisiana Youth Commission; (2) Louisiana Legislative Council; (3) Evaluation center for detection of exceptional children (4) Louisiana state library's program, including its extention; (5) Upward revision of teacher salary schedule; (6) the principle of a strong teacher tenure law (7) State Civil Service by Constitutional provision (8) Statewide stock law (9) Motor vehicle financial responsibility law (10) Child labor law (11) The teaching of the facts concerning alcohol and narcotics. (12) Rigid enforcement of the laws against commercialized vice.

News From The Public Library

Librarians and bookstores all over the country have noticed that there is a steadily increasing interest in the reading of books of a "serious" and religious nature. This is especially true during the Lenten season. This year we purchased copies of reading lists for the Lenten season to distribute to the patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. After the lists came out, we found that we needed to purchase new titles on this list. The books arrived at the first of the week and were placed for circulation on Wednesday. Within two hours all of them had been checked out. This is a good example of the need for literature of this type.

Let's take a look at some of the titles in case one that you want to read is out your branch of the library and ask for it. "Creed of Our Hope" by Merrill R. Abbey is a very helpful and hopeful book on the Apostle's Creed. It is brief, realistic and vital. "Each One Teach One, Frank Laubach" by Marjorie Medary is the story of a man of vision and his crusade for literacy. It is a stimulating story of what one man has done for Christ. "The Early Evangelicals" by L. E. Elliott - Binns is a fascinating survey of the English Church in the eighteenth century.

"Horns and Halos In Human Nature" by J. Wallace Hamilton is a vivid retelling of the parable of the prodigal son and a group of sermons based on this parable. "Immortality, The Scientific Concept" by Alson J. Smith, discusses the efforts being used by scientists to explore spiritual phenomena.

"Smoke on the Mountain" by Joy Davidman is a fresh and new interpretation of the Ten Commandments. "The Meaning of Holiness" by Louis Lavelle is a book of reflections on what sanctity is, written by a very head French thinker. "Padre Pro" is a very readable account of the life of a Mexican Jesuit who died a martyr's death in 1927. "St. Thomas More" by E. E. Reynolds is a beautifully written biography. "The Story of the Rosary" by J. G. Shaw ransacks all previous literature on this subject and comes up with fresh though it may sometimes be venturesome conclusions. "The Third Revolution" by Karl Stern is a splendid discussion of the relation of psychiatry and religion.

There are many other fine books on the Lenten reading lists and the Ouachita Parish Public Library invites you to read at this season.

More Stretch Planned For Wardrobes

NEW YORK -- Until now, the term "stretch" has applied to the budget when a housewife went shopping. But this spring and summer, it also applies to what she wears.

More and more women's clothing is being made in yarns that stretch to fit body contours but spring back for easy storage or packing of the garments. First appearing in men's socks, the yarns now are made into women's knee socks, stockings, briefs, girdles, gloves and bathing suits. Sweaters are in the experimental stage.

Wise Buying And Important Dates

How To Be Wise With Your Buys:

Buying fabrics and ready made garments today is more confusing than in the past. Manufacturers have gone all out to make fabrics glamorous. Cottons have had new treatments to make them crease resistant, ever glazed, easy to wash, quick drying, easy to iron, to control shrinkage, made color fast, and permanently treated so that starching is not necessary.

Linen has also been given a treatment to make it crease resistant. The new man - made fibers, which have been appearing in such large numbers in recent years, are only responsible in part for the intense competition in the textile world today. Besides fabrics made from natural and man-made fibers, there is every kind of a blend of the various fibers on the market. It might be said the consumers are serving as willing guinea pigs to determine if all these new fibers and treatments are satisfactory for these uses. Labels are being made available by manufacturers so that consumers may identify fabrics and garments. These labels are the consumers' best information in wise buying. Informative labels tell fiber content, characteristic of the fabric and how to care for the fabric or garment made of the fibers or blend of fibers, whether it can be washed or should be dry cleaned, shrinkage, etc. Be sure to read the label when buying.

The Extension Service has a bulletin "Sewing" that will help you be wise with your buys. The Home Demonstration Club members spent January and Ferruary studying informative labels. These members can help you too.

Landscaping

Ground cover can be interesting and useful. It is a common problem to have clay embankments, hardpan under trees and shrubs, barren spots in the garden where sleeping bulbs lie. For each place there is an attractive ground cover. Here are a few well worth your try: ajuga repens, pachysandra, English ivy, vinca (trailing periwinkle.)

Dwarf Santolina is a low ground cover that is fine textured, yet compact. It must have full sun. This is considered a good plant for cemeteries.

If you have not tried bulbs in your garden, you are missing a lot. Order fall blooming bulbs now — Lycorus radiata (sometimes called red spider lilies), Lycorus aurea (lovely yellow), Lycorus squamigera (pink), or Lycora Alba (the white). As you enjoy the beauty of the spring flowering bulbs, take notes of those which you would like to set out next fall.

Council Meeting

March 19 is council meeting. Members are asked to bring with them a statement of health drives, polio, cancer, etc. which they assisted with and amount of funds raised. Also, the amount your club gave to each drive. Please bring the statement in written form.

Mr. Joseph H. Jones, Jr., extension sociologist will be our guest speaker. His talk will be on Family Life. You may bring guests to this meeting.

Simple Sewing Workshop

Every woman in the parish planning on taking part in a simple sewing workshop is urged to attend the planning meeting at 9:30 a.m., Monday, March 7 in the Agricultural aduitorium. Bring with you a tape measure. At this time the group will be divided into work units and workshop dates will be planned for each unit, also, place where workshops will be held. These workshops are for women who want to learn the speed up method of sewing. You do not have to be a home demonstration club member to participate in a workshop. Every one is invited to attend this planning meeting where the project will be discussed.

Wise Buying And Important Dates

How To Be Wise With Your Buys:

Buying fabrics and ready made garments today is more confusing than in the past. Manufacturers have gone all out to make fabrics glamorous. Cottons have had new treatments to make them crease resistant, ever glazed, easy to wash, quick drying, easy to iron, to control shrinkage, made color fast, and permanently treated so that starching is not necessary.

Linen has also been given a treatment to make it crease resistant. The new man - made fibers, which have been appearing in such large numbers in recent years, are only responsible in part for the intense competition in the textile world today. Besides fabrics made from natural and man-made fibers, there is every kind of a blend of the various fibers on the market. It might be said the consumers are serving as willing guinea pigs to determine if all these new fibers and treatments are satisfactory for these uses. Labels are being made available by manufacturers so that consumers may identify fabrics and garments. These labels are the consumers' best information in wise buying. Informative labels tell fiber content, characteristic of the fabric and how to care for the fabric or garment made of the fibers or blend of fibers, whether it can be washed or should be dry cleaned, shrinkage, etc. Be sure to read the label when buying.

The Extension Service has a bulletin "Sewing" that will help you be wise with your buys. The Home Demonstration Club members spent January and Ferruary studying informative labels. These members can help you too.

Landscaping

Ground cover can be interesting and useful. It is a common problem to have clay embankments, hardpan under trees and shrubs, barren spots in the garden where sleeping bulbs lie. For each place there is an attractive ground cover. Here are a few well worth your try: ajuga repens, pachysandra, English ivy, vinca (trailing periwinkle.)

Dwarf Santolina is a low ground cover that is fine textured, yet compact. It must have full sun. This is considered a good plant for cemeteries.

If you have not tried bulbs in your garden, you are missing a lot. Order fall blooming bulbs now — Lycorus radiata (sometimes called red spider lilies), Lycorus aurea (lovely yellow), Lycorus squamigera (pink), or Lycora Alba (the white). As you enjoy the beauty of the spring flowering bulbs, take notes of those which you would like to set out next fall.

Council Meeting

March 19 is council meeting. Members are asked to bring with them a statement of health drives, polio, cancer, etc. which they assisted with and amount of funds raised. Also, the amount your club gave to each drive. Please bring the statement in written form.

Mr. Joseph H. Jones, Jr., extension sociologist will be our guest speaker. His talk will be on Family Life. You may bring guests to this meeting.

Simple Sewing Workshop

Every woman in the parish planning on taking part in a simple sewing workshop is urged to attend the planning meeting at 9:30 a.m., Monday, March 7 in the Agricultural aduitorium. Bring with you a tape measure. At this time the group will be divided into work units and workshop dates will be planned for each unit, also, place where workshops will be held. These workshops are for women who want to learn the speed up method of sewing. You do not have to be a home demonstration club member to participate in a workshop. Every one is invited to attend this planning meeting where the project will be discussed.

Get That Easter Bonnet Ready

March 29th, all day, women of Ouachita parish will have the opportunity to make that old hat new for Easter. Miss Margaret Brumby, clothing specialist of L. S. U., will help with a workshop in renovating hats. Call 3-2251 (Mrs. Fite) and enroll.

House Dresses Give Competition To Dior, Carnegie

NEW YORK — The world of fashion resounds with names such as Dior, Mainbocher and Carnegie.

But some of the outstanding style changes of the last 50 years have come from one fashion group which never boasted a hemline shuffler or "H" line creator.

The house dress industry, which was thriving when Christian Dior was still in knee pants, says that it not only has caused style trends, but that some of them have been copied by high-fashion designers.

Big Business

"We've been starting styles since we first came out with the Mother Hubbard," said Erwin Feldman, director of the National Association of House Dress Manufacturers. Some of the members of the association have been in business more than 50 years; the industry does a $500,000,000 annual sales, which Feldman said made it the largest single segment of the whole apparel market.

Some of its designers earn as much as $25,000 a year.

House dress manufacturers say they started the bungalow apron, the junior size, and the shirtwaist dress. The shirtwaist, which has been in and out of fashion for 20 years, now shows in several spring lines from top designers.

Helped Cotton

"We're the ones who helped get cotton out of the gingham and calico class," said Feldman. "We first used the multi-color prints. Later, the name designers took to cotton . . . now of course it's a year-round fabric."

The industry conceded that Paris and New York "names" influenced it, but not to the extent of faithfully copying their ideas.

"We watch trends," said Feldman. "We will adapt a silhouette, but not the frou-frou. Our idea is inexpensive smartness. Today's house dress is just as appropriate for shopping or an afternoon tea as for general home wear."

At their recent fashion show in Manhattan, the manufacturers featured the longer torso silhouette of higher priced spring lines. But it also clung to such all - time favorites as the coat dress, and the shirtwaist.

The fashioners were called "daytime dresses" at the show.

"But there's no attempt on the part of the industry to get away from the house dress label," said Feldman. "It's been good for half a century and it promises to stay that way."

Bedtime Sketches Replace Stories

NEW YORK — Joy Batchelor draws bedtime pictures for her two children instead of reading to them.

The kids like it that way and Miss Batchelor gets in return inspiration for the animated cartoons she and her husband, John Halas, turn out for a living.

"It's easier to draw picture stories than to read them," Miss Batchelor said. "And sometimes the children draw pictures, themselves, that turn out to be better than our own.

"We get good ideas from them. Of course, it won't last forever. They'll grow up. Children are much more imaginative than adults. Everyone under seven has an absolutely gorgeous imagination."

Miss Batchelor and Halas came here from their London headquarters for the premiere of "Animal Farm," their animation of George Orwell's famous satire on Communism. Their next effort will be "Pilgrim's Progress," which will include both live actors and cartoons.

Moods Reflected

The couple has made more than 100 government cartoons to publicize various ventures such as the Marshall Plan and NATO. They specialize in turning out cartoons for adults, but they test their ideas first on nine - year - old Vivien and five - year - old Paul.

Vivien draws quite well, according to her mother, but the boy "cares only for railway engines, which he does very well."

The children's artistic efforts frequently reflect the mood they are in and a few minutes at the drawing board often gives them a chance to let off steam, more or or les sas adults do, Miss Batchelor said.

"When Vivien is in a bad mood, she draws storms at sea, full of shipwrecks, or railway accidents with lots of bodies scattered about," the proud mother related. "When she is in a good mood, she does flowers and fields. It's really quite tranquil.

"There are days when we are littered with railway accidents and storms at sea. It's only a matter of handing out enough paper to keep up with the child."

GAS LAMPS IN HAMBURG— A mechanic checks one of 20,000 street gas lights in Hamburg, Germany. They are lit and dim out mechanically but often need minor repairs.

Remember Youth And Understand

BROOKINGS, S. D. — An expert suggests that parents can better understand the actions of their children by recalling the memories of their own childhood.

Mrs. Merle Gunsalus, a family life specialist of the South Dakota state college extension service, said that parents have within their own resources and personal experiences many of the facts and understandings needed to help their youngsters.

"Remembering how we felt and reacted to things in our own childhood and youth," Mrs. Gunsalus said, "gives us understanding for the how and why of the actions of our children.

"An honest attempt to see things on the child's level will very often give us the different slant we need because we have been giving consideration only from the adult viewpoint."

Mrs. Gunsalus said that all parents are confronted with more-or-less the same problems over a period even though they will vary in severity and form.

"This is true," she said, "because children are alike in many ways although they are separate personalities, each with strong individual differences and varying needs."

Students' Wives Want To Learn

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Mange and worms don't ordinarily hold much interest for young student wives, but Mrs. Ed F. Ebert says her weekly classes on animal ailments have become a big success with the girls.

Mrs. Ebert is the wife of the head of Missouri University's School of Veterinary Medicine. As such she was asked a few years ago to show the wives of senior students something about what their husbands are studying.

She obliged by offering a small group some instructions in handing the doctor his instruments and bookkeeping.

The wives showed such an interest in learning what could go wrong with an animal's health that Mrs. Ebert's night course advanced to laboratory techniques, such as administering anesthetic to a puppy and surgical procedure.

The class is strictly voluntary, with no credit given from the university. But Mrs. Ebert, who was a practicing laboratory technician at Ft. Collins, Colo., for four years before she married, says attendance is almost 100 per cent.

DRESSING LOW IN CALORIES

NEW YORK —If you're counting calories, watch for those hiding in salad dressings. Often dressings are high enough in calories to make up for loss elsewhere. However, here is one tangy dressing low enough in count to serve generously. Combine 2-3 cup cottage cheese, 1-3 cup fresh grapefruit juice, 2 tablespoons fresh lemon or lime juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon or lime rind, ½ teaspoon each of ground black pepper and paprika. Beat with an electric or rotary beater and serve either with fixed salad greens or fruit salad. Yield, 1 ¼ cups.

DOKEYS TO MEET

The monthly meeting of El Miro Temple No. 187, Knights of Kharassans, will be held Monday night, in Castle Hall.

Home Permanents Are Called Stain Problem

SILVER SPRINGS, Md. — The feminine desire for beautiful hair is proving costly to a woman's wardrobe, according to the National Institute of Dry Cleaning.

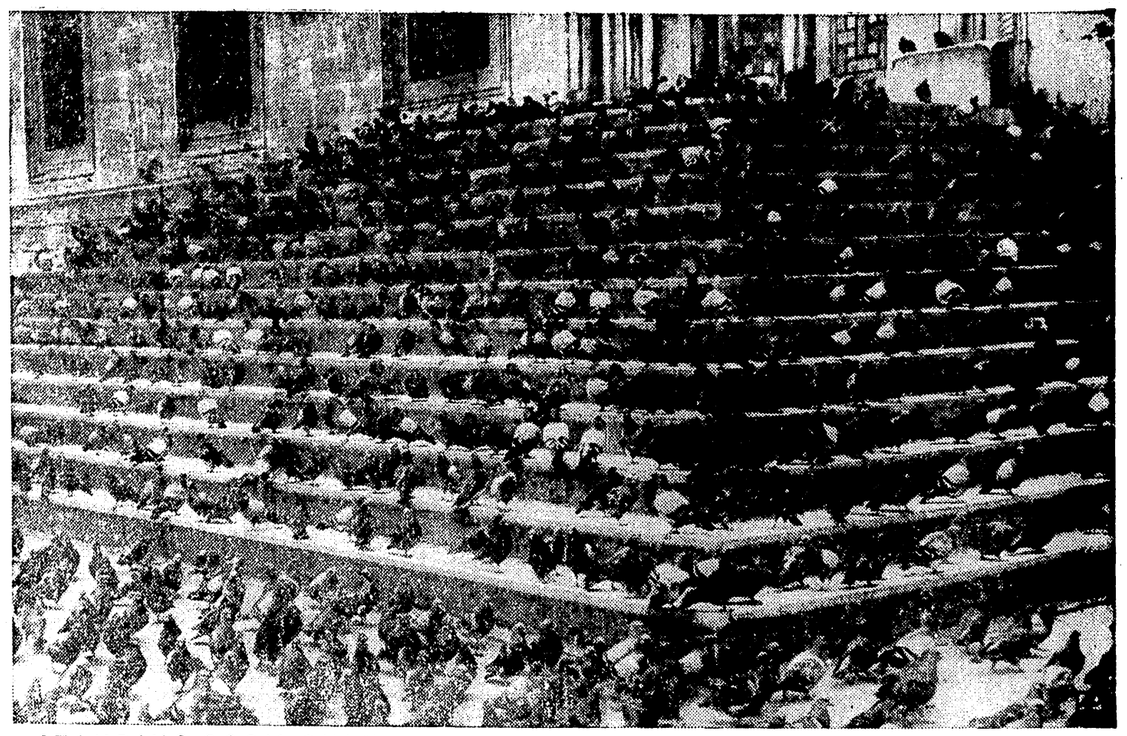
The institute reports an increasing number of women complaining that clothes in storage for a while fade around the neck and upper shoulders.

The institute's research department studied 220 garments damaged this way and concluded it was a familiar problem—loss of fabric color from permanent cold wave solutions.

The institute said that many cold wave solutions when spilled on a fabric do not cause an immediate color change. In some cases, it takes three or four weeks; sometimes, three or four months after cleaning before a color change develops from action of the solution's chemicals. It often is noticeable when garments are taken from storage.

All permanent cold wave solutions do not have the same effect on the same fabric. With some solutions, loss of color may show during pressing at home.

Here's a delicious and attractive-looking salad; tomato aspic with canned green asparagus stalks. Garnish with salad greens and serve with mayonnaise or French dressing.



STANDING ROOM ONLY— It looked like some sort of birds' convention as pigeons by the hundred took over steps and surrounding areas of new mosque in Istanbul, Turkey, recently. Latecomers couldn't find room on stage or balcony.

MICE PREFER THIS

KINGSTON, R. I. Zoologists at University of Rhode Island recommend a peanut butter and rolled oats mixture for catching mice. Two reasons—mice prefer it to cheese: it's easier to stick to a trap.

Saving money on nylons

Nylons would cost more if it weren't for advertising. Both the store and the manufacturers use advertising as their lowest cost way to get across news and information about their products.

Selling more goods this way makes mass production possible—which means lower production costs, lower selling costs, lower prices.

Yes, advertising is a low-cost selling method that helps keep your living costs down.

House Dresses Give Competition To Dior, Carnegie

NEW YORK — The world of fashion resounds with names such as Dior, Mainbocher and Carnegie.

But some of the outstanding style changes of the last 50 years have come from one fashion group which never boasted a hemline shuffler or "H" line creator.

The house dress industry, which was thriving when Christian Dior was still in knee pants, says that it not only has caused style trends, but that some of them have been copied by high-fashion designers.

Big Business

"We've been starting styles since we first came out with the Mother Hubbard," said Erwin Feldman, director of the National Association of House Dress Manufacturers. Some of the members of the association have been in business more than 50 years; the industry does a $500,000,000 annual sales, which Feldman said made it the largest single segment of the whole apparel market.

Some of its designers earn as much as $25,000 a year.

House dress manufacturers say they started the bungalow apron, the junior size, and the shirtwaist dress. The shirtwaist, which has been in and out of fashion for 20 years, now shows in several spring lines from top designers.

Helped Cotton

"We're the ones who helped get cotton out of the gingham and calico class," said Feldman. "We first used the multi-color prints. Later, the name designers took to cotton . . . now of course it's a year-round fabric."

The industry conceded that Paris and New York "names" influenced it, but not to the extent of faithfully copying their ideas.

"We watch trends," said Feldman. "We will adapt a silhouette, but not the frou-frou. Our idea is inexpensive smartness. Today's house dress is just as appropriate for shopping or an afternoon tea as for general home wear."

At their recent fashion show in Manhattan, the manufacturers featured the longer torso silhouette of higher priced spring lines. But it also clung to such all - time favorites as the coat dress, and the shirtwaist.

The fashioners were called "daytime dresses" at the show.

"But there's no attempt on the part of the industry to get away from the house dress label," said Feldman. "It's been good for half a century and it promises to stay that way."

Bedtime Sketches Replace Stories

NEW YORK — Joy Batchelor draws bedtime pictures for her two children instead of reading to them.

The kids like it that way and Miss Batchelor gets in return inspiration for the animated cartoons she and her husband, John Halas, turn out for a living.

"It's easier to draw picture stories than to read them," Miss Batchelor said. "And sometimes the children draw pictures, themselves, that turn out to be better than our own.

"We get good ideas from them. Of course, it won't last forever. They'll grow up. Children are much more imaginative than adults. Everyone under seven has an absolutely gorgeous imagination."

Miss Batchelor and Halas came here from their London headquarters for the premiere of "Animal Farm," their animation of George Orwell's famous satire on Communism. Their next effort will be "Pilgrim's Progress," which will include both live actors and cartoons.

Moods Reflected

The couple has made more than 100 government cartoons to publicize various ventures such as the Marshall Plan and NATO. They specialize in turning out cartoons for adults, but they test their ideas first on nine - year - old Vivien and five - year - old Paul.

Vivien draws quite well, according to her mother, but the boy "cares only for railway engines, which he does very well."

The children's artistic efforts frequently reflect the mood they are in and a few minutes at the drawing board often gives them a chance to let off steam, more or or les sas adults do, Miss Batchelor said.

"When Vivien is in a bad mood, she draws storms at sea, full of shipwrecks, or railway accidents with lots of bodies scattered about," the proud mother related. "When she is in a good mood, she does flowers and fields. It's really quite tranquil.

"There are days when we are littered with railway accidents and storms at sea. It's only a matter of handing out enough paper to keep up with the child."

GAS LAMPS IN HAMBURG — A mechanic checks one of 20,000 street gas lights in Hamburg, Germany. They are lit and dim out mechanically but often need minor repairs.

Remember Youth And Understand

BROOKINGS, S. D. — An expert suggests that parents can better understand the actions of their children by recalling the memories of their own childhood.

Mrs. Merle Gunsalus, a family life specialist of the South Dakota state college extension service, said that parents have within their own resources and personal experiences many of the facts and understandings needed to help their youngsters.

"Remembering how we felt and reacted to things in our own childhood and youth," Mrs. Gunsalus said, "gives us understanding for the how and why of the actions of our children.

"An honest attempt to see things on the child's level will very often give us the different slant we need because we have been giving consideration only from the adult viewpoint."

Mrs. Gunsalus said that all parents are confronted with more-or-less the same problems over a period even though they will vary in severity and form.

"This is true," she said, "because children are alike in many ways although they are separate personalities, each with strong individual differences and varying needs."

Students' Wives Want To Learn

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Mange and worms don't ordinarily hold much interest for young student wives, but Mrs. Ed F. Ebert says her weekly classes on animal ailments have become a big success with the girls.

Mrs. Ebert is the wife of the head of Missouri University's School of Veterinary Medicine. As such she was asked a few years ago to show the wives of senior students something about what their husbands are studying.

She obliged by offering a small group some instructions in handing the doctor his instruments and bookkeeping.

The wives showed such an interest in learning what could go wrong with an animal's health that Mrs. Ebert's night course advanced to laboratory techniques, such as administering anesthetic to a puppy and surgical procedure.

The class is strictly voluntary, with no credit given from the university. But Mrs. Ebert, who was a practicing laboratory technician at Ft. Collins, Colo., for four years before she married, says attendance is almost 100 per cent.

Home Permanents Are Called Stain Problem

SILVER SPRINGS, Md. — The feminine desire for beautiful hair is proving costly to a woman's wardrobe, according to the National Institute of Dry Cleaning.

The institute reports an increasing number of women complaining that clothes in storage for a while fade around the neck and upper shoulders.

The institute's research department studied 220 garments damaged this way and concluded it was a familiar problem—loss of fabric color from permanent cold wave solutions.

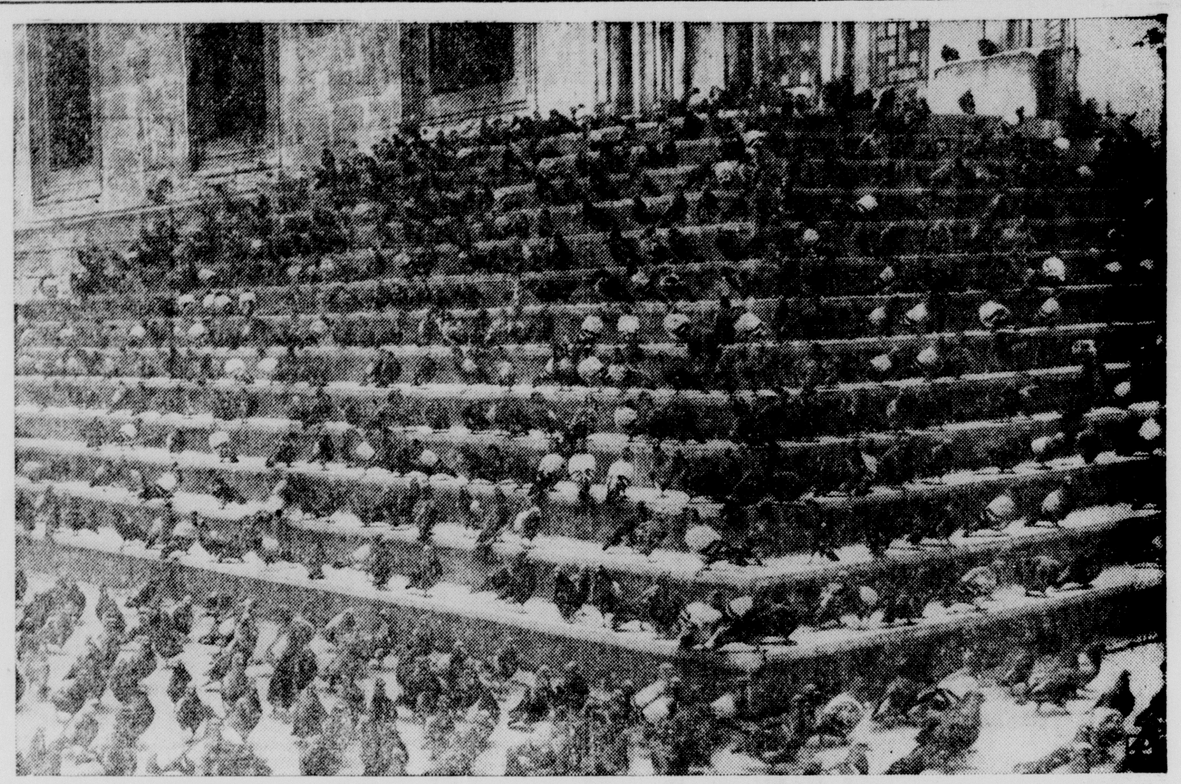
The institute said that many cold wave solutions when spilled on a fabric do not cause an immediate color change. In some cases, it takes three or four weeks; sometimes, three or four months after cleaning before a color change develops from action of the solution's chemicals. It often is noticeable when garments are taken from storage.

All permanent cold wave solutions do not have the same effect on the same fabric. With some solutions, loss of color may show during pressing at home.

Here's a delicious and attractive-looking salad; tomato aspic with canned green asparagus stalks. Garnish with salad greens and serve with mayonnaise or French dressing.

DRESSING LOW IN CALORIES

NEW YORK —If you're counting calories, watch for those hiding in salad dressings. Often dressings are high enough in calories to make up for loss elsewhere. However, here is one tangy dressing low enough in count to serve generously. Combine 2-3 cup cottage cheese, 1-3 cup fresh grapefruit juice, 2 tablespoons fresh lemon or lime juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon or lime rind, ½ teaspoon each of ground black pepper and paprika. Beat with an electric or rotary beater and serve either with fixed salad greens or fruit salad. Yield, 1 ¼ cups.



STANDING ROOM ONLY — It looked like some sort of birds' convention as pigeons by the hundred took over steps and surrounding areas of new mosque in Istanbul, Turkey, recently. Latecomers couldn't find room on stage or balcony.

MICE PREFER THIS

KINGSTON, R. I. Zoologists at University of Rhode Island recommend a peanut butter and rolled oats mixture for catching mice. Two reasons—mice prefer it to cheese: it's easier to stick to a trap.

Saving money on nylons

Nylons would cost more if it weren't for advertising. Both the store and the manufacturers use advertising as their lowest cost way to get across news and information about their products.

Selling more goods this way makes mass production possible—which means lower production costs, lower selling costs, lower prices.

Yes, advertising is a low-cost selling method that helps keep your living costs down.

Prints Leading Cotton Parade

DALLAS — If it's cotton this summer, nine times out of 10 it also is a print.

Prints — geometric, floral and novelty — dominate in warm weather fashions from Dallas manufacturers who will show their complete lines next week (March 6-9) to fashion reporters from various parts of the nation.

Everything under and including the sun appears in the print parade from the southwest.

One manufacturer leans strongly toward miniature rosebuds; another toward novelty prints such as chickens in the barnyard; and still others have come under the Oriental influence.

Somewhere between, the woman shopping for summer cottons and linens will find the gardening, farming, travel and hobby theme. There also are prints featuring sea shells, safety pins, calypso music-makers, and puppets.

Prints are combined frequently with solid shades, but always the solid matches the sharpest or predominent color of the print to give what the manufacturers call "the well-planned look."

Wide Fabric Range

Printed shorts are featured with solid-color blouses for active sportswear. For spectator and street wear, the manufacturers show the solid suit with box jacket and printed blouse, or jumper with print blouse. Incidentally, without the blouse, the jumper doubles as a sun dress.

The fabric range is greater than ever this spring. Leaders are poplins, cotton sharkskin, crinkled cotton seersucker, denim, linen, rayon and acetate sharkskin, and for suits nubby-weave silk blends.

Other highlights from the Dallas manufacturers:

The long-sleeved tail shirt to be worn as an over-blouse, with or without the belt; suggested for shorts, or when in dressy fabrics, for wear over a slim, pleated skirt. The shirts are in bold stripes or paids.

The shirtwaist dress. Dallas manufacturers feature it both for spectator sports and dress-up. It is shown with three-quarter or long sleeves, in voiles, dimities, tissue weight silks, cotton pongee, and dacron.

Books Can Now Talk

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Did you ever wish books could talk? Well, now they can, thanks to the efforts of a book-loving couple named Bernard and Darlene Geis, who decided somebody had to do something to give books a fighting chance in the battle for children's interests waged by television, movies and radio.

"We had been working on a new series of books for preschool children," says Darlene, who is the mother of two sons, Peter, 11, and Stephen, 5. "That's our field. Bernard edits children's books and I write them. We worked hard getting the kind of pictures that would appeal to nonreading readers, and tried them all out on our boys.

"But my husband kept saying it wasn't quite enough—the books should be able to speak for themselves."

One evening he rushed home with a strange-looking book. It had a round piece of grooved paper glued on the front cover and a hole punched in the middle.

They read the book to Peter and Stephen, they looked at the pictures, then Daddy said nonchalantly to the boys:

"Now put this on your phonograph and play it."

The youngsters stared in disbelief, but obeyed, and suddenly the room was full of sound. The book was talking.

Mr. and Mrs. Geis now have 10 such books in process of publication.

The record is not just a repetition of the text, but is coordinated with it, with musical arrangements by Jimmy Carroll and a 15-piece orchestra. When the story has to do with a farm, the sound track has the voices of real farm animals. When it's about the zoo, children can hear a real lion's roar.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT GROUP DRIVE—R. D. Kellogg, left, vice-chairman, and Fred Petty, right, chairman of the finance committee of the Monroe Area Industrial Development Corporation, are shown as they turn over membership checks to Walter Koch, center, executive vice-president of the organization. Both Petty and Kellogg, who made their first report of results in the current membership drive, reported they are meeting with an overwhelming reception by leaders and businessmen from throughout the Monroe area. Vegetables Perk Up The Lenten Meals

NEW YORK — Colorful vegetables can add eye appeal to Lenten menus featuring such "blah" foods as fish, eggs and macaroni

Such foods as beets, spinach, brussel sprouts, green beans and tomatoes provide vivid accents as well as necessary vitamins Carrots or peas also "perk up" a plate, while garnishes of green pepper, watercress, parsley and pimento contribute to the overall appeal of a Lenten meal

The test kitchens of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association suggest this color treatment: add a few drops of vegetable coloring to mashed potatoes or cream sauce

You'll undoubtedly create a lot of table talk the first time you serve bright green or dusty pink potatoes, but the experts say this may be just the artistic touch necessary to life a "so-so" meal out of the doldrums

Sunday supper: golden - brown pork sausage links with apple rings crisp waffles and maple syrup.

Plan Pot And Pan Storage

MADISON, Wis. — You can have an up - to - the minute kitchen and still work as hard preparing meals as our grandmothers did.

Kitchen efficiency depends in part on arrangement of utensils and supplies, says Margaret McCordic, home management specialist, the University of Wisconsin.

She recommends you make a list of what items you have in the mixing, cooking and cleaning areas of your kitchen. Then store away the things you don't use frequently.

Watch the number of times you move from one area to another to get a spoon, spatula, cup of flour, mixing bowl, or other items. If you are taking too many steps, put sets of utensils in each working center of the kitchen.

If you can't get at dishes, bowls or baking pans without unstacking others, you need better storage space. She says it's easy to divide drawers into a file that will separate pans or covers. Between the shelves of cabinets you can attach half shelves about six or eight inches wide to give extra space. Metal cabinets require separate units.

Other hints to make utensils more accessible: Glue or nail partitions in drawers for cutlery. Trays for this purpose can be added in metal cabinets.

There's even more to Chevrolet styling than meets the eye!

This is beauty with a bonus . . . for Chevrolet styling is designed to add safety and comfort while you drive, and to return greater value when you trade.

Truly modern lines are shaped by usefulness. You can see what we mean in the deep crystal curve of Chevrolet's Sweep-Sight windshield . . . a dramatic style note, certainly, but one that stems from the need for wider, safer vision. Or take high-set taillights—they add to the impressive length of line . . . but they are up there where they can be seen for safety's sake; and as convenient guides in parking. So, too, with the jutting peaks over the headlights.

Prints Leading Cotton Parade

DALLAS — If it's cotton this summer, nine times out of 10 it also is a print.

Prints — geometric, floral and novelty — dominate in warm weather fashions from Dallas manufacturers who will show their complete lines next week (March 6-9) to fashion reporters from various parts of the nation.

Everything under and including the sun appears in the print parade from the southwest.

One manufacturer leans strongly toward miniature rosebuds; another toward novelty prints such as chickens in the barnyard; and still others have come under the Oriental influence.

Somewhere between, the woman shopping for summer cottons and linens will find the gardening, farming, travel and hobby theme. There also are prints featuring sea shells, safety pins, calypso music-makers, and puppets.

Prints are combined frequently with solid shades, but always the solid matches the sharpest or predominent color of the print to give what the manufacturers call "the well-planned look."

Wide Fabric Range

Printed shorts are featured with solid-color blouses for active sportswear. For spectator and street wear, the manufacturers show the solid suit with box jacket and printed blouse, or jumper with print blouse. Incidentally, without the blouse, the jumper doubles as a sun dress.

The fabric range is greater than ever this spring. Leaders are poplins, cotton sharkskin, crinkled cotton seersucker, denim, linen, rayon and acetate sharkskin, and for suits nubby-weave silk blends.

Other highlights from the Dallas manufacturers:

The long-sleeved tail shirt to be worn as an over-blouse, with or without the belt; suggested for shorts, or when in dressy fabrics, for wear over a slim, pleated skirt. The shirts are in bold stripes or paids.

The shirtwaist dress. Dallas manufacturers feature it both for spectator sports and dress-up. It is shown with three-quarter or long sleeves, in voiles, dimities, tissue weight silks, cotton pongee, and dacron.

Books Can Now Talk

AP Women's Editor

Did you ever wish books could talk? Well, now they can, thanks to the efforts of a book-loving couple named Bernard and Darlene Geis, who decided somebody had to do something to give books a fighting chance in the battle for children's interests waged by television, movies and radio.

"We had been working on a new series of books for preschool children," says Darlene, who is the mother of two sons, Peter, 11, and Stephen, 5. "That's our field. Bernard edits children's books and I write them. We worked hard getting the kind of pictures that would appeal to nonreading readers, and tried them all out on our boys.

"But my husband kept saying it wasn't quite enough—the books should be able to speak for themselves."

One evening he rushed home with a strange-looking book. It had a round piece of grooved paper glued on the front cover and a hole punched in the middle.

They read the book to Peter and Stephen, they looked at the pictures, then Daddy said nonchalantly to the boys:

"Now put this on your phonograph and play it."

The youngsters stared in disbelief, but obeyed, and suddenly the room was full of sound. The book was talking.

Mr. and Mrs. Geis now have 10 such books in process of publication.

The record is not just a repetition of the text, but is coordinated with it, with musical arrangements by Jimmy Carroll and a 15-piece orchestra. When the story has to do with a farm, the sound track has the voices of real farm animals. When it's about the zoo, children can hear a real lion's roar.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT GROUP DRIVE—R. D. Kellogg, left, vice-chairman, and Fred Petty, right, chairman of the finance committee of the Monroe Area Industrial Development Corporation, are shown as they turn over membership checks to Walter Koch, center, executive vice-president of the organization. Both Petty and Kellogg, who made their first report of results in the current membership drive, reported they are meeting with an overwhelming reception by leaders and businessmen from throughout the Monroe area. Vegetables Perk Up The Lenten Meals

NEW YORK — Colorful vegetables can add eye appeal to Lenten menus featuring such "blah" foods as fish, eggs and macaroni Such foods as beets, spinach, brussel sprouts, green beans and tomatoes provide vivid accents as well as necessary vitamins Carrots or peas also "perk up" a plate, while garnishes of green pepper, watercress, parsley and pimento contribute to the overall appeal of a Lenten meal

The test kitchens of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association suggest this color treatment: add a few drops of vegetable coloring to mashed potatoes or cream sauce

You'll undoubtedly create a lot of table talk the first time you serve bright green or dusty pink potatoes, but the experts say this may be just the artistic touch necessary to life a "so-so" meal out of the doldrums

Plan Pot And Pan Storage

MADISON, Wis. — You can have an up - to - the minute kitchen and still work as hard preparing meals as our grandmothers did.

Kitchen efficiency depends in part on arrangement of utensils and supplies, says Margaret McCordic, home management specialist, the University of Wisconsin.

She recommends you make a list of what items you have in the mixing, cooking and cleaning areas of your kitchen. Then store away the things you don't use frequently.

Watch the number of times you move from one area to another to get a spoon, spatula, cup of flour, mixing bowl, or other items. If you are taking too many steps, put sets of utensils in each working center of the kitchen.

If you can't get at dishes, bowls or baking pans without unstacking others, you need better storage space. She says it's easy to divide drawers into a file that will separate pans or covers. Between the shelves of cabinets you can attach half shelves about six or eight inches wide to give extra space. Metal cabinets require separate units.

Other hints to make utensils more accessible: Glue or nail partitions in drawers for cutlery. Trays for this purpose can be added in metal cabinets.

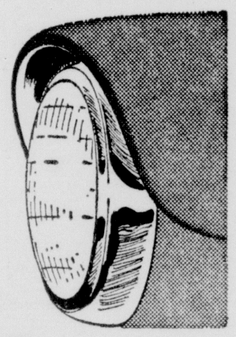
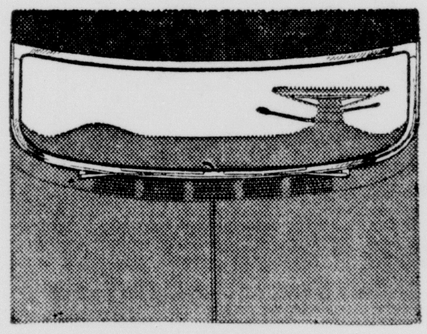
There's even more to Chevrolet styling than meets the eye!



1 Visored headlights



2 Louvered High-Level air intake

This is beauty with a bonus . . . for Chevrolet styling is designed to add safety and comfort while you drive, and to return greater value when you trade.

Truly modern lines are shaped by usefulness. You can see what we mean in the deep crystal curve of Chevrolet's Sweep-Sight windshield . . . a dramatic style note, certainly, but one that stems from the need for wider, safer vision. Or take high-set taillights—they add to the impressive length of line . . . but they are up there where they can be seen for safety's sake, and as convenient guides in parking. So, too, with the jutting peaks over the headlights.

The smart louvers across the hood aren't just decoration . . . they mark the intake for the High-Level ventilation system for cleaner, fresher air. And the whole shape of the body—its lowness, the dipped belt line—is merely a reflection of a lowered center of gravity, the added stability.

This is truly functional styling that serves you better every mile, and preserves its value against the distant day when you trade. Police Report Cases Of Three Stabbed Negroes

City police reported yesterday three Negroes were slightly injured by stab wounds in two separate incidents late Friday night, and two of them were jailed on various charges.

Those injured are Artis Jackson, 25, 806 Calypso; Arthur Coleman, 23, 1516 Short Washington, and Freddie Mae Calsey, 19, 1102½ Pine street.

Coleman and the Calsey woman were involved in the same incident, police said, and both were charged. Coleman was charged with aggravated battery, using a knife, disturbing the peace, and drunk, and the Calsey woman with the same charges except the drunk charge.

They were arrested as a result of a fight in a local cafe in which Coleman was cut on the right hand and the woman stabbed in the right thigh.

Jackson, who was treated at Charity Hospital and released, said he was standing in front of an Oak Street establishment when an unknown person stabbed him in the left shoulder. He could give officers no further information.

Dodd Thinking Of Race For Governor In '56

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. William J. Dodd said today he is thinking of running for governor in January, 1956, and if he does, "overlords of prostitution, gamblers, dope peddlers and white slavery racketeers" won't be able to hide behind "home rule."

Dodd, who ran fifth in the 1952 gubernatorial contest, was former Gov. Earl Long's second in command until they broke politically.

Lt. Gov. C. E. Barham, James M. McLemore, state Revenue Collector Rufus W. Fontenot, Sheriff T. H. Martin of West Feliciana Parish and Long already have pitched their hats in the ring.

Dodd received 90,925 votes in the 1952 first primary, placing fifth behind Carlos Spaht, Long's handpicked choice; Gov. Robert Kennon; U. S. Rep. Hale Boggs and McLemore. There were nine in the race.

Dodd, a Baton Rouge attorney, said "If citizens continue to join the 'draft Dodd' rolls—as they are now doing—I will become a candidate and win.

"In the very beginning, I want to emphasize, I will fulfill to the letter my oath of office—stamping out vice and corruption, whenever and whereever it is found."

Most candidates already have conceded gambling will be an issue in the coming campaign, an almost automatic reaction to the strict anti-gafbling drive of State Police Supt. Francis Grevemberg.

Marilyn Monroe May Play Role As Mary Pickford

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When the Mary Pickford life story hits the screen, it could well have Marilyn Monroe playing America's sweetheart.

Miss Pickford herself hinted yesterday that Miss Monroe would be more than acceptable in the role.

The famed star of silent pictures hosted a press conference at the fabulous Pickfair Estate to give her side of her long feud with producer Sam Goldwyn, much of which has been thrashed out in court.

Miss Pickford said she might direct the picture herself.

She said she will bid the limit for the studio which goes on the auction block April 2. The court has ordered this step to end long litigation.

Miss Pickford and the late Douglas Fairbanks bought it together in 1921. Goldwyn later bought out Fairbanks' heirs, although Mary still owns 51.75 per cent of the studio real estate.

Miss Pickford claims Goldwyn won't even give her a key to the studio.

"Since 1929," she said, "the lot has been one of the busiest television and movie studios in town yet I have never even received an accounting of the profits, much less any profits themselves.

"But Sam always makes sure that I pay 51.75 per cent of all tax and insurance bills."

Young Cage Star Dies Of Kidney Ailment In Ark.

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A boy who loved basketball more than life died here last night.

Dennis Sullens, 20, was regarded as possibly the top high school player in northeast Arkansas before he was graduated from Hoxie High, about 25 miles northwest of here, last year.

The skinny 140-pounder was told by doctors three years ago he had a kidney infection and would have to give up basketball if he expected to live very long.

Sullens quit school and went to bed for seven weeks. Then he got up and started playing basketball again. He led Hodle to the district championship and through the first round of the state class A tournament in 1954.

He suffered a broken thumb and missed the second game of the tournament. Hoxie lost to Jonesboro, the team that eventually won the title.

Since he was hospitalized three weeks ago, he had received cards from all over northeast Arkansas—from boys he had outplayed so many times on the basketball court.

4-H Club Week To Be Observed At Claiborne

The Claiborne Elementary school, on highway 80, West Monroe with enrollment of 200 will observe 4-H Club week at the Claiborne Methodist Church as a part of the church program.

Leaders of the club are: Clyde Miles, Mrs. Lela Hargrove, and Mrs. J. R. Frantom.

The county agents are Audrey Dawson and W. B. Aycock. Junior officers of the 4-H Club are: Judy Wilhite, president; Faith Howard, program chairman; Mary Martin, secretary.

The principal of the school, Miss Marguerite Norris with the members of the club, are looking forward to Achievement day and club camp, which are observed annually. In 1954 the club won first place in song and third place in yelling. Because of these successes, the students participating were awarded a trip to the state fair in Shreveport.

Blind, Deaf Pair Trying To Keep Custody Of Child

MIAMI, March 5—UP—A childless Miami couple appealed Saturday for permission to rear a 12-day-old boy who may be taken from his Ohio home because his parents are blind and deaf.

The father of the child, Harold Hathaway, Stow, Ohio, is the father of Mrs. Paul R. Baker Jr., who joined with her husband in asking for the baby.

Baker, an electric motor repairman, telephoned United Press after reading about the tragic plight of Harold and Georgia Hathaway, whose son was born with normal eyesight and hearing.

"That little boy is my wife's brother," Baker said. "We certainly would like to take him in if the welfare people in Ohio won't let Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway keep him."

Baker said he and his wife visited her father about 15 months ago and had not heard of the son being born until they read the story in a local paper.

"Juanita and I don't want that boy to go to a foster home if we can help it," Baker said.

Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway were married a year ago after a courtship carried on in Braille. He is 52 and she is 32.

A welfare worker visited their home in Stow this week and reported:

"For the child's good, he probably will have to be taken away from the parents to a place where he can be cared for better by sighted people."

Dulles To Make Nationwide Talk Tuesday Night

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will report to the nation Tuesday night on his Far Eastern trip.

The State Department said that Dulles, who returns here Sunday, will speak over a nationwide radio and television hookup at a time to be announced later.

Dulles has attended the Southeast Asian Treaty Conference at Bangkok, Thailand. He also has conferred on Formosa with U. S. ambassadors and Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek, among others.

Austria Making Big Headway In War Recovery

By MARSHALL FORMBY

VIENNA, March 5—UP—Austria has reconstructed 80 per cent of its war-torn buildings since the end of World War II, much of it with aid from the United States, Chancellor Julius Raab told this reporter and other radio and newspaper editors from the United States.

"I want to put this on record," the chancellor told me.

"Without the aid from the United States, we certainly would have been unable to rebuild so quickly. Here we have unity in our government and have had smooth cooperation between our two main political parties in stabilizing the economy and currency of Austria.

"We are grateful for the aid from America."

Raab told me that Austria is holding the line against communism.

When asked by an American reporter about the effects of Austrians being subjected to Communist propaganda, Raab said he believed his countrymen were immune from Red propaganda. He said that since the youth of Austria are living within the shadow of the Iron Curtain, such Russian propaganda has no influence on the youth of the land.

He pointed out that the Communist party got less votes at each election and that now the Reds hold only four seats out of 165 in the Austrian parliament.

Raab and Foreign Minister Leopold Figl, who formerly was chancellor, told us that Russia has many resources which they hoped to develop. They are especially anxious to develop the timber industry which is improtant to this small nation.

They said that Austria is now almost self supporting. This country is already selling hydro-electric power to Italy and Germany and is fast developing the iron ore industry. Agriculture is rapidly coming to the front, also.

The Austrian government has boldly attacked the acute housing problem throughout the nation and here in Vienna the city itself is making every effort to build enough apartments for those who are in dire need.

With rent control in effect, it has been many years since private capital has built any new apartment buildings. This has forced the city of Vienna to go into the House building business.

During the period before World War II, about 65,000 apartment units were constructed. Since the end of the war, 35,000 units have been built. There are at least 55,000 families now who have registered and are clamoring for housing.

23 Lives Saved In Two Months, Says Grevemberg

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Police Supt. Francis Grevemberg said today 23 lives were saved on Louisiana highways in January and February, compared with the same two months last year.

The two months represented the first fullscale operation of state police traffic violation teams, secret patrols that watch for careless driving.

Grevemberg said there were 24 traffic deaths on highways during February and 53 for the two months, compared with 76 for January and February in 1953.

Nine pedestrian fatalities were included in the 24 highway deaths. Grevemberg said the pedestrian toll was the largest in the last three years for a one-month period.

If the approximately 30 per cent reduction in highway deaths accomplished during January and February can be maintained during the entire year, he said, "we will have less than 300 highway deaths in 1955."

More than 400 died in traffic crashes on highways last year and 453 died in 1953.

Actress Mapping Plans To Run For La. Governorship

HOLLYWOOD —UP— Shapely Cleo Moore, ex - daughter-in-law of the late Sen. Huey Long, mapped plans today for her gubernatorial campaign in Louisiana, her home state.

Cleo, once married to Palmer Long, son of the late "Kingfish" governor of the Pelican State, says, "I have six more years to go on my movie contract, but after that I'm going to jump right into politics.

"First thing I'll do is close all the gravel and dirt roads in Louisiana and build the best four-lane super - highways in the country. A lot of my relatives live at the end of those dirt roads and it takes too much time to visit them."

Cleo's next objective is to build up Louisiana State University.

"When I get elected, LSU will play in the Sugar Bowl every year. We'll get the best players in the country down there, and I've got some new ideas on how to recruit those big husky boys," she added with a wink.

"Ask me what I think of Earl and Russell Long and I'll give you a straight answer. There's no finer name in the entire state. I think Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans is tops, too. We met once and he was very charming."

Cleo, who hit the front pages when a sizzling television kiss with a Chicago disc jockey got the lucky man fired, fearlessly tackled other Louisiana problems.

"Take the school problem down there," she said. "Well, I went to grammar school and high school there and Pope's Business College in Baton Rouge. There's nothing wrong with our school system, believe me. I learned a thing or two down there myself.

"And I'm four - square in favor of leaving the tidelands oil to the states. We've got a lot of that black gold off the coast and it rightfully belongs to Louisiana.

"As for the 'Right to Work' bill —everybody ought to have the right to work, or the right to loaf for that matter. Personally I want to work until I'm 108."

Cleo said she's received messages from all over the country since her appearance yesterday on a national TV show when she announced her intention to run for governor.

"I've already got a lot of backers," she said.

He said growers were enthusiastic over the experiment.

Marilyn Monroe May Play Role As Mary Pickford

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When the Mary Pickford life story hits the screen, it could well have Marilyn Monroe playing America's sweetheart.

Miss Pickford herself hinted yesterday that Miss Monroe would be more than acceptable in the role.

The famed star of silent pictures hosted a press conference at the fabulous Pickfair Estate to give her side of her long feud with producer Sam Goldwyn, much of which has been thrashed out in court.

Miss Pickford said she might direct the picture herself.

She said she will bid the limit for the studio which goes on the auction block April 2. The court has ordered this step to end long litigation.

Miss Pickford and the late Douglas Fairbanks bought it together in 1921. Goldwyn later bought out Fairbanks' heirs, although Mary still owns 51.75 per cent of the studio real estate.

Miss Pickford claims Goldwyn won't even give her a key to the studio.

"Since 1929," she said, "the lot has been one of the busiest television and movie studios in town yet I have never even received an accounting of the profits, much less any profits themselves.

"But Sam always makes sure that I pay 51.75 per cent of all tax and insurance bills."

Young Cage Star Dies Of Kidney Ailment In Ark.

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A boy who loved basketball more than life died here last night.

Dennis Sullens, 20, was regarded as possibly the top high school player in northeast Arkansas before he was graduated from Hoxie High, about 25 miles northwest of here, last year.

The skinny 140-pounder was told by doctors three years ago he had a kidney infection and would have to give up basketball if he expected to live very long.

Sullens quit school and went to bed for seven weeks. Then he got up and started playing basketball again. He led Hodie to the district championship and through the first round of the state class A tournament in 1954.

He suffered a broken thumb and missed the second game of the tournament. Hoxie lost to Jonesboro, the team that eventually won the title.

Since he was hospitalized three weeks ago, he had received cards from all over northeast Arkansas—from boys he had outplayed so many times on the basketball court.

4-H Club Week To Be Observed At Claiborne

The Claiborne Elementary school, on highway 80, West Monroe with enrollment of 200 will observe 4-H Club week at the Claiborne Methodist Church as a part of the church program.

Leaders of the club are: Clyde Miles, Mrs. Lela Hargrove, and Mrs. J. R. Frantom.

The county agents are Audrey Dawson and W. B. Aycock. Junior officers of the 4-H Club are: Judy Wilhite, president; Faith Howard, program chairman; Mary Martin, secretary.

The principal of the school, Miss Marguerite Norris with the members of the club, are looking forward to Achievement day and club camp, which are observed annually. In 1954 the club won first place in song and third place in yelling. Because of these successes, the students participating were awarded a trip to the state fair in Shreveport.

Blind, Deaf Pair Trying To Keep Custody Of Child

MIAMI, March 5—UP—A childless Miami couple appealed Saturday for permission to rear a 12-day-old boy who may be taken from his Ohio home because his parents are blind and deaf.

The father of the child, Harold Hathaway, Stow, Ohio, is the father of Mrs. Paul R. Baker Jr., who joined with her husband in asking for the baby.

Baker, an electric motor repairman, telephoned United Press after reading about the tragic plight of Harold and Georgia Hathaway, whose son was born with normal eyesight and hearing.

"That little boy is my wife's brother," Baker said. "We certainly would like to take him in if the welfare people in Ohio won't let Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway keep him."

Baker said he and his wife visited her father about 15 months ago and had not heard of the son being born until they read the story in a local paper.

"Juanita and I don't want that boy to go to a foster home if we can help it," Baker said.

Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway were married a year ago after a courtship carried on in Braille. He is 52 and she is 32.

A welfare worker visited their home in Stow this week and reported:

"For the child's good, he probably will have to be taken away from the parents to a place where he can be cared for better by sighted people."

Dulles To Make Nationwide Talk Tuesday Night

WASHINGTON, March 5 —UP— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will report to the nation Tuesday night on his Far Eastern trip.

The State Department said that Dulles, who returns here Sunday, will speak over a nationwide radio and television hookup at a time to be announced later.

Dulles has attended the Southeast Asian Treaty Conference at Bangkok, Thailand. He also has conferred on Formosa with U. S. ambassadors and Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek, among others.

Austria Making Big Headway In War Recovery

By MARSHALL FORMBY

VIENNA, March 5—UP—Austria has reconstructed 80 per cent of its war-torn buildings since the end of World War II, much of it with aid from the United States, Chancellor Julius Raab told this reporter and other radio and newspaper editors from the United States.

"I want to put this on record," the chancellor told me.

"Without the aid from the United States, we certainly would have been unable to rebuild so quickly. Here we have unity in our government and have had smooth cooperation between our two main political parties in stabilizing the economy and currency of Austria.

"We are grateful for the aid from America."

Raab told me that Austria is holding the line against communism.

When asked by an American reporter about the effects of Austrians being subjected to Communist propaganda, Raab said he believed his countrymen were immune from Red propaganda. He said that since the youth of Austria are living within the shadow of the Iron Curtain, such Russian propaganda has no influence on the youth of the land.

He pointed out that the Communist party got less votes at each election and that now the Reds hold only four seats out of 165 in the Austrian parliament.

Raab and Foreign Minister Leopold Figl, who formerly was chancellor, told us that Russia has many resources which they hoped to develop. They are especially anxious to develop the timber industry which is improtant to this small nation.

They said that Austria is now almost self supporting. This country is already selling hydro-electric power to Italy and Germany and is fast developing the iron ore industry. Agriculture is rapidly coming to the front, also.

The Austrian government has boldly attacked the acute housing problem throughout the nation and here in Vienna the city itself is making every effort to build enough apartments for those who are in dire need.

With rent control in effect, it has been many years since private capital has built any new apartment buildings. This has forced the city of Vienna to go into the House building business.

During the period before World War II, about 65,000 apartment units were constructed. Since the end of the war, 35,000 units have been built. There are at least 55,000 families now who have registered and are clamoring for housing.

23 Lives Saved In Two Months, Says Grevemberg

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Police Supt. Francis Grevemberg said today 23 lives were saved on Louisiana highways in January and February, compared with the same two months last year.

The two months represented the first fullscale operation of state police traffic violation teams, secret patrols that watch for careless driving.

Grevemberg said there were 24 traffic deaths on highways during February and 53 for the two months, compared with 76 for January and February in 1953.

Nine pedestrian fatalities were included in the 24 highway deaths. Grevemberg said the pedestrian toll was the largest in the last three years for a one-month period.

If the approximately 30 per cent reduction in highway deaths accomplished during January and February can be maintained during the entire year, he said, "we will have less than 300 highway deaths in 1955."

More than 400 died in traffic crashes on highways last year and 453 died in 1953.

Actress Mapping Plans To Run For La. Governorship

HOLLYWOOD —UP— Shapely Cleo Moore, ex - daughter-in-law of the late Sen. Huey Long, mapped plans today for her gubernatorial campaign in Louisiana, her home state.

Cleo, once married to Palmer Long, son of the late "Kingfish" governor of the Pelican State, says, "I have six more years to go on my movie contract, but after that I'm going to jump right into politics.

"First thing I'll do is close all the gravel and dirt roads in Louisiana and build the best four-lane super - highways in the country. A lot of my relatives live at the end of those dirt roads and it takes too much time to visit them."

Cleo's next objective is to build up Louisiana State University.

"When I get elected, LSU will play in the Sugar Bowl every year. We'll get the best players in the country down there, and I've got some new ideas on how to recruit those big husky boys," she added with a wink.

"Ask me what I think of Earl and Russell Long and I'll give you a straight answer. There's no finer name in the entire state. I think Mayor deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans is tops, too. We met once and he was very charming."

Cleo, who hit the front pages when a sizzling television kiss with a Chicago disc jockey got the lucky man fired, fearlessly tackled other Louisiana problems.

"Take the school problem down there," she said. "Well, I went to grammar school and high school there and Pope's Business College in Baton Rouge. There's nothing wrong with our school system, believe me. I learned a thing or two down there myself.

"And I'm four - square in favor of leaving the tidelands oil to the states. We've got a lot of that black gold off the coast and it rightfully belongs to Louisiana.

"As for the 'Right to Work' bill —everybody ought to have the right to work, or the right to loaf for that matter. Personally I want to work until I'm 108."

Cleo said she's received messages from all over the country since her appearance yesterday on a national TV show when she announced her intention to run for governor.

"I've already got a lot of backers," she said.

Garden Center Notes

By Mary M. Jardine

March Garden Events Listed

Delhi Garden Club members staged a most beautiful flower show at the Garden Center this week. All the arrangements were in the blue ribbon class. Mrs. Lamonte Wright and Mrs. Stewart Hunt of Ruston served as judges. Mrs. Sam E. Brown was awarded first place. Using a flat oval container Mrs. Brown created a loveline - mass arrangement in tones of green and grey - green. For height and line, red-bird cactus (pedilanthus) was used. Large ivy leaves were used low in the arrangement and clusters of hen and chickens (sempervivum) placed in the focal area. The color harmony of plant material and container was most pleasing. This is a long lasting arrangement.

Mrs. S. T. Bradley was awarded second place. In a round flat bowl of hammered copper, Mrs. Bradley created a delightful arrangement of pussy - willow branches in curved lines and King Alfred daffodils arranged in a naturalistic manner. A small cypress knee was used at the base of the arrangement to conceal the needlepoint holder. Mrs. L. P. Craighead was awarded third place blue ribbon for a beautiful spring - time arrangement. Pear blossoms and paperwhite narcissus were gracefully arranged in a horizontal pattern on a flat crystal container. Very lovely! In the horticulture class blue ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. W. P. Crawford for Golden Harvest daffodils, Mrs. W. E. Coats for violets, and Mrs. L. P. Craighead for viburnum tinus.

The calendar of garden events is so full it is difficult to keep up with them all. For your convenience I am listing events going on this month:

March 11, 2 p.m. Special Flower Arrangement Demonstration, Mrs. R. E. Creighton, Little Theater, Tech campus, Ruston.

March 12 and 13. Camellia Show, Shreveport, State Exhibit museum.

March 14, 15 and 16 Flower show School II, Argiculture Building, Tech campus, Ruston, registration 8-9 a.m., March 14.

March 2-31 Natchez Pilgrimage Call Garden Center for information.

March 12, 19, 26, Bellingrath Garden Tours, Mobile. All expense tours arranged for above dates. Call Mr. Parker 2-5181 for information.

March 19-20. Seventh State Flower show of Louisiana Garden Club Federation, Metairie Playground gymnasium, New Orleans 4-9 p.m. Saturday March 19, 9 to 6 Sunday, March 20.

Will try to keep you posted of events as the dates come in. Watch for them.

Professor John A. Wright of Louisiana Tech advises that the Dutch iris and narcissus are up in the new test gardens and that we may look forward to a wonderful display of blooms this spring. There are one hundred each of 23 varieties of narcissus and one hundred each of eleven varieites of Dutch iris. Mrs. Zollie Meadows, state chairman of the Permanent Home Fund for the National Council of State Garden Clubs reports that club contributions are coming in well. We hope all clubs will mail in their contributions before the end of March. Are your plants suffering from iron deficiency? Early symptoms are, the leaf veins are darker green than the areas between them. As the deficiency becomes more pronounced the areas between the veins becomes increasingly lighter green, then yellow and finally fade to an ivory color. Unless iron is supplied the plant will die eventually. There is a new Chelated iron product on the market that we are trying out. Briefly, this is how it works. When this product is applied to the soil it is dissolved in the soil moisture after which the iron content in the formulation is kept in solution, and therefore the iron is in a form available to the roots. The problem heretofore has been to keep the iron from dropping out of solution. This new product has been tested all over the country. Our plant chemists are doing a wonderful job. Call the Garden Center for more information regarding this iron chelate, pronounced (keelate). Splendid articles on the subject may be found in the July 1954 issue of Popular Gardening and Plants and Gardens Magazine, Winter 1954-55 issue.

Nasturtiums Can Be Planted Now

Have you seen the pine straw driveway at the Charles Garretson's, 3403 Loop Road? It just seems to "go" with the house. Florence is always thinking up something unusual and beautiful. The old, mellowed brick in her house, is an example. Some slants of the sun bring out the lavender in the brick and that is especially lovely.

Violets

The violets seem to be suffering. The ravages of the heat and red spider last summer have helped bring on this condition. And — maybe they need dividing. Of course this isn't the time for that job, but violets just don't thrive too well after three years unless they are separated and replanted. Then—this is the blooming time, too. They're spending their strength in blossoms. Later, the strength will go to foliage and your plants will begin to grow and look better. That is—unless they need separating. You can do this job later on. I'll remind you. However, I'll have to confess. I've separated these plants every month in the year with no ill results.

Garden Jobs

Children love nasturtiums. The seeds are large and quite easy to get to sprout so this would make a good planting project for the young fry. First spade the soil well, then cover the seed about twice the depth of the thickness of the seeds. Nasturtiums like cool but not cold weather. They could be planted now, though this might be somewhat of a gamble. We're still likely to have that freeze. They can be depended on to produce blooms until hot weather. Then they die. Nasturtiums don't like much fertilizer. If your soil is reasonably fertile, you can do without fertilizer entirely. Excessive fertilization causes the plant to put on too much foliage and no blooms. It seems the poorer the soil, the less foliage, but the more blooms are produced. Nasturtiums grow low, about 6 or 8" high.

When planting gladiolus bulbs, get them about four inches deep. If you plant the corn too shallow the roots may not be adequate to support the blossoms and—on the ground they fall.

For several years I've tried to find a blue clematis, only to get there after all the plants were sold. One of the nurseries has a large stock of the red, the white and the blue ones. The flowers of these rarer varieties are very large, even larger than morning glories. The vines don't grow nearly so out of bounds as our common white with the small, misty blooms.

It's time to put out petunias and thrift plants, too. Surely we'll not have a freeze heavy enough to harm these, now.

When the bulbs bloom out, don't cut off the tops. Leaving the tops on helps give you blooms for next year. When they quit blooming fertilize with bone meal. Here's another point about bulbs. When the tops begin to die is a good time to dig them up for transplanting. Then you can remember the colors and varieties and get them placed to best advantage. This is the time when they're just beginning to go into dormancy. Leave the tops on though, after transplanting.

When the camellias have finished blooming is the time to fertilize. 8-8-8 along with some cotton seed meal is excellent. Scatter the fertilizer out at the edge of the spread of the branches. When these camellias cease blooming is the time to spray them for scale, white fly and red spider. Oil emlusion will take care of all three, but—caution. Wait until danger of freeze is over. Use this same spray on flowering quince when its blooming time is over. When the winter blooming shrubs such as flowering quince and Japanese magnolia quit blooming—then its time to prune. Prune dead, weak and overlapping branches.

I'm afraid the cold and rain turned all the Denutato Japanese Magnolia blossoms yellow. This is the snow white one. They are so beautiful, too, but bloom over a short period of time. They're worth the money spent, though.

Now is a good time to plant dogwood. In fact, any shrubs or trees can be planted or transplanted now but make haste. The time is short. Soon the sap rises and the leaves come out. Then it's much more difficult to get plants to live than when they're dormant.

Your Sunday Drive

Go by the McHenry home on Riverside and see the star Magnolias in bloom. This one blooms early, at the same time as the Denutata. At the Johnson home on the corner of North Third and Glenmar you'll see two soulanglanas in bloom. These are often called tulip trees, but the real tulip tree blooms later.

Dates

I'll be with you on TV each day at one o'clock on "Open House. Monday Mrs. Maxine Reeves will give you a fine demonstration on "Home Care of the Sick," and will show you how to make the three cornered pillow. Tuesday we'll upholster. Wednesday, Mrs. Jardine from the Fifth District Garden Center will show you the three first place flower arrangements and tell you about each. Also on Wednesday we'll work in the rose garden. I hope you'll bring your talents to this open house and help us make it a most informative home program. Thursday is marketing day each week on open house.

See you next Sunday.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—

By William Lanier Hunt

Flower Shrubs Grow To 10 Feet

Most of the flowering shrubs we like to grow take only a few years to get up to ten feet in height and ten feet across. The larger spireas, the pyracanthas and many shrubs like the forsythias have to be placed in the landscape where there will be adequate room for them. Otherwise, you will be constantly pruning them back, and some, like the pyracanthas will not stand for this beyond a certain degree. If you wish to grow these shrubs and do not really have enough room for them then plan to follow a very careful system of pruning. Pyracanthas can be trained on a wall or frame if you will tie them with something soft that will not cut the wood. In England, one sees whole two - story houses covered with pyracanthas, but think of the job of pruning them from ladders once or wice a year! Pyracanthas bear their berries on one - year - old branches. If you cut off the long growths, you are simply cutting off berries. In restricted spaces, you will have to select the canes that grow in the right direction for your support and cut off others just when they start out in late spring.

Forsythias can be pruned and trained like pyracanthas. The larger spireas can be kept to relatively small sizes by cutting out the old wood just after the shrubs bloom every spring. Both of these shrubs will give more bloom on the branches each year when they are pruned in this manner, so you will have some reward for your loss of many branches. The larger types of flowering quince are very amenable to pruning. Once they are established, they seem willing to put up with all kinds of pruning.

It is when we let these larger flowering shrubs really go and keep them fed that we get the big spring show from them that we all love so much. The beauty bush, the mockoranges and the many large azaleas need almost no pruning when they have enough room to grow naturally. Do not starve them, however. They need yearly feeding with a complete fertilizer (special acid soil fertilizer for the azaleas, of course.) Large shrubs like these will hide a lot of the yearly crop of leaves that fall on the lawn and garden. You can sweep enough leaves under them each fall to make a good mulch. A little soil dashed over the mulch will hold it down and build soil around your shrubs just like nature is doing it. Azaleas, of course must not be buried with this cover, but should have already rotted humus only about a half inch deep spread over their roots.

Abelia is a shrub in the large group that is, however, willing to be kept down to about five feet. Except in hedges out in full sun or away from other shrubbery, abelia is hard to keep in order. Those long growths that keep coming up in the middle have to be snipped off all during the growing season, and where abelia is grown with other shrubs, it becomes "leggy" and needs something in front of it. Unless you can give abelia five feet and more of height, it is better to grow something else.

There are two native southern shrubs that demand a lot of space but will bloom in the shade in summer. These are the oakleaf hydrangea and bottle-brush buckeye. For large banks in shade, the hydrangea is fine. The seed heads are handsome and will surely find their way into dried arrangements. The buckeye, a native to Alabama, is one of the most spectacular American shrubs. Anything that will really show off in shade deserves our attention.

100 Anniversary To Be Celebrated By Two Churches

ST. JOSEPH, March 5 (Special) —Christ Church, in St. Joseph, and Grace Church, Waterproof, will unite for a service of Thanksgiving here Sunday at 11 a. m.

The service will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the first Episcopal service held in Tensas parish and the founding of the Episcopal church in the parish.

The bishop of Louisiana, the Right Reverend Girault M. Jones, D. D., will be the speaker for the centennial service.

The first Episcopal service was held in Tensas parish in March of 1855 in an unoccupied house near Lake St. Joseph. Through the years the congregation has grown and at the present time Tensas parish has a very active Episcopal congregation.

4 N. E. La. Firms Are Incorporated

Four Northeast Louisiana business firms, three of them in the Twin Cities, have begun corporations, according to Wade O. Martin, Jr., Louisiana secretary of state.

The firms were incorporated last week.

They included:

Brooks Supply Company of Louisiana, Inc., 609 Montgomery street, West Monroe, general merchandise, $10,000; Shelton's Building Supply, Inc., Columbia, general mercantile, $100,000; The Forge, Inc., Forsythe and Eleventh street, Monroe, general restaurant and grill, $50,000; and the Forge Rug Cleaners, Inc., Forsythe and Eleventh, cleaning rugs, $10,000.

In addition, the Hillcrest Homes, Inc. of Rayville filed notice of dissolution, Martin said.

Revenue Office Rapped For Part In Seizing Cash

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The district attorney's office says the State Department of Revenue acted too fast in attaching $1,000 in bribe money Horace Perez paid a state police major.

The Jefferson Parish gambler was fined $1,000 and given a five-year suspended sentence two months ago on public bribery charges of attempting to buy gambling safety.

Earlier this week, District Judge Coleman Lindsey approved a revenue department move to seize the bribe money.

Collector Rufus W. Fontenot asked the money to satisfy part of a $1,600 tax judgment against Perez.

The district attorney's office filed a motion yesterday, asking that the court order be recalled because the Perez case is on appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Garden Center Notes

By Mary M. Jardine

March Garden Events Listed

Delhi Garden Club members staged a most beautiful flower show at the Garden Center this week. All the arrangements were in the blue ribbon class. Mrs. Lamonte Wright and Mrs. Stewart Hunt of Ruston served as judges. Mrs. Sam E. Brown was awarded first place. Using a flat oval container Mrs. Brown created a love-line - mass arrangement in tones of green and grey - green. For height and line, red-bird cactus (pedilanthus) was used. Large ivy leaves were used low in the arrangement and clusters of hen and chickens (sempervivum) placed in the focal area. The color harmony of plant material and container was most pleasing. This is a long lasting arrangement.

Mrs. S. T. Bradley was awarded second place. In a round flat bowl of hammered copper, Mrs. Bradley created a delightful arrangement of pussy - willow branches in curved lines and King Alfred daffodils arranged in a naturalistic manner. A small cypress knee was used at the base of the arrangement to conceal the needlepoint holder. Mrs. L. P. Craighead was awarded third place blue ribbon for a beautiful spring - time arrangement. Pear blossoms and paperwhite narcissus were gracefully arranged in a horizontal pattern on a flat crystal container. Very lovely! In the horticulture class blue ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. W. P. Crawford for Golden Harvest daffodils, Mrs. W. E. Coats for violets, and Mrs. L. P. Craighead for viburnum tinus.

The calendar of garden events is so full it is difficult to keep up with them all. For your convenience I am listing events going on this month:

March 11, 2 p.m. Special Flower Arrangement Demonstration, Mrs. R. E. Creighton, Little Theater, Tech campus, Ruston.

March 12 and 13. Camellia Show, Shreveport, State Exhibit museum.

March 14, 15 and 16 Flower show School II, Argiculture Building, Tech campus, Ruston, registration 8-9 a.m., March 14.

March 2-31 Natchez Pilgrimage Call Garden Center for information.

March 12, 19, 26. Bellingrath Garden Tours, Mobile. All expense tours arranged for above dates. Call Mr. Parker 2-5181 for information.

March 19-20. Seventh State Flower show of Louisiana Garden Club Federation, Metairie Playground gymnasium, New Orleans 4-9 p.m. Saturday March 19, 9 to 6 Sunday, March 20.

Will try to keep you posted of events as the dates come in. Watch for them.

Professor John A. Wright of Louisiana Tech advises that the Dutch iris and narcissus are up in the new test gardens and that we may look forward to a wonderful display of blooms this spring. There are one hundred each of 23 varieties of narcissus and one hundred each of eleven varieites of Dutch iris. Mrs. Zollie Meadows, state chairman of the Permanent Home Fund for the National Council of State Garden Clubs reports that club contributions are coming in well. We hope all clubs will mail in their contributions before the end of March. Are your plants suffering from iron deficiency? Early symptoms are, the leaf veins are darker green than the areas between them. As the deficiency becomes more pronounced the areas between the veins becomes increasingly lighter green, then yellow and finally fade to an ivory color. Unless iron is supplied the plant will die eventually. There is a new Chelated iron product on the market that we are trying out. Briefly, this is how it works. When this product is applied to the soil it is dissolved in the soil moisture after which the iron content in the formulation is kept in solution, and therefore the iron is in a form available to the roots. The problem heretofore has been to keep the iron from dropping out of solution. This new product has been tested all over the country. Our plant chemists are doing a wonderful job. Call the Garden Center for more information regarding this iron chelate, pronounced (keelate). Splendid articles on the subject may be found in the July 1954 issue of Popular Gardening and Plants and Gardens Magazine, Winter 1954-55 issue.

THE HOME SHIFT—

With Mildred Swift

Nasturtiums Can Be Planted Now

Have you seen the pine straw driveway at the Charles Garretson's, 3403 Loop Road? It just seems to "go" with the house. Florence is always thinking up something unusual and beautiful. The old, mellowed brick in her house, is an example. Some slants of the sun bring out the lavender in the brick and that is especially lovely.

Violets

The violets seem to be suffering. The ravages of the heat and red spider last summer have helped bring on this condition. And — maybe they need dividing. Of course this isn't the time for that job, but violets just don't thrive too well after three years unless they are separated and replanted. Then—this is the blooming time, too. They're spending their strength in blossoms. Later, the strength will go to foliage and your plants will begin to grow and look better. That is—unless they need separating. You can do this job later on. I'll remind you. However, I'll have to confess. I've separated these plants every month in the year with no ill results.

Garden Jobs

Children love nasturtiums. The seeds are large and quite easy to get to sprout so this would make a good planting project for the young fry. First spade the soil well, then cover the seed about twice the depth of the thickness of the seeds. Nasturtiums like cool but not cold weather. They could be planted now, though this might be somewhat of a gamble. We're still likely to have that freeze. They can be depended on to produce blooms until hot weather. Then they die. Nasturtiums don't like much fertilizer. If your soil is reasonably fertile, you can do without fertilizer entirely. Excessive fertilization causes the plant to put on too much foliage and no blooms. It seems the poorer the soil, the less foliage, but the more blooms are produced. Nasturtiums grow low, about 6 or 8" high.

When planting gladiolus bulbs, get them about four inches deep. If you plant the corn too shallow the roots may not be adequate to support the blossoms and—on the ground they fall.

For several years I've tried to find a blue clematis, only to get there after all the plants were sold. One of the nurseries has a large stock of the red, the white and the blue ones. The flowers of these rarer varieties are very large, even larger than morning glories. The vines don't grow nearly so out of bounds as our common white with the small, misty blooms.

It's time to put out petunias and thrift plants, too. Surely we'll not have a freeze heavy enough to harm these, now.

When the bulbs bloom out, don't cut off the tops. Leaving the tops on helps give you blooms for next year. When they quit blooming fertilize with bone meal. Here's another point about bulbs. When the tops begin to die is a good time to dig them up for transplanting. Then you can remember the colors and varieties and get them placed to best advantage. This is the time when they're just beginning to go into dormancy. Leave the tops on though, after transplanting.

When the camellias have finished blooming is the time to fertilize. 8-8-8 along with some cotton seed meal is excellent. Scatter the fertilizer out at the edge of the spread of the branches. When these camellias cease blooming is the time to spray them for scale, white fly and red spider. Oil emlusion will take care of all three, but—caution. Wait until danger of freeze is over. Use this same spray on flowering quince when its blooming time is over. When the winter blooming shrubs such as flowering quince and Japanese magnolia quit blooming—then its time to prune. Prune dead, weak and overlapping branches.

I'm afraid the cold and rain turned all the Denutato Japanese Magnolia blossoms yellow. This is the snow white one. They are so beautiful, too, but bloom over a short period of time. They're worth the money spent, though.

Now is a good time to plant dogwood. In fact, any shrubs or trees can be planted or transplanted now but make haste. The time is short. Soon the sap rises and the leaves come out. Then it's much more difficult to get plants to live than when they're dormant.

Your Sunday Drive

Go by the McHenry home on Riverside and see the star Magnolias in bloom. This one blooms early, at the same time as the Denutata. At the Johnson home on the corner of North Third and Glenmar you'll see two soulanglanas in bloom. These are often called tulip trees, but the real tulip tree blooms later.

Dates

I'll be with you on TV each day at one o'clock on "Open House. Monday Mrs. Maxine Reeves will give you a fine demonstration on "Home Care of the Sick," and will show you how to make the three cornered pillow. Tuesday we'll upholster. Wednesday, Mrs. Jardine from the Fifth District Garden Center will show you the three first place flower arrangements and tell you about each. Also on Wednesday we'll work in the rose garden. I hope you'll bring your talents to this open house and help us make it a most informative home program. Thursday is marketing day each week on open house.

See you next Sunday.

SOUTHERN GARDENER—

By William Lanier Hunt

Flower Shrubs Grow To 10 Feet

Most of the flowering shrubs we like to grow take only a few years to get up to ten feet in height and ten feet across. The larger spireas, the pyracanthas and many shrubs like the forsythias have to be placed in the landscape where there will be adequate room for them. Otherwise, you will be constantly pruning them back, and some, like the pyracanthas will not stand for this beyond a certain degree. If you wish to grow these shrubs and do not really have enough room for them then plan to follow a very careful system of pruning. Pyracanthas can be trained on a wall or frame if you will tie them with something soft that will not cut the wood. In England, one sees whole two - story houses covered with pyracanthas, but think of the job of pruning them from ladders once or wice a year! Pyracanthas bear their berries on one - year - old branches. If you cut off the long growths, you are simply cutting off berries. In restricted spaces, you will have to select the canes that grow in the right direction for your support and cut off others just when they start out in late spring.

Forsythias can be pruned and trained like pyracanthas. The larger spireas can be kept to relatively small sizes by cutting out the old wood just after the shrubs bloom every spring. Both of these shrubs will give more bloom on the branches each year when they are pruned in this manner, so you will have some reward for your loss of many branches. The larger types of flowering quince are very amenable to pruning. Once they are established, they seem willing to put up with all kinds of pruning.

It is when we let these larger flowering shrubs really go and keep them fed that we get the big spring show from them that we all love so much. The beauty bush, the mockoranges and the many large azaleas need almost no pruning when they have enough room to grow naturally. Do not starve them, however. They need yearly feeding with a complete fertilizer (special acid soil fertilizer for the azaleas, of course.) Large shrubs like these will hide a lot of the yearly crop of leaves that fall on the lawn and garden. You can sweep enough leaves under them each fall to make a good mulch. A little soil dashed over the mulch will hold it down and build soil around your shrubs just like nature is doing it. Azaleas, of course must not be buried with this cover, but should have already rotted humus only about a half inch deep spread over their roots.

Abelia is a shrub in the large group that is, however, willing to be kept down to about five feet. Except in hedges out in full sun or away from other shrubbery, abelia is hard to keep in order. Those long growths that keep coming up in the middle have to be snipped off all during the growing season, and where abelia is grown with other shrubs, it becomes "leggy" and needs something in front of it. Unless you can give abelia five feet and more of height, it is better to grow something else.

There are two native southern shrubs that demand a lot of space but will bloom in the shade in summer. These are the oakleaf hydrangea and bottle-brush buckeye. For large banks in shade, the hydrangea is fine. The seed heads are handsome and will surely find their way into dried arrangements. The buckeye, a native to Alabama, is one of the most spectacular American shrubs. Anything that will really show off in shade deserves our attention.

100 Anniversary To Be Celebrated By Two Churches

ST. JOSEPH, March 5 (Special) —Christ Church, in St. Joseph, and Grace Church, Waterproof, will unite for a service of Thanksgiving here Sunday at 11 a. m.

The service will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the first Episcopal service held in Tensas parish and the founding of the Episcopal church in the parish.

The bishop of Louisiana, the Right Reverend Girault M. Jones, D. D., will be the speaker for the centennial service.

The first Episcopal service was held in Tensas parish in March of 1855 in an unoccupied house near Lake St. Joseph. Through the years the congregation has grown and at the present time Tensas parish has a very active Episcopal congregation.

4 N. E. La. Firms Are Incorporated

Four Northeast Louisiana business firms, three of them in the Twin Cities, have begun corporations, according to Wade O. Martin, Jr., Louisiana secretary of state.

The firms were incorporated last week.

They included:

Brooks Supply Company of Louisiana, Inc., 609 Montgomery street, West Monroe, general merchandise, $10,000; Shelton's Building Supply, Inc., Columbia, general mercantile, $100,000; The Forge, Inc., Forsythe and Eleventh street, Monroe, general restaurant and grill, $50,000; and the Forge Rug Cleaners, Inc., Forsythe and Eleventh, cleaning rugs, $10,000.

In addition, the Hillcrest Homes, Inc. of Rayville filed notice of dissolution, Martin said.

Revenue Office Rapped For Part In Seizing Cash

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The district attorney's office says the State Department of Revenue acted too fast in attaching $1,000 in bribe money Horace Perez paid a state police major.

The Jefferson Parish gambler was fined $1,000 and given a five-year suspended sentence two months ago on public bribery charges of attempting to buy gambling safety.

Earlier this week, District Judge Coleman Lindsey approved a revenue department move to seize the bribe money.

Collector Rufus W. Fontenot asked the money to satisfy part of a $1,600 tax judgment against Perez.

The district attorney's office filed a motion yesterday, asking that the court order be recalled because the Perez case is on appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Should Share With Needy-Eisenhower

NEW YORK — President Dwight D. Eisenhower, declaring that "as our people share with the needy of the world . . . they keep faith with the finest tradition and heritage of America," has warmly endorsed the programs of the 1955 united appeal for overseas relief and reconstruction and the "One Great Hour of Sharing" observances, to be held Sunday, March 20 at which funds for overseas programs will be raised in thousands of Protestant churches throughout America.

"In these days, evidence of America's friendship for our overseas neighbors is vital for the preservation of world peace and for the increase of understanding among nations as well as among individuals," the president said in a letter to Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, president of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A., as he extended his "good wishes" and "full faith in the continued success of the united appeal and in 'One Great Hour of Sharing'."

Through such sharing as in the United Appeal, the President said, our people "bear witness to their active conviction and human compassion; more than that they keep faith with the finest tradition and heritage of America which ever has held forth, and I pray ever will hold forth, a hand of fellowship and goodwill to every nation and every person who will accept it with sincerity and honesty."

The 1955 united appeal, in which more than $9,500,000 is being sought for overseas relief and reconstruction programs, is sponsored by the National Council's Central Department of Church World Service, whose executive director, R. Norris Wilson, today made public President Eisenhower's letter to Dr. Blake.

Dr. Perrill To Narrate Indian Life

Dr. Charles E. Perrill, superintendent of the Clara Swain Hospital in Bareilly, North India, will be guest speaker at the evening service at First Methodist Church, Monroe. Dr. Perrill will bring a most inspiring message as well as show pictures of the work being done in India by the Methodist Church.

Dr. Perrill was born of missionary parents, his father also being a medical missionary, and was educated at Woodstock School, being a class mate of Dr. Margaret Coon.

Dr. Perrill has had excellent training and is an exceptionally competent diagnostician and surgeon. In addition to these essential talents, he has been interested in hospital building, particularly as it relates to Oriental countries. What he has accomplished in Bareilly with a small crew of workmen and a very limited budget could hardly be believed without seeing it. He has been very generous with his advice to the people responsible for construction of new hospitals and medical school buildings at other missionary stations also.

In addition to his outstanding ability as a builder, he has an unusually sensitive understanding of his role in the community in which he operates. Dr. Perrill has been very sensitive to the material and spiritual needs of all the members of his staff, including orderlies, cooks, and sweepers. He has built brick dwellings for these people on the hospital compound, which has delighted them beyond words.

Dr. Perrill and his wife exemplify the very finest Christian medical leadership as it is presently conceived.

Bible Words for Today

PSALM 19:14—"Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

• • •

This prayer of the Psalmist is a prayer we all need to pray day after day. So often our words are unkind, unclean, untrue, uncalled for. We shall do well to ask the Lord to help us that our words may be acceptable in His sight, clean and kindly, truthful and courageous.

The Psalmist knew that the words of our mouth were important, but so are the meditations of our hearts. The Bible tells us, "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." Certainly we need constantly to pray that the Lord who is our strength and our redeemer will help us that the things we think about may be acceptable in His sight. We need to pray often, "Create within me a clean heart and renew a right spirit within me, O God."

As we pray, "Let the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts be acceptable in Thy sight," it is good to know that God is our strength and our redeemer. We do need a strength beyond ourselves to help us live and think and act as we ought, and when we fail and fall short, we need One who will redeem us and help us start over again. Such is the assurance we find in this Psalm. It is not only an earnest prayer, but also an affirmation of faith that God will continue to strengthen and help us as we most need, as we seek so to live that the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts and the needs of our lives may be acceptable in His sight and use in His Kingdom.

Dreams can be painted and goals can be met when we really want them to be accomplished. But they cannot be done by idleness and simply wanting them done. It takes work and prayer and sacrifices in order to do what should be done. We do well to remember that nothing that is worthwhile is impossible, whether it be the building of a church, the development of Christian character or the rendering of services to our fellow man.

During this week we will have services every morning at 10:00 and every evening at 7:30 with Dr. W. F. Mallard of Vicksburg preaching for us. You are most cordially invited to attend these services.

The Seniors and Pioneers will meet this evening at 6:00 o'clock here at the church.

Rich Leader Gives Up His Life Of Ease

What undoubtedly is one of the great stories of this generation is that of a wealthy man in his late thirties and his wife who are forsaking their life of comparative ease and comfort to erect and operate a $1,000,000 hospital in Haiti, built as a tribute to one of the world's greatest Christians, Dr. Albert Schweitzer. Newspapers recently have published the story of Dr. and Mrs. William Larimer Mellon, Jr., who went back to school in 1948 to secure necessary medical training to carry out their mission, meeting the medical needs of 100,000 Haiti natives in Artibonite Valley, a remote rice and banana growing section of the West Indies island, just east of Cuba. Dr. Mellon is a grandnephew of the late Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon, and son of the late founder and Board chairman of the Gulf Oil Company. The 50 bed glass and stone hospital was built with Mellon money.

Dr. Mellon relates how the work and philosophy of Dr. Schweitzer fascinated him to such an extent that he and Mrs. Mellon gave up their Arizona ranch at a comparatively late age to prepare themselves for their newly discovered mission. Dr. Mellon has since concluded his work for a medical degree and is taking special courses in New Orleans at the Oschner Foundation Hospital before leaving for Haiti. He and Mrs. Mellon expect to take up their new work within the next few months.

Christians and non-Christians alike thrill again and again to the story of Dr. Schweitzer and the great humanitarian work which he has personally conducted in French Equatorial Africa for almost half a century. Dr. Schweitzer, now 80 years of age, has been the means of inspiration for untold numbers of people. His example of unselfish service and love of life itself has moved many persons to lives of service.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: This past year we read in our newspaper that you had a talk with Prime Minister Churchill. Could you tell me about it? M. A. R.

ANSWER: It has been my privilege to talk privately with a number of outstanding leaders of state during the past few years. I have made it a practice never to divulge private conversations. However, in talking to these outstanding people it has been my privilege to present on almost every occasion, a witness as to the saving grace and power of Christ. I can only tell you this about my conversation with Sir Winston Churchill: He believes that the world needs a spiritual rebirth.

(What is your question? Write Billy Graham care of this newspaper.)

Should Share With Needy-Eisenhower

NEW YORK — President Dwight D. Eisenhower, declaring that "as our people share with the needy of the world . . . they keep faith with the finest tradition and heritage of America," has warmly endorsed the programs of the 1955 united appeal for overseas relief and reconstruction and the "One Great Hour of Sharing" observances to be held Sunday, March 20, at which funds for overseas programs will be raised in thousands of Protestant churches throughout America.

"In these days, evidence of America's friendship for our overseas neighbors is vital for the preservation of world peace and for the increase of understanding among nations as well as among individuals," the president said in a letter to Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, president of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A., as he extended his "best wishes" and "full faith in the continued success of the united appeal and in 'One Great Hour of Sharing.' "

Through such sharing as in the United Appeal, the President said, our people "bear witness to their religious conviction and human compassion; more than that—they keep faith with the finest tradition and heritage of America which ever has held forth, and I pray ever will hold forth, a hand of fellowship and goodwill to every nation and every person who will accept it with sincerity and honesty."

The 1955 united appeal, in which more than $9,500,000 is being sought for overseas relief and reconstruction programs, is sponsored by the National Council's Central Department of Church World Service, whose executive director, R. Norris Wilson, today made public President Eisenhower's letter to Dr. Blake.

Dr. Perrill To Narrate Indian Life

Dr. Charles E. Perrill, superintendent of the Clara Swain Hospital in Bareilly, North India, will be guest speaker at the evening service at First Methodist Church, Monroe. Dr. Perrill will bring a most inspiring message as well as show pictures of the work being done in India by the Methodist Church.

Dr. Perrill was born of missionary parents, his father also being a medical missionary, and was educated at Woodstock School, being a class mate of Dr. Margaret Coon.

Dr. Perrill has had excellent training and is an exceptionally competent diagnostician and surgeon. In addition to these essential talents he has been interested in hospital building, particularly as it relates to Oriental countries. What he has accomplished in Bareilly with a small crew of workmen and a very limited budget could hardly be believed without seeing it. He has been very generous with his advice to the people responsible for construction of new hospitals and medical school buildings at other missionary stations also.

In addition to his outstanding ability as a builder, he has an unusually sensitive understanding of his role in the community in which he operates. Dr. Perrill has been very sensitive to the material and spiritual needs of all the members of his staff, including orderlies, cooks, and sweepers. He has built brick dwellings for these people on the hospital compound, which has delighted them beyond words.

Dr. Perrill and his wife exemplify the very finest Christian medical leadership as it is presently conceived.

Bible Words for Today

PSALM 19:14—"Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

* * *

This prayer of the Psalmist is a prayer we all need to pray day after day. So often our words are unkind, unclean, untrue, uncalled for. We shall do well to ask the Lord to help us that our words may be acceptable in His sight, clean and kindly, truthful and courageous.

The Psalmist knew that the words of our mouth were important, but so are the meditations of our hearts. The Bible tells us, "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." Certainly we need constantly to pray that the Lord who is our strength and our redeemer will help us that the things we think about may be acceptable in His sight. We need to pray often, "Create within me a clean heart and renew a right spirit within me, O God."

As we pray, "Let the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts be acceptable in Thy sight," it is good to know that God is our strength and our redeemer. We do need a strength beyond ourselves to help us live and think and act as we ought, and when we fail and fall short, we need One who will redeem us and help us start over again. Such is the assurance we find in this Psalm. It is not only an earnest prayer, but also an affirmation of faith that God will continue to strengthen and help us as we most need, as we seek so to live that the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts and the deeds of our lives may be acceptable in His sight and of use in His Kingdom.

Rich Leader Gives Up His Life Of Ease

What undoubtedly is one of the great stories of this generation is that of a wealthy man in his late thirties and his wife who are forsaking their life of comparative ease and comfort to erect and operate a $1,000,000 hospital in Haiti, built as a tribute to one of the world's greatest Christians, Dr. Albert Schweitzer. Newspapers recently have published the story of Dr. and Mrs. William Larimer Mellon, Jr., who went back to school in 1948 to secure necessary medical training to carry out their mission, meeting the medical needs of 100,000 Haiti natives in Artibonite Valley, a remote rice and banana growing section of the West Indies island, just east of Cuba. Dr. Mellon is a grandnephew of the late Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon, and son of the late founder and Board chairman of the Gulf Oil Company. The 50 bed glass and stone hospital was built with Mellon money.

Dr. Mellon relates how the work and philosophy of Dr. Schweitzer fascinated him to such an extent that he and Mrs. Mellon gave up their Arizona ranch at a comparatively late age to prepare themselves for their newly discovered mission. Dr. Mellon has since concluded his work for a medical degree and is taking special courses in New Orleans at the Oschner Foundation Hospital before leaving for Haiti. He and Mrs. Mellon expect to take up their new work within the next few months.

Christians and non-Christians alike thrill again and again to the story of Dr. Schweitzer and the great humanitarian work which he has personally conducted in French Equatorial Africa for almost half a century. Dr. Schweitzer, now 80 years of age, has been the means of inspiration for untold numbers of people. His example of unselfish service and love of life itself has moved many persons to lives of service.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: This past year we read in our newspaper that you had a talk with Prime Minister Churchill. Could you tell me about it? M. A. R.

ANSWER: It has been my privilege to talk privately with a number of outstanding leaders of state during the past few years. I have made it a practice never to divulge private conversations. However, in talking to these outstanding people it has been my privilege to present on almost every occasion, a witness as to the saving grace and power of Christ. I can only tell you this about my conversation with Sir Winston Churchill: He believes that the world needs a spiritual rebirth.

(What is your question? Write Billy Graham care of this newspaper.)

Rev. J. T. Harris Finds Cuba Mission Area

By JAMES T. HARRIS

On Tuesday, February 8, 1955, a group of about 175 Methodist ministers, ministers wives and lay people assembled in Miami, Florida to launch a spiritual invasion of Cuba. The project was sponsored jointly by the General Boards of Evangelism and Missions of the Methodist Church. Bishop John Branscomb of the Florida-Cuba area and Dr. Harry Denman, executive secretary of the board of evangelism were in charge of the instruction and assignment. The six Methodist District Superintendents from Cuba were also among those present.

When the assignments were announced Mrs. Harris and I learned that we were to work for the next week in Herradura, which is a small country town about 100 miles west of Havana. This town is in the Pinar del Rio province and is the center of a Methodist circuit consisting of two churches and three mission stations. Three other preachers, two from Georgia and one from North Carolina were assigned to the same circuit with us. The name Herradura means "horse shoe" though why the town was named Horse-shoe we were never able to learn.

Herradura is a quiet little village of less than 1,000 population, with the Methodist Church being the only religious organization in either the town or the large farming country surrounding it. The Methodist pastor, Rev. Cesar Benitez, a native of Puerto Rico, who at one time served as pastor among the Spanish speaking people of New Mexico, but who is now a member of the Cuban Annual Conference. He has been pastor at Herradura for four years. His wife, Marion, is a native of Herradura and they have two children, a son and daughter, seven and five respectively.

A very large percentage of the people of Cuba are unchurched. Some estimates are as high as 85 per cent. This is certainly true for the area in and around Herradura. The membership of the Methodist Church is only about 125 and it is the only church of any denomination. Voo-dooism and other types of primitive paganism still exists in some sections. One thing was always evident; a hunger for a better way of life.

The Cuban people are a most gracious people, very friendly and eager to serve your every need. Those who have had the advantages of education are among the finest and most cultured people one could know. Many of those who have not had these advantages are anxious to learn more and more of the finer things. This same hunger is evidenced in their interest in religion. Every time we preached we spoke to a crowded house and we were given rapt attention. Even though it was always necessary to speak through an interpreter, the people followed what we had to say eagerly. During the week almost 100 confessed faith in Christ and asked for membership in the churches of the circuit. In the entire island campaign there were 2,257 first decisions for Christ. Before these people are admitted to church membership they will have a period of probation of from six to twelve months for instruction and observation. Only time will tell how many of them will finally become church members.

The thing that appealed to us most in our work in Cuba was the children and young people. In one home we visited we found such poverty that half the children were naked. Yet from this home two of the children were enrolled in our school, one little boy serving as yard boy at the school to pay his tuition; his sister enrolled on a scholarship. We met a young teenage Negro boy who walked or rode horse back five miles from his farm home each night to attend church services; who every day travelled by bus 25 miles to attend high school. He told me of his dream of attending the University in Havana. The youth of Cuba are eager and in them is the certain future of their country.

West Monroe Child Named 'Poster Girl'

A five - year - old girl from West Monroe and a five - year - old boy from Lake Charles will represent Louisiana's 17,200 crippled children during the 1955 Easter Seal campaign which gets underway here March 10.

The two five - year - olds have been chosen as the Easter Seal Girl and Boy, respectively, for this year's fund raising effort.

Walter Godchaux, of New Orleans, president of the Louisiana Chapter for Crippled Children and Adults, said that Diane Hughes, who lives with her grandmother, Mrs. Ezzie Taylor in West Monroe, is typical of the children who benefit from the combined efforts of voluntary agencies such as the Crippled Children's Association.

Diane is a victim of polio and wears a short leg brace.

Michael Soulier, of Lake Charles, who is the 1955 Easter Seal Boy, is one of eight children and was born with a defect which kept him from walking. Through treatment by the Crippled Children Michael is progressing rapidly in learning to walk.

The annual Easter Seal campaign, which gets underway March 10, will continue through April 10.

DONNA GOES TO SCHOOL

With a hat on her head and books in her hands, Donna starts to school. Her pet kitten Fluffy is at her side, but Donna sends Fluffy home just before they reach the school house.

1. Choose your own colors for Donna's outfit, Fluffy, the school and for the scenery. Paste this picture on stiff paper and cut out the large drawing of the girl with base attached. Also the hat and the separate arm.

2. Cut along the left edge of Donna's skirt, from the point where it touches the roof of the school house to her knee. Also cut along the top of her left shoe, from the toe to her ankle. Then fold back the picture along the dotted line and Donna will stand up as in the small drawing.

3. Cut along the dark line in the middle of Donna's hat and slip the hat on her head. Attach the separate arm behind her shoulder by placing a small brass fastener through the two dots. Now Donna can swing her arm and wave.

Answer To Question No. 1

1. The California Federation of Women's Clubs sent a questionnaire on this point to married women. Four to one said that work outside the home had lowered home standards, especially in homes where there were children. Those questioned felt that working wives and mothers couldn't give the time they should to home and children. Many wives and mothers have to work. But, when there is really no necessity for it, children pay a high price for this "pin money."

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Yes. Bob and Mary are twins, age 14. Since girls mature earlier than boys, Mary — compared to Bob — is really about 16. When Mary dates 16-year-old boys, Bob is treated like a "kid." Such slights, psychologists say, sometimes set up masculine resentments against women that may smolder throughout life and darken a man's happiness.

Answer To Question No. 3

3. Psychologist David Mitchell collected examples of 1,600 kinds of fears of normal people. Samples: fear of losing a job; talking to boss; going insane; burglars; suicide; guns; ghosts; being kidnapped; opposite sex; blood; end of the world; not making good (most common). Our booklet, "The Conquest of Fear" (condensed from Dr. Mitchell's work), shows how to lick all these fears. Nonprofit, 15 cents (coin only), plus self-addressed envelope.

Prices On Butane Gas Competitive

R. Leslie Kiper said Saturday a statement attributed to John J. McKeithen, Louisiana public service commissioner, in a recent interview was in error.

McKeithen, who campaigned for election on a platform to reduce butane and telephone rates, although having no jurisdiction over such rates in the office to which he was elected, was quoted as saying that a Coushatta dealer had been licensed to retail butane gas at 12 cents per gallon.

Differing on this point, Kiper said the gas commission simply issues a license to sell gas and makes no stipulation as to what price must be charged, either higher or lower.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Mother Spanks 13-Month-Old Girl To Obtain Obedience; Father Resents Such Discipline

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our little girl, 13 months old, is very intelligent and large for her age. She walked at nine months, was completely weaned from her bottle at 10 months and I had her toilet-trained at 11 months.

I've tried to teach her not to pick up my things, and to play with her toys, of which she has many—and a place to keep them. Like most children she wants to beat on her toys; but I teach her to love and cuddle her dolls and stuffed dog and teddy bear.

However, she has a hot temper and when I try to correct her at times, she has slapped my face. I've spanked her (lightly), so now she minds when I say "No" . . . and when I correct her she comes to me and hugs and kisses me, to make up for being bad. I think you can talk to children and teach them a lot, but you also have to use a little force once in a while, don't you agree?

Each Reflects Past Training

My husband doesn't believe in spanking; and Judy doesn't pay any attention when he tells her don't do this or that. He won't smack her hands or paddle her, and when I spank he gets furious and threatens to take her away from me and get a divorce. We are at each other's throat all the time on this score, which keeps me nervous, unhappy and upset. Is he right? Or am I?

I am 23. Harry is 31 and we have been married four years. Judy is our only child (so far). My husband comes of a large family, and did pretty much as he pleased in childhood. Now his brothers drink and fight and one was involved in larceny. His sisters' children are little roughnecks . . . I am an only child and my mother was strict . . . I.P.

Both Parents Need Guidance

DEAR I.P.: Reading your long letter there revised and condensed) I get the impression that you are too much of a martinet in disciplining Judy—almost as if you unconsciously enjoyed the exercise of prohibitive maternal authority. Your drill sergeant policy may reflect an element of childishness in your character, a hang-over of immaturity caused by a too-bossy rearing.

No doubt you loved and respected your mother after a fashion, in an awed dependent way (if not with happy warmth)—hence your involuntary tendency to pattern your discipline after hers. A case of your unconscious saying to you, "Now it's our turn to act grownup: to lay down the law and see that it is obeyed."

The really mature-type parent has friendly compassion for the helpless, defenseless, adventurous status of the child just beginning to explore his environment. And the fine parent teaches (or "disciplines") by approval, encouragement and supervisory example and aid, rather than by dictator instruction and spanks or slaps dealt out for errors. He joins restraining action to restraining words, with mild explicit firmness—using educative repetition as often as necessary until the lesson sticks.

It is the childish-type parent who (1) either neglects the children, with irresponsible optimism, and lets them grow wild, or (2) throws weight around in an ironhanded way. Your husband's parents lean towards Mistake No. 1, it appears, whereas your mother veered towards Mistake No. 2, cited here. Thus you and Harry are world apart in your inherited theories of child-rearing, and both of you have something to learn in order to get on the beam of wise parenthood.

Mother Seems Harmfully Harsh

Sidonie Gruenberg, editor of "The Encyclopedia of Child Care and Guidance" (Doubleday, $7.50), says (see page 185): "When a child seems hostile to disciplinary measures, it's always a good idea to determine if the goal is set too high." Judy's slapping at you, and her guilty attempts to make up for being "bad" (in your eyes) suggest that you are riding her much too hard, for her age and (or) present learning capacity.

In this splendid encyclopedia you will find related articles on discipline, spanking and corporal punishment—handily alphabeted, dictionary-style. The modern verdict is against spanking. Understanding leadership, consistently applied, is more productive of right results. Do consult the book—through your local public library if you can't afford your own copy. M.H.

Civil Air Patrol Planes To Fly In Memorial Sunday

50 civil air patrol planes will take off at noon Sunday from Rehobeth, Delaware, fly out to sea, and drop 64 white rosebuds on to the waters of the Atlantic in commemoration of the 64 volunteer members of the civil air patrol who gave their lives during World War II.

The date is coincident with the 13th anniversary of the establishment of the first anti-submarine patrol bases of the civil air patrol established at Atlantic City, N. J., And Rehobeth, Delaware, on March 6, 1942.

The memorial mission will be led by Col. A. Paul Fonda and Col. Louisa S. Morse, Maryland and Delaware wing commanders of the civil air patrol.

More than 150 civil air patrol members will take part in the mass flight following memorial ceremonies to be conducted by Chaplain John Payne of the Maryland wing.

The aircraft will leave the ground at 30-second intervals. They will rendezvous at 1500 feet and will assume a staggered formation of four plane elements.

The memorial flight will be covered by NBC-TV and the films will be shown on the Dave Garroway Show over NBC-TV the morning of Monday, March 7, at which time Garroway will be made an honorary member of the civil air patrol and Colonel Fonda will present him with an appropriate certificate.

This memorial flight also will draw attention to the fact that during WW II civil air patrol's volunteer members flew more than 24 million miles of anti-submarine patrol in addition to thousands of hours of other critical wartime flying, and who in recent years have performed more than 63 per cent of all of the search hours flown on official search missions of the air rescue service in the United States.

They receive no pay, allowances, per diem, or other remuneration for their services and are not covered by any compensation in the event of death or injury.

The Monroe squadron of civil air patrol meets at 7:30 p. m. every Monday night at 621 Louisville avenue. Visitors and prospective members are invited to attend. The Monroe squadron has given many hours in search work and in assisting the state, parish and city police departments.

Plans Annual Education Tour

RUSTON, March 5 (Special) — Plans for Louisiana Tech's fifth annual educational tour, which will cover 21 states and parts of Canada, are now underway, it was announced this week.

Dr. G. W. McGinty, head of the Tech department of social science, said that present plans are for the tour to leave the Tech campus on the morning of August 8 for a tour of eastern America and return in the evening of August 28.

Dr. McGinty and Dr. H. O. Trout, professor of geography at Tech, will accompany the students on the trip. Two courses, history 600 and geography 600, each for three semester hours, will be offered on the tour.

The itinerary this summer includes visits to all the New England states and three of the largest cities in the United States — New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago. As in years past, the tour is designed to acquaint students with the geography, history, and the economic and social life of the eastern United States.

The courses to be offered, as outlined in the Tech catalog, call for approximately 5,000 miles of travel and observation of the United States east of the Mississippi river. They include daily lectures and a certain amount of reading.

The approximate cost of the trip will be $200, which will cover the $15 Tech registration fee for the course, and transportation, lodging, admissions, and tips. The only extra expenses for the students will be food and incidentals.

Reservations may be made by depositing $50 with the Tech auditor, J. W. Evans, in the auditor's office in Keeny hall. The trip will be made in chartered, air-conditioned busses which will hold only 39 students and two instructors. A number of reservations have already been made.

Civitan Clubs Aid In Hearts Drive Helpful

The tragic death of a member of the Civitan Club again a sudden attack of heart failure — focussed all possible attention of club members on the success of the annual heart campaign. All through the days and weeks the drive was in progress, they aided in all possible means for its complete success.

A substantial sum was raised by Civitans as a memorial to Howard Willard, member who lost his life. The sum was turned over to banker Tom Standifer, heart fund campaign treasurer.

Members of the Civitan Clubs in Monroe and West Monroe worked with rekindled vigor as time drew near for the exhaustive house-to-house visitation with its 3,000 eager workers who started efforts February 20 at 2 p. m.

To awaken the public to the need of contributing, West Monroe Civitans saw city officials, securing complete cooperation everywhere. Church bells broke the Sunday silence with their compelling alarums; sirens blazed forth; bells on public buildings sent forth their noisy clamor.

In Monroe a similar presentation greeted the ears of everyone in the downtown area, and a sound truck toured the city still further to stress the noise of sirens, whistles, church bells and other available noisemakers.

As a genuine surprise, top leaders of the heart campaign saw that a beautiful plaque was awarded to the Monroe Civitan Club and a similar one to the West Monroe Civitan Club, as a choice memento of a successful campaign.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

Neglecting Exercise? Better Start Today

Let's suppose that we understand that exercise which is suited to physical condition is a great aid in remaining well and in prolonging youthfulness, that exercise carried through life in a sensible way is a great youthifier, builds energy and banishes many minor but uncomfortable physical disabilities, and that neglect in daily health routines may even pave the way for serious trouble later on.

Let's also suppose that we have not indulged in special exercise, or if we have, only in an on-and-off way. Then what do we do? In the first place it is most important that any woman who begins exercise have a physical checkup first to be sure that it is safe for her, (the older she is the more essential this is).

Use Some Sense

If your doctor gives you the green light he will do so only because he believes that you will use some sense, heed warnings, and begin slowly and build up gradually. Today I would like to give a few easy exercises for the woman who has not taken them in the past.

1. Stretch! REALLY stretch while lying on your bed. You may have treated yourself to a few little stretches now and then before you got up in the morning or before you went to sleep at night, but I mean really stretch. By this I do not indicate that you should displace any ligaments but that you, lazily and slowly, twist your torso, reach with your arms and legs, in a comfortably manner, until you feel that most of your muscles have had a little relaxation. Take time for this.

Stand for This

2. Stand erect. Place your hands on the wall. Shake your right leg, making your hip and knee joints loose. Shake your left leg. Now take your hands from the wall. Shake your right arm, elbow and wrist loose. Shake your left arm.

3. Lie on your back. Bend both knees and place your feet on the floor. Pull your abdomen back toward your backbone. Hold while you count to ten slowly. Now push your abdomen up toward the ceiling as far as comfortable. Hold while you count to ten. Continue, pulling down and pushing up, in a rhythmic way, slowly though.

Plans Annual Education Tour

RUSTON, March 5 (Special) — Plans for Louisiana Tech's fifth annual educational tour, which will cover 21 states and parts of Canada, are now underway, it was announced this week.

Dr. G. W. McGinty, head of the Tech department of social science, said that present plans are for the tour to leave the Tech campus on the morning of August 8 for a tour of eastern America and return in the evening of August 28.

Dr. McGinty and Dr. H. O. Trout, professor of geography at Tech, will accompany the students on the trip. Two courses, history 600 and geography 600, each for three semester hours, will be offered on the tour.

The itinerary this summer includes visits to all the New England states and three of the largest cities in the United States — New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago. As in years past, the tour is designed to acquaint students with the geography, history, and the economic and social life of the eastern United States.

The courses to be offered, as outlined in the Tech catalog, call for approximately 5,000 miles of travel and observation of the United States east of the Mississippi river. They include daily lectures and a certain amount of reading.

The approximate cost of the trip will be $200, which will cover the $15 Tech registration fee for the course, and transportation, lodging, admissions, and tips. The only extra expenses for the students will be food and incidentals.

Reservations may be made by depositing $50 with the Tech auditor, J. W. Evans, in the auditor's office in Keeny hall. The trip will be made in chartered, air-conditioned busses which will hold only 39 students and two instructors. A number of reservations have already been made.

Civitan Clubs Aid In Hearts Drive Helpful

The tragic death of a member of the Civitan Club again a sudden attack of heart failure — focussed all possible attention of club members on the success of the annual heart campaign. All through the days and weeks the drive was in progress, they aided in all possible means for its complete success.

A substantial sum was raised by Civitans as a memorial to Howard Willard, member who lost his life. The sum was turned over to banker Tom Standifer, heart fund campaign treasurer.

Members of the Civitan Clubs in Monroe and West Monroe worked with rekindled vigor as time drew near for the exhaustive house-to-house visitation with its 3,000 eager workers who started efforts February 20 at 2 p. m.

To awaken the public to the need of contributing, West Monroe Civitans saw city officials, securing complete cooperation everywhere. Church bells broke the Sunday silence with their compelling alarums; sirens blazed forth; bells on public buildings sent forth their noisy clamor.

In Monroe a similar presentation greeted the ears of everyone in the downtown area, and a sound truck toured the city still further to stress the noise of sirens, whistles, church bells and other available noisemakers.

As a genuine surprise, top leaders of the heart campaign saw that a beautiful plaque was awarded to the Monroe Civitan Club and a similar one to the West Monroe Civitan Club, as a choice memento of a successful campaign.

Civil Air Patrol Planes To Fly In Memorial Sunday

50 civil air patrol planes will take off at noon Sunday from Rehobeth, Delaware, fly out to sea, and drop 64 white rosebuds onto the waters of the Atlantic in commemoration of the 64 volunteer members of the civil air patrol who gave their lives during World War II.

The date is coincident with the 13th anniversary of the establishment of the first anti - submarine patrol bases of the civil air patrol established at Atlantic City, N. J., And Rehobeth, Delaware, on March 6, 1942.

The memorial mission will be led by Col. A. Paul Fonda and Col. Louisa S. Morse, Maryland and Delaware wing commanders of the civil air patrol.

More than 150 civil air patrol members will take part in the mass flight following memorial ceremonies to be conducted by Chaplain John Payne of the Maryland wing.

The aircraft will leave the ground at 30 - second intervals. They will rendezvous at 1500 feet and will assume a staggered formation of four plane elements.

The memorial flight will be covered by NBC-TV and the films will be shown on the Dave Garroway Show over NBC-TV the morning of Monday, March 7, at which time Garroway will be made an honorary member of the civil air patrol and Colonel Fonda will present him with an appropriate certificate.

This memorial flight also will draw attention to the fact that during WW II civil air patrol's volunteer members flew more than 24 million miles of anti-submarine patrol in addition to thousands of hours of other critical wartime flying, and who in recent years have performed more than 63 per cent of all of the search hours flown on official search missions of the air rescue service in the United States.

They receive no pay, allowances, per diem, or other remuneration for their services and are not covered by any compensation in the event of death or injury.

The Monroe squadron of civil air patrol meets at 7:30 p. m. every Monday night at 621 Louisville avenue. Visitors and prospective members are invited to attend. The Monroe squadron has given many hours in search work and in assisting the state, parish and city police departments.

Why Grow Old?

Neglecting Exercise? Better Start Today

Let's suppose that we understand that exercise which is suited to physical condition is a great aid in remaining well and in prolonging youthfulness, that exercise carried through life in a sensible way is a great youthifier, builds energy and banishes many minor but uncomfortable physical disabilities, and that neglect in daily health routines may even pave the way for serious trouble later on.

Let's also suppose that we have not indulged in special exercise, or if we have, only in an on-and-off way. Then what do we do? In the first place it is most important that any woman who begins exercise have a physical checkup first to be sure that it is safe for her, (the older she is the more essential this is).

Use Some Sense

If your doctor gives you the green light he will do so only because he believes that you will use some sense, heed warnings, and begin slowly and build up gradually. Today I would like to give a few easy exercises for the woman who has not taken them in the past.

1. Stretch! REALLY stretch while lying on your bed. You may have treated yourself to a few little stretches now and then before you got up in the morning or before you went to sleep at night, but I mean really stretch. By this I do not indicate that you should displace any ligaments but that you, lazily and slowly, twist your torso, reach with your arms and legs, in a comfortably manner, until you feel that most of your muscles have had a little relaxation. Take time for this.

Stand for This

2. Stand erect. Place your hands on the wall. Shake your right leg, making your hip and knee joints loose. Shake your left leg. Now take your hands from the wall. Shake your right arm, elbow and wrist loose. Shake your left arm.

3. Lie on your back. Bend both knees and place your feet on the floor. Pull your abdomen back toward your backbone. Hold while you count to ten slowly. Now push your abdomen up toward the ceiling as far as comfortable. Hold while you count to ten. Continue, pulling down and pushing up, in a rhythmic way, slowly though.

The Wide Screen

By KING VIDOR
(Guest Columnist)

HOLLYWOOD, March 5 — Memories in Hollywood are apparently as short as today's screens are wide. Amidst all the fanfare and excitement attending the introduction of the various big - screen projection processes, very few people seem to recall that there is nothing essentially new about any of them.

The wide - screen idea was tried out almost 25 years ago. I was one of those who tried it. I believed in it then and I believe in it today, especially for films in which much of the action takes place outdoors, such as my new Universal - International picture, "Man Without a Star," which has Kirk Douglas and Jeanne Crain as its leads.

Maybe it's just as well that the general use of wide - screen photography and projection was delayed almost 25 years, for its reintroduction seems to have served as a shot of adrenalin to the motion picture industry. It apparently was just what was needed to tear the people away from their television sets and give them the movie-going habit again.

This result is particularly gratifying to me because I was one of very few people in the industry who had real faith in an innovation then called Grandeur Screen when it was first tried out in 1930. I don't know for sure what was going on in other studios besides Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where I was working at the time, so I can't say how many pictures were filmed to be projected on Grandeur Screen, but I am pretty sure there were only two. I made one of them and the Fox Film Company made another, called "The Big Trail," in which, incidentally, John Wayne made his acting debut.

The one I directed for MGM was "Billy the Kid," with Johnny Mack Brown as its star. It was shot on 70mm. film — the conventional size is 35mm. — with a specially built camera. It was also photographed with a conventional camera on 35mm. film, because no one was at all sure that the bigger version would turn out as well as it did.

Before we had done a week's work, however, all of us who were working on this picture were convinced that the large - screen process would cause a mass change-over to the wide - screen. The advantages (particularly for outdoor shots) were so tremendous and so obvious that I began to formulate new techniques.

But I had a rude awakening. The grandeur screen version of the picture was released in a dozen theatres throughout the country after opening at the Capitol in New York on a screen extending the entire width of the proscenium arch.

After playing a few weeks in the few theatres which had invested in the big screens, the picture was released throughout the rest of the country on conventional 35 mm. film and the wide - screen process was never heard of again by the general public until 1953.

It's not perhaps quite fair to say that the studio executives didn't believe then in the wide-screen. It would be fairer to say that they didn't believe in it enough to persist against the expressed opposition of the exhibitors, who objected because of the additional expense for new screens and equipment it would impose on them. At the time, sound was only three years old and exhibitors were still paying for the installation of new equipment in this, Hollywood's first big revolution. It seems to have been the competition of television that convinced the exhibitors of the validity of the old adage that you must spend money to make money.

As all movie fans know, there are several new photographic and projection techniques. It is interesting to note that two of them, Vista-Vision and Todd A-O, are like Grandeur Screen in that they require film about double the size of the standard 35mm. There are also CinemaScope employing the anamorphic lens, and the uncomplicated process of merely changing in the ratio of photography and projection so that the picture projected on the screen is wider and not quite as high as the standard projection. The most popular ratio in use today is 1 in height to 1.85 in width.

Without my attempting to take sides in the still continuing dispute as to which process is best, I can honestly say that I like them all for the one thing they have in common, the widening of the picture.

Nothing at all has been lost by this re-framing of the motion picture screen, in my opinion. Some directors feared at the outset that the new wide - screens would eliminate close-ups, which are often very effective dramatic devices. Experience has shown, however, that close - ups have lost none of their effectiveness and that the viewer has quickly made an optical adjustment that makes him virtually unconscious of the necessarily bare space at the sides of the close-up image.

That fear of the elimination of the close-up was the only reservation most directors and cameramen had about the wide - screen processes. They all recognized its superiority for all other scenes, not only the longshots but also what are referred to as middle shots. Even indoor scenes have more validity, for the average room is rectangular. And for outdoor photography, the panoramic sweep that is now possible adds a genuine thrill to film direction, especially for a director, who, like myself, started in the business as a cameraman.

'Battle Cry' Is Story Of Marines In Training

Warner Bros.' CinemaScope adaptation of "Battle Cry," a best-selling novel by Leon Uris, opens Thursday at the Paramount Theatre.

Filmed in Warner Color, it follows closely Uris' book dealing with the romances, the training and the battles of a group of Marines during World War II.

The man who knew the most about the story—Mr. Uris, himself—was assigned to write the screenplay. As a Marine private who saw duty at Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Saipan, Uris' novel and screenplay are based on personal experiences. The author was driving a news truck for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin at the time he began writing the book.

Director Raoul Walsh reportedly spent months in selecting actors and actresses who he felt would be perfectly suited for the characters they were to portray.

For the Marine roles Walsh wanted men who combined fine acting talent with a good military record. He figured that military experience was a prerequisite for a performance which would do justice to the Marines.

Van Heflin, the Major Huxley of the story, was an Air Force Lieutenant in the European Theatre of war. Aldo Ray (Andy) and James Whitmore (Mac), as a member of a Navy underwater demolition team and a machine gun officer, respectively, participated in the Saipan invasion depicted in "Battle Cry." Tab Hunter (Danny) was too young for World War II, but at the age of sixteen served a year in the Coast Guard.

For the women in the lives of the Marines, Walsh selected Mona Freeman as Kathy, Nancy Olson as Pat, Dorothy Malone as Elaine and Anne Francis as Rae.

Within censorship regulations Walsh depicted the emotions and passions of war-time love as described in the novel. As a result the romantic sequences are said to rank among the most torrid love scenes in cinema history.

The boot camp and other training sequences before the men are shipped overseas were photographed at Naval and Marine installations in San Diego and at the Marine Base at Camp Pendleton.

"Battle Cry," which has a personal story to tell is considered a graphic example of why producers favor popular novels as possible screen hits.

Opening lead: King of spades.

The desire of some players to ruff with good trumps presents a psychological curio which occasionally besets both declarers and defenders. In today's hand submission to this urge by East presented declarer with a game contract.

The bidding sequence was normal. North, despite his two high card tricks, had not enough to justify a free bid after West's spade bid, but had ample values with which to accept his partner's invitation on the next round.

West led the king and ace of spades on which East signaled high - low. When the third spade was led, he followed the urge to get in a ruff and put his four of hearts to that purpose. A club came back and was taken by declarer's king. Dummy was entered with the king of diamonds to permit the heart finesse, and the ace of diamonds gave declarer access to dummy for another finesse, yielding the balance of the tricks to the offensive side.

East's ruff of the third spade, while it may have gratified his whim, was a most unprofitable business venture. He should have seen four tricks within his grasp, two spades already in and two hearts, if declarer is unable to finesse twice against him. To finesse twice, declarer must enter dummy with both the ace and king of diamonds. But if East, instead of ruffing the third spade, lets go a diamond, declarer will be able to reach dummy only once, and East will be assured of making two trump tricks.

Graveyards cover about 10 per cent of the Pescadore Islands near Formosa.

In Hollywood

By Jimmy Fidler

The Wide Screen

By KING VIDOR
(Guest Columnist)

HOLLYWOOD, March 5 — Memories in Hollywood are apparently as short as today's screens are wide. Amidst all the fanfare and excitement attending the introduction of the various big - screen projection processes, very few people seem to recall that there is nothing essentially new about any of them.

The wide - screen idea was tried out almost 25 years ago. I was one of those who tried it. I believed in it then and I believe in it today, especially for films in which much of the action takes place outdoors, such as my new Universal - International picture, "Man Without a Star," which has Kirk Douglas and Jeanne Crain as its leads.

Maybe it's just as well that the general use of wide - screen photography and projection was delayed almost 25 years, for its reintroduction seems to have served as a shot of adrenalin to the motion picture industry. It apparently was just what was needed to tear the people away from their television sets and give them the movie-going habit again.

This result is particularly gratifying to me because I was one of very few people in the industry who had real faith in an innovation then called Grandeur Screen when it was first tried out in 1930. I don't know for sure what was going on in other studios besides Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where I was working at the time, so I can't say how many pictures were filmed to be projected on Grandeur Screen, but I am pretty sure there were only two. I made one of them and the Fox Film Company made another, called "The Big Trail," in which, incidentally, John Wayne made his acting debut.

The one I directed for MGM was "Billy the Kid," with Johnny Mack Brown as its star. It was shot on 70mm. film — the conventional size is 35mm. — with a specially built camera. It was also photographed with a conventional camera on 35mm. film, because no one was at all sure that the bigger version would turn out as well as it did.

Before we had done a week's work, however, all of us who were working on this picture were convinced that the large - screen process would cause a mass change-over to the wide - screen. The advantages (particularly for outdoor shots) were so tremendous and so obvious that I began to formulate new techniques.

But I had a rude awakening. The grandeur screen version of the picture was released in a dozen theatres throughout the country after opening at the Capitol in New York on a screen extending the entire width of the proscenium arch.

After playing a few weeks in the few theatres which had invested in the big screens, the picture was released throughout the rest of the country on conventional 35 mm. film and the wide - screen process was never heard of again by the general public until 1953.

It's not perhaps quite fair to say that the studio executives didn't believe then in the wide-screen. It would be fairer to say that they didn't believe in it enough to persist against the expressed opposition of the exhibitors, who objected because of the additional expense for new screens and equipment it would impose on them. At the time, sound was only three years old and exhibitors were still paying for the installation of new equipment in this, Hollywood's first big revolution. It seems to have been the competition of television that convinced the exhibitors of the validity of the old adage that you must spend money to make money.

As all movie fans know, there are several new photographic and projection techniques. It is interesting to note that two of them, Vista-Vision and Todd A-O, are like Grandeur Screen in that they require film about double the size of the standard 35mm. There are also CinemaScope employing the anamorphic lens, and the uncomplicated process of merely changing in the ratio of photography and projection so that the picture projected on the screen is wider and not quite as high as the standard projection. The most popular ratio in use today is 1 in height to 1.85 in width.

Without my attempting to take sides in the still continuing dispute as to which process is best, I can honestly say that I like them all for the one thing they have in common, the widening of the picture.

Nothing at all has been lost by this re-framing of the motion picture screen, in my opinion. Some directors feared at the outset that the new wide - screens would eliminate close-ups, which are often very effective dramatic devices. Experience has shown, however, that close - ups have lost none of their effectiveness and that the viewer has quickly made an optical adjustment that makes him virtually unconscious of the necessarily bare space at the sides of the close-up image.

That fear of the elimination of the close-up was the only reservation most directors and cameramen had about the wide - screen processes. They all recognized its superiority for all other scenes, not only the longshots but also what are referred to as middle shots. Even indoor scenes have more validity, for the average room is rectangular. And for outdoor photography, the panoramic sweep that is now possible adds a genuine thrill to film direction, especially for a director, who, like myself, started in the business as a cameraman.

'Battle Cry' Is Story Of Marines In Training

Warner Bros.' CinemaScope adaptation of "Battle Cry," a best-selling novel by Leon Uris, opens Thursday at the Paramount Theatre.

Filmed in Warner Color, it follows closely Uris' book dealing with the romances, the training and the battles of a group of Marines during World War II.

The man who knew the most about the story—Mr. Uris, himself—was assigned to write the screenplay. As a Marine private who saw duty at Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Saipan, Uris' novel and screenplay are based on personal experiences. The author was driving a news truck for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin at the time he began writing the book.

Director Raoul Walsh reportedly spent months in selecting actors and actresses who he felt would be perfectly suited for the characters they were to portray.

For the Marine roles Walsh wanted men who combined fine acting talent with a good military record. He figured that military experience was a prerequisite for a performance which would do justice to the Marines.

Van Heflin, the Major Huxley of the story, was an Air Force Lieutenant in the European Theatre of war. Aldo Ray (Andy) and James Whitmore (Mac), as a member of a Navy underwater demolition team and a machine gun officer, respectively, participated in the Saipan invasion depicted in "Battle Cry." Tab Hunter (Danny) was too young for World War II, but at the age of sixteen served a year in the Coast Guard.

For the women in the lives of the Marines, Walsh selected Mona Freeman as Kathy, Nancy Olson as Pat, Dorothy Malone as Elaine and Anne Francis as Rae.

Within censorship regulations Walsh depicted the emotions and passions of war-time love as described in the novel. As a result the romantic sequences are said to rank among the most torrid love scenes in cinema history.

The boot camp and other training sequences before the men are shipped overseas were photographed at Naval and Marine installations in San Diego and at the Marine Base at Camp Pendleton.

"Battle Cry," which has a personal story to tell is considered a graphic example of why producers favor popular novels as possible screen hits.

North, Pass; East, Pass; South, 3 hearts; West, Pass.

North, 4 hearts; East, Pass; South, Pass; West, Pass.

Opening lead: King of spades.

The desire of some players to ruff with good trumps presents a psychological curio which occasionally besets both declarers and defenders. In today's hand submission to this urge by East presented declarer with a game contract.

The bidding sequence was normal. North, despite his two high card tricks, had not enough to justify a free bid after West's spade bid, but had ample values with which to accept his partner's invitation on the next round.

West led the king and ace of spades on which East signaled high - low. When the third spade was led, he followed the urge to get in a ruff and put his four of hearts to that purpose. A club came back and was taken by declarer's king. Dummy was entered with the king of diamonds to permit the heart finesse, and the ace of diamonds gave declarer access to dummy for another finesse, yielding the balance of the tricks to the offensive side.

East's ruff of the third spade, while it may have gratified his whim, was a most unprofitable business venture. He should have seen four tricks within his grasp, two spades already in and two hearts, if declarer is unable to finesse twice against him. To finesse twice, declarer must enter dummy with both the ace and king of diamonds. But if East, instead of ruffing the third spade, lets go a diamond, declarer will be able to reach dummy only once, and East will be assured of making two trump tricks.

Graveyards cover about 10 per cent of the Pescadore Islands near Formosa.

US Invites Allies To Observe Nevada Tests

WASHINGTON, March 5—UP—The United States has invited representatives of Britain and other Allied nations to witness—under certain restrictions—some of this nation's atomic tests in Nevada.

But none of the foreign representatives will be given access to any secret data on design and manufacture of nuclear weapons, authoritative sources reported Saturday.

This ban is laid down in U.S. law. But the visitors from some of the principal North Atlantic pact nations will be given opportunity to study the effects of nuclear explosions.

Sir William Penney, Great Britain's top nuclear weapons expert, will be among those who will witness one of this spring's Nevada explosions.

Dispatches from London said Britain is seeking full restoration of the atomic partnership with the United States that existed during World War II. But officials said American law would bar that.

The Defense Department already has announced that 60 Canadian officers and men will participate in radiological exercises in connection with the Nevada tests. It also has invited, in addition to Britain, some of the other leading NATO allies to send representatives but as yet has not made a detailed announcement.

The London dispatches indicated Penney would seek to broaden the scope of his visit here to encompass exchange of information on weapons production as well as weapons effects.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 5—UP—An 11-year-old boy who fell out a window to a concrete driveway two stories below was in "fair" condition today.

John Tway was admitted to Mercy hospital Friday night suffering from a skull fracture. Investigators said the boy apparently lost his balance while on a bunk bed.

Stocks Rise To Bull Market Highs, Report

NEW YORK, March 5 —UP—Stocks rose to new bull market highs this past week in the smallest volume since the week ended Jan. 21.

Utilities stood out by making their best gain on average since April 15, 1939. Natural gas issues spurted to help lift this figure. Their strength reflected hopes for modifications of regulations against the companies.

The market moved higher steadily with the industrials breaking all previous records in their average. The industrial gain was the best for a week since Nov. 12, last. For the rails the rise was the best since Dec. 17.

Altogether the market was carried up more than $4 billion in valuation of all listed securities.

Traders were unaffected by the start of the Senate investigation. In fact, some of the statements made by those testifying helped the rise along. The presidents of the nation's largest exchanges found the market rise sound, based on strong business and good prospects.

Also helping the market were glowing reports from the major lines of industry — steel operations heading for 95-96 per cent, according to Iron Age, near record output for the week and a record for the year believed possible by the head of General Motors.

Steels had wide gains, many rising to new highs. Metal issues generally moved up. Aluminum issues scored wide gains in several sessions. So did selected coppers.

The autos joined the upturn and were active late in the week. Rails achieved their best average level since 1930 and utilities since 1931.

Building stocks were aided by favorable reports from that industry. Heavy construction contract awards made so far this year are 58 per cent higher than they were at this time last year.

Pope To Attend Coronation Fete

VATICAN CITY, March 5—UP—Pope Pius XII will attend in person a solemn ceremony in the Sistine Chapel March 12 marking the 16th anniversary of his coronation as head of the Catholic Church, it was announced Saturday.

It would be the first time in three years the pontiff attended such a ceremony. Illness forced him to cancel attendance in 1953 and last year of anniversary ceremonies.

The population of Morocco, now more than eight million, had doubled in the past 55 years.

HOLLY, I DON'T THINK STEVE CANYON KNOWS YOU AND I ARE TOGETHER—TALKING ABOUT HIM—IN RELATION TO YOU AND ME!

I DON'T RIGHTLY UNDERSTAND, MISS REDWOOD!

MEANWHILE • DOE REDWOOD'S QUARTERS..

OH, FOR PETE'S SAKE, DON'T ANSWER ME AS IF I WERE YOUR SCHOOL TEACHER!

BUT, MA'AM, I WAS TAUGHT THAT IT IS DISRESPECTFUL TO ADDRESS MY ELDERS AS IF WE WERE THE SAME AGE!

WELL, I ASKED FOR THAT ONE!—BUT LET IT PASS... THE POINT IS, I AM NOT COMPETING WITH YOU FOR THE ATTENTIONS OF COL. CANYON!

PURELY BY ACCIDENT HE WAS ASSIGNED TO ME BECAUSE OF MY JOB! HE IS VERY GOOD COMPANY, BUT THAT ENDS IT!...HE'S ALL YOURS, IF YOU CAN CATCH HIM...

GRACIOUS ME, MA'AM, I MUST HAVE GIVEN YOU A WRONG IMPRESSION!

I KNOW I COULD NEVER COMPETE WITH A LOVELY, MATURE CREATURE SUCH AS YOU! WHEN YOU TWO ARRIVED I TURNED TO YOU AS I WOULD TO A TRUSTED UNCLE AND AUNT! I DECLARE, I'M JUST CRUSHED THAT YOU THOUGHT I'D PRESUME TO DO SUCH A THING!

YOU PULLED MY FANGS IN ADVANCE.... MAYBE YOU'D BETTER GO HOME BEFORE I BUST OUT CRYING!—OH! IT'S RAINING! AND YOU HAVE NO UMBRELLA! HERE—TAKE MY COAT!..IT HAS A HOOD—SO YOU WON'T SPOIL YOUR BONNET!

I SWEAR I DON'T KNOW HOW TO THANK YOU FOR BEIN' SO SWEET!

BELIEVE ME, HONEY, I'M NOT THE SWEET TYPE! NOW HURRY BEFORE YOUR DAD STARTS WORRYING! TAKE A TAXI!

BEHOLD! THE WOMAN EXPERT EMERGES ALONE! I REMEMBER THE RED RAIN CLOTHING! THIS IS OUR CHANCE!.. GET HER!

Fluffo is different. It does things no other shortening can do! Get a can. It's available in most areas. Discover how it gives appetizing new richness to everything you bake or fry.

GOLDEN FLUFFO IS PURE SHORTENING—NOT A TABLE SPREAD

such tender-crisp, golden-brown fried foods!

Give your family the kind of eatin' they've been missin'. . . with wonderfully delicious fried chicken—fried the golden Fluffo way!

COUNTRY-CRISP FRIED CHICKEN

Temptingly tender—beautifully, evenly brown!
Serve with Fluffo French Fries!

6 to 8 pieces of frying chicken or 1 frying chicken, cut in serving pieces (serves 4)
½ cup flour 2 teaspoons of salt
½ to 1 cup golden Fluffo for frying

Mix flour and salt. Roll chicken in the seasoned flour. Brown the floured pieces of chicken in hot golden Fluffo in a large frying pan. When well browned, reduce heat, cover and cook over low heat until tender (about 30 minutes). Cooking may be finished in the oven at 350°F. if desired.

Note: If your skillet has no cover use heavy aluminum foil to cover the chicken as it cooks.

IMPORTANT! Use Fluffo in all your recipes that call for shortening—without changing a single measurement!
